M'DONALD AND DAWES DISCUSS INITIAL STEPS FOR NEW NAVY PARLEY

Interview in Scotland Is "Most Satisfactory," Premier Says.

HOLDS ALL POWERS MUST JOIN IN MOVE

Belief Grows That He Will Call Conference to Meet in July.

U. S. ENVOY RECEIVES FRIENDLY WELCOME

Briton Asserts Fate of World Hangs on Negotiations to Be Announced Soon.

Forres, Scotland, June 16 (U.P.).—Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, and the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, Gen Charles G. Dawes, met on the heavily wooded banks of the Findhorn River this afternoon for an informal conference which may lead to one of the greatest advances ever made toward world security.

The conversation lasted an hour and a half. It concerned general aspects of the vital question of naval disarmament as it affects the two great naval powers of the world, England and the United States. Both Ambassador Dawes and Prime Minister MacDonald considered results of their talk "most satisfactory."

Invitation to U. S. Rumored.

It was understood that Dawes informally extended an anticipated invitation to MacDonald to visit the United States to discuss the naval disarmament problem with President Hoover The prime minister, however, declined to discuss the question of such a trip, inferring that it was mostly newspaper talk.

MacDonald announced that world powers would be invited to aid in solving the naval question, and Dawes later indicated that the other powers would be expected to join the United States and Great Britain in negotiations after he outlines the situation in his speech in London Tuesday night.

"We both wish to make it clear that other naval powers are expected to cooperate in these negotiations upon the successful conclusion of which the fate of the whole world depends," the Scottish-born prime minister said, reading from a statement which the American Ambassador had approved. The statement strengthened belief that MacDonald will urge a conference in July with European powers.

Text of the Communique.

MacDonald stood on the front porch at Logie House, in one of Scotland's most picturesque and historic scenes, as he read those words to reporters The quietly firm tone of the prime minister made clear his opinion of the importance of the negotiations which he apparently hopes will move forward in coordination with European diplomatic negotiations toward final complete liquidation of the World War problems and the establishment of his greatest hope, inviolable world peace.

The communique which the Labor prime minister and Ambassador Dawes issued, said:

"We have had a conversation regarding the present position of the question of naval disarmament as between the United States and Great Britain. It has been informal, general and most satisfactory.

"His excellency (Dawes) proposes to refer to the subject at the Pilgrims Society dinner Tuesday night and I shall do the same almost at the same time at Lossiemouth, and that is intended to be the beginning of negotiations. We both wish to make it clear that other naval powers are expected to cooperate in these negotiations, upon the successful conclusion of which the fate of the whole world depends."

The full importance of the conversation between Dawes and MacDonald, as initiating far-reaching negotiations, necessarily depends on a host of other moves of both major and minor importance.

It also is understood that MacDonald may move to arrange a preliminary conference of European statesmen, probably for next month. Reliable sources today indicated that the prime minister might start to arrange such a round-table conference within the next few days.

Aristide Briand, France's foreign minister and "apostle of peace;" Dr Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister and most skillful of that country's negotiators; Paul Hymans the Belgian foreign minister and an Italian delegate would be expected to participate. The Sunday Labor newspaper, Reynolds, said that it understood MacDonald and Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, would go to Paris late this week to arrange such a conference.

The Anglo-American naval conference at Washington, however, would be the most important parley in the negotiations President Hoover started things in speech on naval disarmament and MacDonald indicated his

Capital Man is Last Mexican War Veteran

Thomas O. Edgar, 98, Becomes Sole Survivor as Missouri Resident, 101, Dies; Will Be Honored on Birthday Today.

With the death of William Fitzhugh Thornton Buckner, one of the last two survivors of the Mexican War, at Paris Mo., yesterday, Thomas Owen Edgar, who will be 98 years old today, a resident of the John Dickson Home here, becomes the sole survivor of that historic war. He is in splendid health and in fair possession of his faculties. He reads The Washington Post daily and walks in the halls, but refuses to talk about the war in which he helped to make American history.

Mr. Edgar has been a resident of Washington for 50 years or more and has a daughter, Mrs. Philo Bush, living on Park road, grandchildren and great-grandchildren in Washington.

The distinguished veteran served in the American Navy, but does not now recall the name of the ship and discourages all attempts to talk of the war.

He has been a resident of the home here for the last eight years and is beloved by all, it was said by officials of the home last night. They are planning a dinner for him today, when he will be hailed as the sole survivor of the Mexican War.

Paris, Mo., June 16 (A.P.).—William Fitzhugh Thornton Buckner, 101 years old, oldest and believed to have been next to the last surviving veteran of the Mexican War, died at his home here today.

Buckner died unexpectedly soon after he arose at 6 o'clock a. m. today. Although he had been in retirement since 1912, the aged veteran was able to be

5 CHILDREN INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Condition of Two Victims Is Reported as Serious in Hospitals.

TWO DRIVERS ARRESTED

Five children were injured in automobile accidents in Washington and near the District yesterday. Two of the victims are in a serious condition.

Arthur Genna, 4 years old, of 731 First street northwest, received severe head lacerations when he was struck by an automobile said to have been driven by William Konstein, 615 New Jersey avenue northwest. The accident occurred when Konstein was driving north on the 700 block of First street, police said. The child was taken to Sibley Hospital where his condition was reported to be serious.

Ann Louise Balcar, 4 years old, of Bladensburg, Md., was taken to Casualty Hospital yesterday morning with a possible fracture of the skull, a compound fracture of the left leg and face and neck lacerations after being struck by an automobile near her home. Her condition was reported to be serious. The driver of the car, Russell E. Lewis, of Washington, which is alleged to have struck the child was arrested. He was charged with reckless driving and released on $500.

Hilda Boswell, 11 years old, of 4314 Alabama avenue southeast, and Joseph Shanahan, 2 years old, of 1227 C street southeast, while crossing Alabama avenue east of Ridge road southeast yesterday afternoon were struck by an automobile reported by police to have been driven by Albert Weiss, of 3724 Ninth street northwest. Both children were treated at Sibley Hospital for head and body injuries. Their condition was not serious, physicians said.

Knocked down by an automobile while running across the Colesville pike at Four Corners, 8-year-old Mary Horak, of Silver Spring, Md. suffered a broken collar bone. The girl was taken to the office of Dr. W. R. Haynes, at Silver Spring, and later to her home. The automobile was operated by Daniel Oscar Harris, of Baltimore, who later was charged with reckless driving and released on $12.50 collateral by Justice of the Peace Charles Clark.

MAN, 55, MURDERS WOMAN; KILLS SELF

Young Matron Is Shot Down as She Rides in Auto Near New Orleans.

MOTIVE IS UNDISCOVERED

New Orleans, La., June 16 (A.P.).—Herbert Eden, 55, manager of the New Orleans industrial canal, today shot and killed Mrs. Joseph Meyer, 24, and fatally wounded himself The shooting occurred on a suburban residential section street.

The shooting, police said, occurred when Eden, driving his own automobile, followed a machine in which Mrs. Meyer was riding with another woman and man until he was able to gain a position alongside their car He was then reported to have fired his pistol at the woman, then quickly turning it on himself.

Police declared that while it had been found Eden had known Mrs. Meyer for some time, they were unable to give a motive for the shooting. Ralph Russell, brother of the dead woman, said "too much drink caused it." He would offer no other comment.

The murder and suicide occurred in a street dotted with women and children, out on the porches and lawns while many pedestrians were on the sidewalks only a few feet from where the shots were fired.

Mrs. Meyer's husband is in New York, having left here a week ago on a business trip which was to have carried him later to Porto Rico.

Police visited Eden's office after the shooting and found only a brief note, scribbled on a pad which might throw light on the shooting. It read:

"10:30 a. m. a lady called."

A woman and man in the automobile with Mrs. Meyer when she was killed, disappeared, and police sought them tonight for questioning.

Two Girls Are Slashed By "Phantom Stabber"

Shelton, Conn., June 16 (U.P.).—A phantom stabber, believed to be the Bridgeport stabber, attacked Evelyn Wright, 18, and Dorothy Flood, 12, tonight.

Both girls were cut but neither was seriously injured.

PACIFIC STORM STREWS COAST WITH SHIPPING

Two Vessels Wrecked on Shore by Terrific Southwester.

FATE OF 32 IN DOUBT AS RESCUE PROCEEDS

SAILORS ESCAPE PART DRIFTING OUT TO SEA

Brothers Are Feared Drowned When Their Launch Floats Home Bottomside Up.

San Francisco, June 16 (A.P.).—A midnight storm from the North Pacific Ocean sent two ships ashore, broken wrecks; a third was badly crippled attempting to make port, two persons were missing, and the fate of 32 others was in doubt tonight as a result of the "southwester," which shipping men said was the worst in years on the California and Oregon coast.

The steamer Laurel, a large lumber carrier, moving out of the Columbia River from San Pedro and New York, faced the full sweep of the storm. It was driven ashore tonight. Half the ship was drifting out to sea and the remainder, carrying the crew, was just out of the reach of shore life guards and ships at sea as well.

Brothers Believed Drowned.

The lumber steamer Multnomah, off the Columbia River to San Francisco, after riding out the storm and discharging passengers to a pilot boat, was moving along under her own steam, having shipped considerable water, but all pumps were reported working well.

At Shelter Cove, north of Fort Bragg, the fishing launch in which F. and H. Anderson, brothers, who put to sea yesterday, came ashore bottom up, and companions in the salmon fleet feared the men were drowned. The same storm tore an old ship, used as a packing plant, from its moorings offshore and carried it against the rocks near Shelter Cove, a total loss.

Reports Rescue in Progress.

Portland, Oreg., June 16 (A.P.).—George Eggers, of the States Steamship Co., was in receipt of a message from Astoria, Oreg., tonight which stated that two power lifeboats were alongside the steamship Laurel, wrecked off the mouth of the Columbia River, and members of the crew were being moved from the stranded vessel.

Hils D. Wolcott, seaman, Holyoke, Mass.

John H. Moore, seaman, Pittsburgh, Pa.

James H. Miller, seaman, Bustleton, Pa.

William F. Ogden, seaman, Great Falls, Mont.

Caesare Forsight, seaman, Boston, Mass.

Nick S. Martimeiric, seaman, Youngstown, Ohio

John Schwartz, seaman, Philadelphia.

Harry D. Grady, oiler, Philadelphia.

Joe Pasta, fireman, Valencia, Spain.

John A. Cavanaugh, fireman, Wilmington, Del.

Ray W. Salloz, wiper, Ripley, W. Va.

Normon D. Abous, cook, Cobalt, Canada.

Eight Reported Rescued.

Astoria, Ore., June 16 (A.P.).—Eight members of the lumber steamer Laurel, which broke in two after being cast ashore off the mouth of the Columbia River in a severe storm last night, had been rescued this evening by power lifeboats which worked their way through mountainous seas close to the after end of the wrecked vessel.

The work of rescue was still proceeding although it was not known how many more of the crew of 33 were aboard the hulk. Those who were rescued leaped from the ship into the boiling sea and were pulled aboard the lifeboats.

The Laurel went ashore in the storm on the sands of Peacock Spit and was broken in two by the gale. Just how many members of the crew on the forward and how many on the after part was not known.

At daybreak watchers through binoculars observed fifteen persons clinging to the stern of the vessel, which was drifting toward shallow water. The bow of the ship was anchored about where she broke up.

The after end of the ship drifted north on Peacock Spit, about 3,000 feet from shore. Her heavy cargo and engines, it was thought, would prevent drifting into shallower water.

The storm also disabled the lumber steamer Multnomah, bound from Portland to San Francisco. Passengers on this vessel were taken off by a pilot

STERN CONTEST ON TARIFF BILL TO BEGIN TODAY

PROPOSAL WOULD CUT SCOPE OF COMMITTEE

WATSON SEES RECESS FOR SUMMER BALKED

(Associated Press.)

A stern contest between Senate groups favoring tariff revision for the farmer only and those forces advocating readjustment of the import duty structure on a broader scale will get under way today with the opening of debate on the resolution of Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho.

The Borah proposal would, in effect, instruct the Senate finance committee now holding hearings on the House bill carrying increases in rates on hundreds of manufacturing commodities as well as farm products, to ignore that measure and confine its consideration to amendments of the existing law designed to aid agricultural and related products.

Principal arguments are expected to revolve around the interpretation of that part of the resolution concerning "related products." As the tariff law contains many commodities related to agriculture in nearly every one of the fifteen rate sections, attempts will be made to obtain a more specific definition of this clause.

Borah Plan Favored.

Although the outcome of the clash was in doubt over the week-end, it was agreed that the odds favored the Borah plan, with perhaps some modifications, which has the support not only of Democrats and Republican independents in general, but several Republican regulars, including Senators Allen and Capper of Kansas.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, who has declared revision as extensive as that called for in the House measure was inevitable, believes that no recess could be taken this summer if the resolution is adopted. Congress would be here until next spring, he says, because it then would be up to the finance committee to report a bill at an early date, and efforts to widen the revision would be fought out on the Senate floor.

On the other hand, the Idahoan contends unless his program is approved there is no chance for tariff revision before the regular December session, as general revision would require many months of consideration.

Allen Aligned With Borah.

Senator Allen, leading supporter of President Hoover and opponent of Senator Borah in the debenture contest, now finds himself aligned with the Idahoan on the tariff issue.

Passage of Borah's resolution, he declares, will be "grim notice to the House that the Senate intends to follow out the Republican party's pledges in the presidential campaign." The Kansan, however, believes the resolution would embrace textiles because of its relation to cotton, a farm commodity.

President Hoover, in his message to Congress, recommended revision principally for agriculture, but also for other lines of production which have suffered since the present tariff law was enacted seven years ago. While his views on the Borah plan have not been divulged, it is the opinion of close observers of the impending contest that he would prefer a bill drafted along the lines of that proposal to the measure passed by the House.

Amendment Is Proposed.

To more nearly meet the President's program, Senator Jones (R), of Washington, assistant Republican leader, has proposed an amendment to the Borah resolution to embrace nonagricultural commodities which have suffered in recent years from increasing competitive imports. The choice, then, apparently lies between this proposal and a more clearly defined Borah plan

To further complicate the Senate tariff situation, Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, intends offering today a revamped debenture plan as a rider to the tariff bill.

Under his proposal, debenture certificates issued to farmers on exportable crops would be redeemable at 98 cents on the dollar at the Treasury, to be paid out of funds derived from customs duties. Under the defeated plan, it was contended that the certificates largely would have fallen into the hands of speculators, and the chance is designed to meet this objection.

Despite the floor controversy, four subcommittees of the finance committee will proceed with the taking of testimony on the cotton, chemicals, agriculture and wood schedules of the House bill. Their progress, however, is expected to be delayed because of the desire of the committeemen to participate in the debate.

THREE FRENCH FLIERS LAND AT LE BOURGET WITH U. S. STOWAWAY

Bramwell Booth Dies In Britain at Age of 73

General Was Deposed as Head of Salvationists in Row Last February.

London, June 16 (U.P.).—Gen. William Bramwell Booth, 73, son of the founder of the Salvation Army and himself head of the world-wide organization for sixteen years, died tonight at his residence at Hadleywood, where he has been confined since he lost control of the army last February

Gen. Booth, who was deposed after a long and heated controversy within the Salvation Army high council, had been ill for some months before he was deprived of his position. He had one serious relapse during the sessions of the high council in February, when Edward John Higgins was elected commander in chief of the organization.

His life had been devoted to the organization which his father founded and which was built up to a position of world-wide prominence under the second Gen. Booth's leadership during the World War.

The last great battle which Gen. Booth fought was conducted as he lay in bed, sometimes unable to leave his sickroom at Southwold and later at Hadleywood. In the controversy over control of the Salvation Army and its thousands of workers scattered throughout the world, the aged general was

FORMER FELON DIES IN STREET GUN ROW

2 FACE HOMICIDE COUNTS

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—An argument engaged in by five men on the West Side today ended with the firing of four shots, three of which struck and killed James Flannagan, 27, described by police as a longshoreman, former convict and gangster.

Police first learned of the shooting when a patrolman stopped two men who were carrying a third man into Roosevelt Hospital. The patrolman investigated and discovered the third man, whom the two others said they believed was intoxicated, was dead with three bullet wounds in the body.

The two men were taken to a police station for questioning, and detectives sent out to investigate, learned from a woman whose name police withheld that as she was leaning out of her window in West Sixtieth street she saw five men arguing in the street below. She said a taxicab was standing nearby and the argument was ended by the firing of at least four shots, after which two men ran away. Two others, she said, lifted the body of the fifth man, who had been wounded, into the taxicab and drove away.

The two men taken to the police station for questioning described themselves as Patrick Tevan, 40, and John Doyle, 21, both longshoremen. They told police they had found Flannagan lying on the sidewalk in front of a vacant lot and that, believing he was intoxicated, they had taken him in a taxicab to the hospital.

Police said Flannagan was sent to prison in 1922 for receiving stolen goods, and in 1926 was sentenced to five years for grand larceny. In 1928, police said, he escaped from jail by forcing apart the bars of his cell.

Later formal charges of homicide were filed against Tevan and Doyle,

FERTILIZER, EATEN AS SUGAR, KILLS 2

Two Other Children Are in Grave Condition; Poison Put on Berries.

DEAD ARE 4 YEARS OLD

Newton, N. J., June 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Janice Roe and Elizabeth Dudgeon, each 4, are dead, and their brothers, Earl Roe and Ernest Dudgeon, 8, are seriously ill as the result of eating nitrate of soda which they found on a lot near their homes here and mistook for sugar. It had been put on the ground as fertilizer.

Their parents are neighbors, and the four children were playing together near a kitchen window today waiting for dinner. When Mrs. Edward Roe, a widow, stepped outside to get her two children, the four had disappeared. They came running home when she called.

She sat Janice in a high chair in the dining room and went to the kitchen. She heard a thump and ran back to the dining room to find that Janice had fallen to the floor. As the mother reached her the child went into convulsions.

Frantically Mrs. Roe called to her neighbors, and Mrs. William Dudgeon was the first to reach her. It couldn't have been anything the four children ate together, Mrs. Dudgeon said, because her two were all right. As she said this, she was called back to her own house, where Elizabeth had gone into convulsions.

By this time the two boys also were stricken, and the parents rushed all four children to the office of Dr. Frederick H. Morrison, where the two girls died before the doctor could learn what had happened to them.

Later, one of the boys managed to talk. They were playing on the lot of William Hendershott, he said. They found wild strawberries, which they ate, and lumps of white stuff, which they took to be sugar and ate with the berries.

Greatest Census in History Will be Authorized Today

Hoover Expected to Sign Bill That Provides for Count of All Persons and Property, Listing Unemployed in United States During 1930.

(United Press.)

The greatest inventory of life and property ever undertaken will be authorized when President Hoover signs the census reapportionment bill passed last week by Congress. He is expected to affix his signature today.

The measure authorizes a census of the population, agriculture, irrigation, drainage, distribution of goods and unemployment throughout the United States and its possessions. More than $39,500,000 will be appropriated for the vast project.

An army of 100,000 persons will start gathering data on May 1, 1930. Their task of counting persons, animals and goods in cities must be completed within two weeks and in country districts within a month. Another force of 6,000 persons in the Census Bureau must then compile, interpret and publish the figures so gathered within six months.

Although the practice of census taking is almost as old as Government itself, history recording that King David ordered a count of his people some 3,000 years ago and found 1,300,000 "valiant men that drew the sword," the 1930 census of American wealth and property will be the most extensive ever compiled.

This Government was the first in the world to make a decennial census a constitutional requirement. The first count was taken shortly after George Washington's inauguration. It required more than a year and showed

Post-Fox Contest is Open Door to Fame in Movies

Capital Girl's Success in Ziegfeld Film Is Typical of Chance.

Success of Althea Marie Elder, 10 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor H. Elder, of 1919 Seventeenth street northwest, in landing a place in Florenz Ziegfeld's forthcoming screen revue, "Glorifing the American Girl," is typical of the fame which is just around the corner for some one in the Post-Fox Screen Test Contest which opened yesterday.

This little Washington girl caught the eye of the famous producer of the "Follies" by her dancing and singing, together with a pleasing personality, and the result of the screen tests offered by The Post may give numerous other Washington children and also adults the opportunity to "crash" into the motion picture game.

MOTOR STOPPED OVER SEA, LOTTI REVEALS

AMERICAN BOY FINDS SELF NEARLY IGNORED

Flight of Westward Attempt Is Made; Air Ministry Consent Needed.

Paris, June 16 (A.P.).—Three gallant Frenchmen swooped down out of the clouds this evening to the acclaim that had awaited them for two days for being the first to blaze the name of France on the dangerous air route over the Atlantic.

Jean Assolant, Rene le Fevre and Armeno Lotti, jr., had been taken to the heart of France tonight for their flight without stop from Old Orchard, Me., to Comillas, Spain, only a few miles short of their goal of French territory. They supplied that missing link in two hops today and came down out of the clouds at 8:47 p. m. (2:47 p. m. Eastern standard time), to be hugged, kissed and cheered by their relatives and a large crowd that awaited them at Le Bouget Airport.

Assolant gave this audience a thrill by his dramatic touch in streaking over the field at 150 miles an hour and landing while the Yellow Bird still was going more than 60 miles an hour.

Last 15 Minutes Worst.

"The last quarter hour was the worst," he said, as he jumped from the cockpit, and his mother smothered him with kisses. Lotti summed up the experience of all of them when he said "the transatlantic flying problem has not yet been solved."

How close tonight's heroes came to finding a watery grave like the many others who had preceded them was told when Lotti received newspaper men in the dining room of his father's hotel. "Our motor stopped in midocean and really we were scared," he said.

Assolant interrupted him with, "Speak for yourself, Armeno. Say you were scared. I did not have time to be scared."

Arthur Schreiber, the 22-year-old stowaway whom the aviators had brought to Paris with them, was rather neglected by the French enthusiasts but managed to get in a word. "Yes, there was a time when it did look bad."

Leaking Valve Cause

It developed that the trouble was due to a leaking valve which the fliers thought had been fixed up before they took off from Old Orchard on Thursday "When we felt the motor drying up on Friday night," Assolant said, "we took a quick look over the side and decided we had reached the shores of France between Biarritz and Bordeaux. We made up our minds to land there. No one was on the beach when we landed. Lotti had to borrow a bicycle from the parish priest to go to Comillas for assistance."

Assolant added succinctly, "I went to sleep."

Aviation Minister Laurent-Eynac and Norman Armour, American charge d'affairs, with representatives from the foreign office and the American Embassy were waiting at the field, but the first words of Assolant, first man out of the plane, were "Where is mother" Mother was right there.

"I would like to get a glass of white wine," Assolant said immediately after his mother let him escape from her embrace. The aviator was carried to the headquarters of the Thirty-fourth regiment where the aviation minister and Commandant Renvoise officially received the aviator.

"Where do I come in?" asked Schreiber.

"You were lucky to have come in at all," one Frenchman remarked.

Stowaway Given Blame.

Lotti admitted that the weight of the stowaway undoubtedly prevented the Yellow Bird from reaching France. "We had dispensed with every ounce of extra weight, not even taking bananas or gum boots, and Schreiber endangered our lives by his act. It is safely over now. I bear him no hard feelings, but when I was startled 20 minutes from Old Orchard by his hand on my shoulder I wanted to wring Schreiber's neck.

"I made Schreiber sign a rude contract aboard the plane providing for a 50-50 split of all newspaper earnings with Assolant and Le Fevre. I have signed him up with the same syndicate as myself so th' stories won't repeat and spoil each other's value. I have signed Schreiber for $20,000 for an exclusive story for a syndicate."

Lotti added, "Schreiber was an unwelcome guest aboard the plane, but he will now be my guest at my hotel because of my warm friendship for him."

Amazed They Failed.

"We thought we were over France when we landed," Lotti said. "Our fright when our feed pipes apparently became blocked in midocean had subsided. We knew we had about 50 gallons of gasoline left, but once more the motor began to sputter. So Assolant said, 'Here we have reached France; let's get down.' We were most surprised when the first men we met spoke no French."

One thin sandwich and some fruit was all the fliers ate during the trip. "Somehow or other it seems one doesn't get very hungry on these transatlantic flights," Assolant said, as if flying the Atlantic was a weekly achievement with him.

Assolant's first endeavor after kissing his mother was to call up his bride of a week by transoceanic telephone. He did not appear at the hotel for an hour after the others arrived, and it was learned that he had put in a call for late tonight.

"Everything is lovely," he said as he arrived at the hotel. His mother asked him, "We were worried about you. Where have you been?"

Big Crowd at Hotel.

The crowds around the Hotel Lotti were even larger than at Le Bourget. They gave vent to their pent-up enthusiasm with abandon. Each of the aviators received cheers in turn, but the crowd seemed decidedly cool toward Schreiber. He was unperturbed, however, and smiled and posed as if the welcome had been prepared especially for him.

Pilot Jean Assolant when asked whether he was ready to pilot the plane westward, said: "I am not ready to decide on that yet. I must look after by little Florida alligator." He was stroking the small mascot of the Yellow Bird.

Armeno Lotti, jr., with the successful eastward flight of the Yellow Bird hardly over, tonight said: "We will try to make it the other way next time. Paris to New York and without stops anywhere." Lotti added, "Perhaps officialdom will permit us to try it now that we have proved we can do it."

Whether the return flight would be attempted this summer was not said.

"PHANTOM BURGLAR" ADMITS 100 THEFTS

LOOT MAY BE $25,000

New York, June 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A "phantom burglar," who for the past two months has kept Queensborough detectives from sleeping and whose skillful plundering of husbands' pockets at night, has caused more than one household quarrel, was captured early today at Jackson Heights. He immediately confessed responsibility, police said, for more than 100 burglaries in Queens during the past ten weeks, not to mention many in other boroughs in the preceding months.

The prisoner is a young German, Max Schatz, who since last November has been living in a $5 room on East Seventy-sixth street, Manhattan, a respectable German lodging house, where he was accepted at face value as a night elevator operator. He said he had learned his skill at burglary while a policeman in Germany.

Thence he went forth with nightly industry, and with what Queens detectives found the most irritating recklessness, to perform petty thefts which police expect may total $25,000 in loot.

Daily the reports came: A burglar had climbed in an open first-floor window, and sometimes had clambered across a bed without waking the sleepers. He had stripped the husband's clothes, scanned the dresser drawers for such jewelry as he could carry in his pocket, and slipped out through a door or window. Sometimes he had carried the trousers with him, to discard them in the street. Several times, according to Lieut. James Smith, he left so little trace of his visits that husbands accused their wives of picking their pockets.

Early today Detective Al Boller, who had been called in from Flushing to help in the vigil, saw a man dart into a driveway, and followed.

Boller grabbed the man's feet as he started to lift himself through a window. In his pockets were found 35 pawn tickets, and in the face of this evidence the prisoner quickly broke down under Lieut. Smith's questioning and talked freely about himself. He couldn't remember what or how many places he had entered. He told the detectives he had been sending the proceeds of his thefts to his wife in Germany, and had intended to return there where he had "made his pile," to live in comfort.

Women to Be on Planes In Two Endurance Tests

New York, N. Y., June 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Two airplanes, each carrying a woman, will start, probably early Monday morning, from Roosevelt Field in an attempt to shatter the endurance flight record recently smashed by the Fort Worth, in Texas. The Three Musketeers will go up first with Martin Jensen, Mrs. Jensen and William Ulbrich, while the second plane will carry Miss Viola Gentry, and a still unannounced copilot, probably an Army flyer.

Both ships will be refueled in the air by Henry B. Clarke, who formerly flew the Three Musketeers, in a giant Fokker plane. Jensen will use a Bellanca monoplane with 220-horsepower Wright whirlwind motors, and Miss Gentry will use a Cabinaire biplane with a 110-horsepower Warner motor. Both ships may broadcast during the flights.

Schreiber Crowned Clown As Crowd Neglects Fliers

Hilarious Parisians Carry Young Stowaway Aloft as He Waves American Flag; Attempt to Speak Squelched by Fellow Countryman.

Paris, June 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Arthur Schreiber, the Yellow Bird's young stowaway, is the clown of Paris. It is a long time since fortune delivered into the hands of Parisians anything so joyous as he.

They gave him a wonderful reception. They rushed out on the field at Le Bourget airdrome, neglected the flyers, but seized him, threw him in the air and rushed off with him on their shoulders, glad thousands chasing merrily behind.

Arthur—Paris calls him are-tuor with heavy Parisian rolls of the R—proudly waved the American flag given the Yellow Bird.

They gave him what is called a "success fou." The garde republicaine on horses with those wonderful horsetail helmets, pranced beside the hurrying tumult—Arthur, an unconscious cheerful irony, with something purely Parisian, mocking him but admiring him as a fool.

The sight of Arthur borne aloft seriously waving the American flag did, however, get to the heart of some of the gay throung who yelled "hurrah for Arthur. Hurrah for America." This only set the rest of the crowd off into wilder and more delirious shrieks.

But Arthur had an eye on the main chance all the time and when he found that the shoulders on which he was riding were working him off toward one of the side hangers to which all hurried and that he was being carried out of the limelight, he kicked at those shoulders and pointed frantically toward the table where the traditional champagne of welcome was set out and where the three flyers were being congratulated, surrounded by their admiring family and friends and what was left of the crowd which could not get near enough to Arthur.

So they hoisted him into the part even more hilariously and Arthur, getting in front of Assolant, decided it was the moment to make a speech.

Congress Librarian To Be Given Medal

Owen Young and Owen Wister Also Get Roosevelt Awards.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Owen D. Young, American delegate to the reparations conference in Paris; Owen Wister, novelist and historian, and Herbert Putnam, librarian of Congress, will receive the Roosevelt medals for distinguished service this year, James R. Garfield, president of the Roosevelt Memorial Association, announced tonight.

Young is honored for his work in connection with the settlement of the reparations question; Wister, author of "The Virginian" and "When West Was West," for his contributions to American literature depicting the life of the Western frontier, and Putnam for his 30 years' service as director of the Library of Congress.

The medals will be bestowed on October 27, the seventy-first birthday anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt, at a banquet at his birthplace here.

Peruvian Fliers at San Jose.

San Jose, Costa Rica, June 16 (A.P.).—The Peruvian aviators, Pinillos and Zegarra, who are flying from New York to Lima, arrived here at 9:40 this morning from Managua.

HOOVER TO ASK BIG FARM FUND TODAY

Special Message to Congress Will Urge Appropriation of $150,000,000.

SEEKS EXPERTS ON BOARD

(Associated Press.)

With his views on farm relief given a place at last upon the statute books of the Nation, President Hoover is devoting his attention to the selection of the eight men who will administer the agricultural program as members of the newly created Federal Farm Board.

For special reasons, the Chief Executive is anxious that the program be put into operation at the earliest possible date. Indications are that a bumper crop of wheat will be harvested within the next few months, which, added to the carry-over from last year, may produce a serious surplus. This situation gives the board a problem of huge proportions to cope with at the outset. But while Mr. Hoover wants the board to apply itself to this situation as quickly as possible, he believes that in a larger sense the success of his farm program will hinge primarily upon the individual capabilities of the members of the board. For this reason he is exercising the utmost care in making his selections.

Two Weeks for Selections.

Two weeks and perhaps three are expected to elapse before the personnel is complete.

Of several hundred names that have been advanced for the President's consideration in selecting the board, two have taken a fairly definite place upon his tentative roster of members. They are James C. Stone, of Lexington, Ky., president of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, and Carl Williams, the publisher of an Oklahoma farm paper and a former member of the Federal Board of Mediation.

In a formal public statement, Mr. Hoover has set up several definite standards by which he will be governed in making his selections. The members of the board must be partially distributed regionally throughout the country and at the same time they must be chosen with a view of giving each major branch of agriculture representation.

Must Have Pertinent Experience.

The board, too, must be composed of men of actual farming experience who have engaged in directing farmers' marketing organizations, since the activities of the new farm agency will deal very largely with these cooperatives.

In addition, Mr. Hoover is anxious that one member be equipped with a broad experience in the field of general business and that another shall have had special experience in the field of finance.

Mr. Hoover expects to send a special message to Congress today requesting the appropriation of funds for putting the program into operation. Of the $500,000,000 authorized by the bill, the President has announced he will ask for an appropriation of $150,000,000. He feels that, since Congress will be in session except for short intervals, the board will be able to ask for further appropriations as they are needed.

2 Chevy Chase Women, Motoring in Ohio, Hurt

Zanesville, Ohio, June 16. (A. P.). Two school teachers, Cora Bowen and Ellia Baker, No. 6 Melrose street, Chevy Chase, Md., en route from Oak Park, Ill., to their home, were injured late today when their automobile overturned near here.

Taken to a hospital here, Miss Bowen's condition was described as serious. She was hurt internally, it was believed, and bruised severely. Miss Baker was cut and bruised. Their automobile skidded in passing another machine on a curve, hospital attaches were told, and rolled down bank.

Six Sets of Twins to Take Part in Double Wedding

Anderson, Ind., June 16 (A.P.).—Six sets of twins will participate in a double wedding here Tuesday night, when Misses Alverta and Lavera Morgan, twin daughters of Mrs. Terence Camack, of Vincennes, will become the bride of Paul Breitweiser, of Chicago, and Herman Smith, of Flint, Mich., respectively.

Vocal numbers at the ceremony will be sung by Indianapolis twin girls, while the wedding march will be played by twin sisters from Vincennes. Two sets of Vincennes twins will be bridesmaids, while still another pair, 4-year-old Anderson girls, will be flower girls.

Three Planes in Waiting For Green Flash Crew

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 16 (U.P.). Roger Q. Williams and Lewis Yancey, whose Green Flash airplane was wrecked on the beach at Old Orchard, Me., last Thursday when they attempted to follow the Yellow Bird on a flight across the Atlantic, said on a visit here today that three planes were available for their immediate use for an Atlantic crossing.

They did not indicate who owned the planes, nor did they make any definite statement as to their future plans. The Green Flash, they said, will be repaired and made ready for an ocean flight, but they indicated they would not wait for the Flash.

The party's platform advocated public control and operation of a unified transit system without profit, reorganization of the police department, continuance of the emergency rent laws and abolition of old law tenements.

Heavy, Distant Quake Is Recorded in Capital

(Associated Press.)

Heavy earth tremors, estimated by Director Tondorf to have been about 6,900 miles from Washington, were recorded last night on the seismograph of Georgetown University.

Starting at 7 minutes after 6, the tremors lasted more than two hours, with the heaviest quakes at about 7 o'clock.

Man, Mother Dead, Sought Here.

Washington police last night were asked by officials of Sewickley, Pa., to help locate William McCormick, of Sewickley, who is believed to be stopping in Washington on a short visit here, to inform him of the death of his mother in Sewickley yesterday. Lieut. W. O. Embrey, of Detective Headquarters, instituted a check on Washington hotels.

Wild Rabbits, Squirrels Kill Virginia Chickens

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., June 16.—Bears, rabbits and red squirrels are threatening the cattle, sheep and hog and chicken industries of Rockingham and Page counties. Near Elkton, Rockingham County, bears have been killing large numbers of cattle, hogs and sheep. Yesterday a bear weighing between 300 and 400 pounds chased Mrs. Benton Miller, living near Morning Star Church, 4 miles east of Luray, from her barnyard while she was milking cows.

Rabbits—for the first time ever known—are killing and carrying off chickens in the Rileyville neighborhood in Springfield District, this county, while red squirrels are killing many chickens in the eastern end of Marksville District, according to reports reaching Luray.

AMERICANS TO WED IN VATICAN STATE

Frank D. Comerford and Miss Mary McLoughlin Will Set Precedent.

GEN. LOGAN WILL ATTEND

Vatican City, June 16 (A.P.).—The first American wedding to be solemnized within the confines of the newly created Vatican State will tomorrow join Frank D. Comerford, president of New England Power Association, and Miss Mary M. McLoughlin, a graduate of Simmons College and Boston University Law School. Both bride and bridegroom were born in Worcester, and Mgr. Francis J. Spellman, of Whitman, Mass., will be the celebrant in one of the private chapels of St. Peter's Basilica.

Mr. Comerford also is vice president and treasurer of the International Paper & Power Co., and Miss McLoughlin was assistant to the late G. Stanley Hall when he was president of Clark University of Worcester.

Gen. Edward L. Logan, war time commander of the 101st Infantry, Twenty-sixth Division, A. E. F., and Mrs. Logan have come to Rome for the ceremony, flying most of the way from Paris after debarking from the President Harding. The general, who like the bridegroom is a member of the Papal Order of Knights of Malta, will be best man, and Mrs. Logan will be matron of honor.

Mrs. Mary J. Comerford, mother of the bridegroom; George T. Hughes, president of the New Hampshire Bar Association, and Mrs. Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Graustein will be among the few witnesses of the nuptial low mass. The Pope is sending a special benediction through Mgr. Spellman.

The couple will entertain their witnesses and a few other friends at a wedding breakfast in the Hotel de Russie, the same in which Gene Tunney was married. Their honeymoon trip will take them through Italy, Switzerland and France.

Baltimorean Held On Whisky Charge

Accused of Transporting 720 Quarts, Possession and Reckless Driving.

Claud Vernon Green, 32 years old, of Baltimore, was being held last night at the Thirteenth Precinct Station on charges of transporting 720 quarts of whisky, illegal possession of whisky and eckless driving. He was arrested by Policemen J. D. Martin and M. R. Gore.

In the incidental sent into headquarters in the case, police reported that Green is believed to have been the driver of an automobile which several days ago crashed into a trolley pole at Jefferson street and Georgia avenue and a few minutes later felled a tree at Ingraham street and Georgia avenue.

Two other men, Nick Russo, 21 years old, of Baltimore, and Joseph Gleason, 22, of 73 K street northwest, also listed as arrested by Policemen Martin and Gore, also were being held at the station. They were charged with investigation. Policeman J. O. Patton, in charge of information at the station, refused to state whether they were arrested with Green.

Later in the night inspectors at headquarters learned from the station that Green was arrested while driving a truck bearing a bread sign, and that Russo and Gleason were arrested at the same time in another automobile, the arresting policemen believing they were convoying the truck.

War Secretary's Plane Reaches Bolling Field

An all-metal Ford monoplane, powered by three Wasp engines, which has been assigned to F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for aviation, as his personal plane, arrived at Bolling Field yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It had been piloted from Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, by Capt. Robert G. Breene, who brought his father along as passenger.

The big plane, which carries the insignia of the Capital Detachment on its sides, is the last word in luxurious appointments. In addition to well upholstered seats for the passengers, it is equipped with a lavatory and a large dustproof clothes cabinet. The fittings are elaborately turned, and the interior is finished in olive drab.

Agents Investigate After Seizing Gems

U. S. Refuses to Return $150,000 in Diamonds to Mrs. Factor.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—The New York Herald-Tribune will say tomorrow that special Treasury agents have been investigating both here and abroad the past history, the relatives and present connections of Mrs. Rella Factor, formerly of Chicago, from whom approximately $150,000 worth of diamonds were "temporarily seized" and retained at the appraiser's stores when she arrived on the French liner Ile de France on May 28.

Customs officials said the Treasury agents have declined to release the jewelry, despite Mrs. Factor's insistence that she is an English subject and had no intention of selling the diamonds here.

Mrs. Factor, who is about 30, said her husband is John Factor, a wealthy London stockbroker, and that she returned to America to visit friends. An unnamed official said she denied she was the wife of Jacob Factor, a former Chicago barber, who in 1927 was held in $10,000 bail on a charge of fraudulent use of the mails in raising $1,500,000 in a Florida land deal. She is reported now to be in Chicago.

Air and Rail Route Extended to South

New Orleans to Be Reached From New York in 20 Hours.

New Orleans, La., June 16 (A.P.).—Twenty-hour air and rail passenger service between New York and New Orleans will be started within the next two weeks by Southern Air Transport, Inc., and the Southern Railroad, it was announced today by Sidney F. Souers, a director of Southern Air Transport, upon his return from a directors' meeting in New York.

Under the plan proposed for the new service the passenger route of the Southern Air Transport will be extended eastward from Atlanta as far as Greensboro or Charlotte, N. C. Passengers leaving New York at night on the Piedmont Limited will be picked up the following morning at Greensboro or Charlotte and brought to New Orleans by plane, arriving at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The Piedmont Limited arrives in New Orleans the second morning after leaving New York.

Similar service is to be attended between New York and Dallas and Fort Worth, Tex., with the hour of arrival at Fort Worth fixed for 4 p. m. Passengers for the Texas city will be transferred from the Charlotte-New Orleans Air Line at Montgomery.

The service will inaugurate the first combined air and railroad passenger route in the South.

U. S. Flier of French Unit Is Killed in Speedboat

Juan les Pins, France, June 16 (A.P.) George Graham Bullen, a sergeant in the Lafayette Escadrille during the World War, and one of six Americans who later flew for France in the Morocco campaign, was killed off the coast here today. A fast motorboat on which he was a passenger flung him overboard in making a sharp turn and the propeller severed his spine.

Bullen was born in Kenosha (said to be in Ohio, but probably in Wisconsin), on December 24, 1895. He had lived in Miami, Fla., but more recently resided at Antibes, near here. The motor boat Nikita belongs to an Englishman named Prinsep. Death was instantaneous, for the body was cut in two at the waist.

Women Voters League To Meet in Louisville

Louisville has been selected as the 1930 convention city of the National League of Women Voters during the week of April 28, according to announcement by that organization from its headquarters here yesterday.

This gathering, the second of the league in the South, will commemorate the tenth anniversary of the founding of the organization. Special celebration features are being arranged for the occasion, because one of his commissioners in the army, who was a converted chimney sweep, taught him how to fall on a soft spot and so land unhurt.

WET LEADER WARNS HOOVER OF REVOLT

Fox, Moderator League Head, Says People Will Not Stand Shootings.

HOLDS EXECUTIVE IS LAX

New York, June 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Warning President Hoover that the temper of the people of the country will not much longer stand the killings by prohibition agents and assailing him for inaction, Austen G. Fox, lawyer and chairman of the Moderation League, in an interview today predicted a revolt in this Nation if something is not speedily done to remedy the evils of prohibition enforcement.

Mr. Fox last week sent a letter of protest to President Hoover in the killing at International Falls, Minn., of Henry Virkkula, who was shot by Emmett J. White, customs patrolman, while driving with his wife and two children.

The outcry made by citizens of International Falls, especially after Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition, had exonerated White, prompted Fox's statement.

"Mr. Hoover today," Fox said, "is confronted sharply with a situation concerning which the late Judge Willard Bartlett of the Court of Appeals spoke to me several years ago when we were discussing the prohibition law. He said at that time:

"'I have long thought that empowering the Federal Government with the right to control obedience of all the people to a uniform standard of conduct in matters regarding their personal habits, especially in making a criminal offense of acts, which they are conscious to be no moral turpitude, has in it the seeds of disunion.'"

With this as a text Fox proceeded to accuse the President of inaction.

"Mr. Hoover can not safely put aside the most solemn warning that has ever been made to the people of the country," he said. "It was made in no casual or informal statement, but in an address to the American Bar Association in August, 1922, and the words were the words of Mr. Hoover's immediate predecessor in office.

"Calvin Coolidge had chosen as the subject of his address 'The Limitation of Law,' and this is what he said:

"'In a republic the law reflects, rather than creates, the standards of conduct. To dragoon the body when the need is to convince the soul will end only in revolt.'

"Mind the word 'only.' The voice of the men from Minnesota carries with it the conviction that this country may be closer to a realization of the truth of what Mr. Hoover said than many of us suspect.

"What justification can Mr. Hoover offer if he remains silent? The power to remove, on the spot, the man in the prohibition unit who furnished sawed-off shotguns to the men they send to patrol the highways of the country, carries with it some degree of responsibility.

"May not inaction in the man who has that power seem to some to warrant the inference of content? At any rate, it carries with it no idea of disapproval."

Fox said that President Hoover, in a speech criticizing certain States for not passing laws to enforce the prohibition laws, was "mixing up in what was none of his business" while "keeping his hands off the present crying situation."

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

SUGAR is fast becoming, in the present tariff bill, what wool, under the notorious schedule K was to the Payne-Aldrich act. Meanwhile, more midnight oil is being burned over it and more worry caused to more different groups of interested persons, than probably any other ten schedules of the Hawley bill

President Hoover is terribly concerned. He wants to encourage the beet sugar industry in this country. He would like to see the Louisiana cane raisers, and the new development which he visited in February around Lake Okeechobee, in Florida, successful, but he is alarmed at the protests which have been pouring in. He has studied political history carefully and he remembers that a Democratic House was elected after the victory of the wool growers on schedule K.

• • • •

UP IN the Commerce Department Secretary Lamont has some bright young men working out sliding scales for the sugar tariff. If the price of sugar goes up, the tariff schedule will go down. If the price of sugar goes down, the tariff rate will go up. Thus, President Hoover hopes, can the domestic sugar industry, both beet and cane, be protected, and yet the consumer not be driven to such anger that he might vote for the Democratic ticket next year.

But if any one is happy over this proposed sliding scale arrangement, he or she is concealing it with considerable histrionic ability. As soon as a definite scale is publicly announced, of course it will have adherents. The general opposition at present is due to the fact that no one knows at what price the "administration" scale will "stabilize," or peg, sugar.

One highly unofficial scale, which, nevertheless, came out of the Commerce Department, determines the duty by the price of refined sugar, wholesale, in New York.

It is disturbing to every one of the various groups lobbying here one way or the other on the sugar schedule, with the single exception of the Philippines. There are many technical objections, such as to fixing a duty on raw sugar based on refined prices, to price fixing in general, to the failure to make proper allowance for freight rates, &c. But the chief objection is that it deprives the beet or cane grower from any chance of an occasional bonanza year.

• • • •

INCIDENTALLY, every group of sugar interests represented here agrees privately that the only real, permanent hope is in limitation of the amount of sugar the Philippines may send into this country duty free. But no one of them now dares fight for the one objective they assert must eventually be their goal.

Secretary of State Stimson seems to have won a masterly victory when he protested against any limitation on Philippine sugar imports.

The Cuban group is afraid to demand Philippine limitation lest it be accused of bad taste in asking the United States to discriminate against territory under the American flag.

The beet sugar growers divide into two groups, the Great Western Co. of Colorado and the others. The Great Western makes money. The "others" plead extreme poverty. The "others" must have immediate higher prices for sugar to be saved. Only an increase in the tariff, they think, would accomplish that. The Great Western would prefer limitation on the Philippines, but for policy's sake goes along with the other beet producers.

So do the cane producers.

SO all of the domestic producers, beet, cane and Hawaiian, are fighting for the flat duty of 2.4 cents on Cuban sugar imposed in the House bill. The Philippine contingent is agreeable.

President Hoover is expected to throw all the strength he can muster to substitute a sliding scale. The outcome is highly doubtful. But the present line-up may foreshadow some interesting history with respect to the Philippines. Every one remembers how much sentiment William Jennings Bryan was able to work up for giving those islands their independence. The Senate of the United States voted, during consideration of the Jones bill, to set the islands free on a day to be fixed by the President not more than four nor less than two years after the passage of that act!

Had the House accepted that amendment, which President Wilson urged it to do, the Philippines would have been cut loose approximately ten years ago! And had not the Tammany delegation bolted the Democratic caucus, that amendment would have been adopted.

• • • •

SINCE that important vote, which the big news of the war so effectively blanketed that few persons now recall it, the beet sugar industry has spread in this country until there are now beet sugar mills in seventeen States. Florida has joined Louisiana in cane growing, while New York banks now represent American investors' money to the extent of more than $1,000,000,000 in Cuba.

All of which may be important the next time there is a drive to give the Philippines their independence.

HOOVER TO SIGN BILL FOR U.S. CENSUS TODAY

about 4,000,000 persons living in the 868,000 square miles then comprising the United States.

Now the country's population is increasing at the rate of about 1,400,000 persons a year, or approximately one person every 26 seconds, so that the population next year is expected to be about 120,000,000, 30 times what it was in 1790, when the first census was taken.

According to census experts, history records no instance where human population has increased so rapidly. Part o fthis growth is due to the excess of births over deaths and part to excess of immigration over emigration.

This is the first time a decennial census bill has authorized a count of the country's unemployed. It is expected to settle the controversy between Republicans and Democrats during the last presidential campaign concerning the extent of unemployment.

Another new feature of the fifteenth decennial census bill is the provisions for figures on the distribution of products. As Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Hoover advocated such a census, and it has been included in the bill at the suggestion of present Commerce Department officials.

The object of placing this added burden on the census enumerators is to discover the channels through which flows the country's vast wealth in domestic trade. Statisticians believe this information will be invaluable to distributors of goods.

The 100,000 persons who go from door to door and farm to farm taking the census will be appointed by the director of the Census Bureau. They will be paid on a "piecework" basis, so much for every nose counted. Their territories will be so arranged that each receives between $75 and $125 for his work.

The country will be divided into 565 districts, each presided over by a supervisor. These, in turn, will be divided into sections of a size which one enumerator can cover. The area of each division will depend upon the density of population, large in the country and small in cities.

Each enumerator will carry charts showing exactly what information he is required to learn. It is a violation of law, punishable by fine and imprisonment, to deliberately misinform or avoid the census taker. All census information is confidential.

BORDER DRY SLAYING REPORT IS PROMISED

"JOHN DOE" CASE HALTS

Plattsburgh, N. Y., June 16 (A.P.).—A report of the shooting to death of Arthur Gordon of this city by men wearing the uniform of customs border patrolmen has been promised the county prosecutor's office tomorrow by John C. Tulloch, collector of the Port of Ogdensburg, District Attorney B. Loyal O'Connell said today.

Until this announcement by O'Connell the customs men had not been definitely linked with the death of Gordon, who was 22 years old and an alleged rum runner. His body was brought to a hospital here Friday night and left by two men, unidentified except for their uniforms which were similar to those worn by border patrolmen. It was learned that Border Patrolmen Cozeney and Cheatham had gone to Ogdensburg to confer with Tulloch.

Collect on Promises Report

The District Attorney said he telephoned Collector Tulloch at Ogdensburg and asked the following question:

"Did you know your men left Plattsburgh for Ogdensburg after the shooting?"

O'Connell said the collector replied that he did know they had, adding that he would submit a report to the county prosecutor tomorrow.

After talking with Tulloch, O'Connell delayed "John Doe" proceedings to subpena all officers at the Mooers station, about twenty miles north of here, for questioning. Future action, he said, depended upon the contents of the report from the collector.

O'Connell said yesterday he learned that Gordon plied 27 cases of beer into his automobile about a mile north of the Canadian border and started for New York State. Persons living on a by-road known as a "booze trail" told the prosecutor they heard five shots and has seen two cars driven by customs men on the road a short time before.

Officers Deny Knowledge.

The district attorney said he believed these cars blocked the road down which Gordon was driving and that Gordon stopped his car and fled.

The shots followed, O'Connell said, and pointed out that the autopsy showed Gordon was shot down from behind. The same persons who heard the shots told investigators that the supposed officers got into Gordon's car and one of their own, drove down the road, stopped and picked up something and continued toward Plattsburg.

Acquittal of Dry Slayers Popular, Asserts Pickett

(United Press.)

Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, yesterday branded as "stuff and nonsense" reports that the Methodist church officially approved six recent prohibition killings including the Virkkula shooting at International Falls, Minn.

He said the board was in touch with the people and "has found the sentiment of the people to be in accord with court decisions acquitting enforcement oficers charged with murder. As for the board approving dry killings, it is stuff and nonsense."

He said the board "will reserve opinion on the Virkkula incident until all the facts are known."

NORTHERN BAPTISTS TO NAME PRESIDENT

CLERIC SLATED FOR POST

Denver, June 16 (A.P.).—Three ministers and three laymen tonight composed the possible nominees for president of the Northern Baptist Convention, meeting here, to succeed Arthur M. Harris, of New York, now concluding his term of office.

The convention's nominating committee, consisting of a representative from every State division in the Northern territory, tomorrow will make its nomination for this office. The convention customarily accepts the recommendations of this committee.

The ministers mentioned for the post are the Rev. A. W. Beaven, president of the Rochester-Colgate Theological Seminary; the Rev. Dr. David Jones Evans, who will join Dr. Beaven at the school as a member of the faculty, and the Rev. Dr. A. Ray Petty, pastor of the Baptist Temple, Newark, N. J. Dr. Beaven last year was recommended for the presidency, but was unable to accept because of the pressure of his work elsewhere.

The laymen are J. L. Kraft and John Scott, both of Chicago, and J. W. Baker, Pawtucket, R. I. A layman now holds the office of president, and the practice of the convention is to alternate the post between laymen and clerical candidates.

England Visit Permit For Trotzky Reported

Constantinople, Turkey, June 16 (A.P.).—The Mamara newspaper, Son Saat, today states that the British government has given Leon Trotzky permission to visit England. No confirmation of the report was available here.

On the day the Labor government took office in Great Britain, Trotzky, exile from the Soviet Union, whose armies he once commanded, applied for permission to enter England for medical treatment and to carry on "scientific work." The attitude of the British government has not been made known.

BOY REACHES PORT WITH FATHER'S BODY

Maryland Lad Sails Sloop for First Time in Life When Sire Falls Dead.

BATTLES BAY ENTIRE DAY

Oxford, Md., June 16 (A.P.).—John Elliott, 13-year-old son of James H. T. Elliott, of Vienna, Md., made port here tonight after an all-day battle with Chesapeake Bay and a sloop which he did not know how to sail, with the body of his father.

Elliott, sr., took his son out early this morning in his newly bought craft to take it to his home. Shortly before 7 o'clock he became ill and died almost immediately. The son, who had never sailed a boat before in his life, started, and by a trial and error process, sought throughout the day to bring the boat with his father's body safely to shore. He succeeded shortly after 7 o'clock tonight.

When his father was stricken, the lad, knowing it was farther to his home port than to Oxford, where the boat was purchased, made for that closest point, where his uncle, Capt. Isaac Elliott, lived. The boy and the body of his father were at the uncle's home tonight awaiting the arrival of Mrs. Elliott tomorrow.

Airplane Disintegrates, Killing German Gliders

Stuhm, West Prussia, June 16 (A.P.).—Two of the best-known German glider fliers were killed today. The wings broke from the fuselage of an airplane they were flying in the dedication ceremony of a war memorial here. Thousands of persons saw with horror the body of the plane separate from the wings and with the aviators crash into the center of the market place, 150 feet from the memorial. The wings fell into a small lake nearby.

One of the fliers was Ferdinand Schulz, who was credited with world records for both height and endurance in gliders. He was a war pilot and since had flown almost constantly in glider contests in many parts of Europe. Bruno Kaiser, his companion, also was a war veteran.

Decreased Rail Rates Cut Erie Canal Fleets

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—The Munson Inland Water Lines, Inc., announced today that because of decreased grain traffic on the Erie barge canal and a recent reduction in railroad grain rates, operation of several of its canal fleets had been suspended.

"This company feels," the announcement said, "that the present existing available rates on wheat from Buffalo to the seaboard does not justify it in attempting to engage in continued operation at a loss."

American, Gaelic Cause Leader, Buried in Erin

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 16 (A.P.).—The body of John Devoy, Gaelic leader, who died in Atlantic City, N. J., last September, was buried with full military honors today beside other leaders in Glasnevin Cemetery.

Father O'Donnell, of Boston, one of the large American contingent present, in a funeral oration at the grave said there had been no more consistent champion of Irish liberties than Devoy.

DAWES SEES MACDONALD

willingness to go to Washington for a conference, it is understood unofficially.

The Anglo-American naval problem is the outstanding obstacle to disarmament progress, observers pointed out, and the Labor party leader and pacifist certainly would be expected to cooperate as far as possible with any suggestions from Washington which might solve the tangle.

It is becoming increasingly clear that MacDonald is anxious to take an important role in Europe's post-war settlement and in general negotiations for disarmament, which experts believe could be worked out in a practical way if the naval issue is solved.

Political sources close to the government are convinced that today's conversation with Dawes on the Scottish Highlands is the start of a determined effort to solve the problems which endanger peace of the world.

The tone of the communique issued after today's conference and the announcement that the speeches next Tuesday will formally initiate negotiations greatly encouraged observers here and hope for an approach to an era of real peace and genuine reduction of armaments probably was higher tonight than at any time since the brief days of optimism immediately after the armistice—more than ten years ago.

Only the acceptance of the Owen D. Young plan for settlement of German war reparations could make possible such hopes, it was pointed out, but with that agreement opening the way for evacuation of the Rhineland by foreign troops the hope of a disarmament solution was brightened.

Ambassador Dawes was received with acclaim in this little highland village, 10 miles from Lossiemouth, the prime minister's birthplace. The new ambassador, following his program of "split-second diplomacy," arrived by train from London at 1:35 p. m. and was greeted by MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel.

Dawes, who had been laughing and chatting with reporters on the train, put away his famous pipe as the train came to a halt. He received MacDonald in his compartment, both were dressed informally and smiled broadly as they met for the first time in their present offices.

Dawes was one of the first to see and remark on the number of American flags flying in the little highlands town. The crowd, cheering the new Ambassador and asking where he had hidden his pipe, demanded a speech. McDonald climbed on a baggage truck and expressed his thanks for the welcome. Dawes likewise acknowledged the cheers.

They entered a waiting automobile and were whirled away to Logie House, 6 miles through the pine forest. The great estate of Sir Alexander Grant, which had been prepared for the visit, was closed to newspapermen but the Prime Minister and the Ambassador could be seen talking in the large dining room overlooking the wooded valley which was made famous by Shakespeare's witches in Macbeth.

Their host, a life-long friend of MacDonald, left them during the conversation, which lasted a little more than an hour. Then Dawes could be seen sitting at a table while the Prime Minister wrote out the communique. The Ambassador smiled and waved at newspapermen outside and then both stepped out on the porch.

They posed for photographers and, after reading it, MacDonald handed the communique to Dawes, describing the paper as "an historic document."

Before tea time, both the prime minister and the ambassador planted a fir sapling on the grounds at Logie House, commemorating the meeting. They drove away together, going to Aviemore, where Dawes caught a train back to London at 4:30 p. m. MacDonald returned to his home at Lossiemouth.

Dawes gave his impressions of the British prime minister after they had parted at Aviemore.

"The interview was most satisfactory," he said. "No differences of opinion were very evident—the prime minister has given very earnest thought to this problem of world importance and the solution of it is a matter of first importance in his heart.

"The prime minister left an impression of courage, sincerity, honesty, purpose and determination on me," he said. The ambassador indicated that his speech Tuesday night will give details of the conversation and the general situation, and open the channel for negotiations between the United States and Great Britain which other powers are certain to join.

The ambassador's train was delayed 40 minutes at Aviemore due to a breakdown, and arrived two hours late at Perth.

The 30-mile ride with MacDonald from Ligie House to Aviemore, gave the ambassador an opportunity to see the historic valley including the ruined headquarters of "the Wold of Badenoch"—a notorious highland raider who destroyed the Elgin Cathedral. He also saw the valley in which the story of Macbeth is laid and other historic spots.

Juvenile Employment Agency Plans Revealed

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—The State Department of Labor in a statement tonight disclosed working plans for the newly created division for junior placement, the first State division ever instituted in the United States to aid juveniles in obtaining employment.

The division will begin functioning July 1, when Miss Clare Lewis, appointed as its chief by Industrial Commissioner Frances Perkins, will take office. The division means to keep school principals informed as to the junior job market, and in addition will visit each place of employment before and after sending applicants.

VETERAN SALVATION ARMY LEADER DIES

right to appoint his successor, fought the movement to depose him and alter management of the organization. When he failed to win in the high council, where his wife and daughter supported him to the end, he carried the battle to the courts, but finally was forced to submit.

He did not receive his sister, however, during her visit to London while the high council was in session. Commander Booth made several efforts to see her brother when she was in London, but each time it was said he was too ill to receive her.

His condition was not considered dangerous during the last few months, but he suddenly became worse this morning and died at 8:57 p. m. All members of his immediate family, except Col. Mary B. Booth, second daughter of the general, were present. Col. Mary is in Germany, where she is in command of the organization there.

Commander Booth, who returned to New York after the high council meeting in February, recently was injured in an automobile accident, from which she has just recovered.

Gen. Booth was born at the Yorkshire town of Halifax, March 8, 1856, where his parents, William Booth, a crusading young Methodist revival preacher, and his wife, were temporarily stationed. The young Booth grew up in an atmosphere which he was to know all of his life—the street corner sermons and revivals which were conducted by his parents.

Abandoning thoughts of a career as a physician, the young man plunged into the work of his father and, after the mission workers organized as the Salvation Army in 1878, he became an important part of its force.

His father, whose fame was to grow in later years, was a tall, white-bearded man, who often met the jeers and sometimes the threats of street crowds to carry "hope for the most hopeless" to the lowest class of society. The boy in his early twenties became an organizer of the new army and showed such marked ability that he was made chief of staff to his father at the age of 25.

The life was not easy, but the founder of the army thrived on opposition and his son followed closely in the elder Booth's footsteps. While the founder carried on his spectacular campaigns and offered charity and salvation to the hundreds of unfortunates who gathered to hear his roaring voice, the young Booth quietly planned every step and organized every detail to put the army ahead. He helped in a large way to shape his father's policies, but little of the credit came to him until the death of the elder Booth, which made his son commander in chief in 1912.

In the years during which he headed the Army, General Booth made only minor changes in the organization. It continued to prosper and spread over the world, becoming a great organization which collected and handled large sums of money for charity. In this work he was constantly aided by his sister, Evangeline Booth, and by other members of his family, all of whom hold important positions in the organization.

Successor to Gen. Booth Pays Tribute to Genius

London, June 16 (A.P.).—General Edward J. Higgins, successor to General William Bramwell Booth as leader of the Salvation Army, paid tribute to him tonight when told of his death.

"General Booth was a great man. His name will always be linked with his father's as the builder of the army. His sixteen years of leadership embraced the period of the World War, but his skill and wisdom brought the army through as an unbroken international unit.

"The advances made by the organization while he was its head were greater than the most optimistic had dared to expect. His name will be written large on the pages of the history of the army. Gratitude for his life and notable services will be expressed by Salvationists all over the world."

A Try Out Before WILLIAM FOX

George Fawcett, veteran actor, says, "There isn't a hamlet but what has an embryonic picture star."

How many film stars now drawing thousands of dollars per week and the idol of movie fans had an opportunity to try out before one of America's greatest producers?

It is absolutely impossible for directors and producers to personally interview all the motion picture applicants when casting new pictures. But, through the medium of screen testing, they are able to readily judge and pick their "types," and have such descriptions on file for casting as occasion arises.

There is no definite procedure that one can follow to enter the portals of one of the most fascinating workshops in the world—THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO—but in all cases the primary requirement is A MOTION PICTURE SCREEN TEST.

VIRGINIA CHERRILL, a 20-year-old Chicago girl, who never before appeared before a camera, was chosen by Chaplin to play the lead in "City Lights."

HOW TO SECURE A SCREEN TEST

Fill out the registration blank below in detail and secure one new yearly Sunday subscription to The Washington Post. This registers you as a contestant. Bring or mail the blank and subscription to Room 33, The Washington Post. Additional subscription blanks can be secured from the Film Test Manager. There is a sliding scale of subscriptions necessary to qualify.

Six subscriptions brought in during the first week qualifies you for the screen test. Eight subscriptions are necessary if you qualify during the second week, and ten subscriptions will be required if you wait until the last week. All subscriptions secured must conform to rules.

When required number of subscriptions have been turned in to the Film Test Manager and have been verified, you will be notified by our Production Director and an appointment will be made for your INDIVIDUAL SCREEN TEST.

A Motion Picture Screen Test

You may be one of the winners in this great city-wide movie talent quest! Here is a lifetime opportunity to bring yourself to the direct attention of motion picture magnates whose great cry today is for new faces, different "types" and distinctive characters.

RULES GOVERNING SUBSCRIPTIONS

1—All subscriptions must be for Sunday Post for a period of one year.

2—All orders must be secured from persons not at present having The Sunday Post delivered at their residence and who have not had The Sunday Post delivered for a period of two months or over.

3—All subscriptions are subject to verification and rejection if found to be contrary to rules.

4—A one-month payment on the subscription, twenty-five cents (25c) will be collected by party who verifies the subscription for The Washington Post. All subscribers will be required to pay in advance each month thereafter.

5—No cash is to be collected by contestants on orders secured in Washington or immediate suburbs.

6—Where mail subscriptions are accepted these must be accompanied by cash for the full year as follows:

Maryland and Virginia.....$4.00
All Other States.....$5.00

Subscribers must understand they are signing a valid contract which is not subject to cancellation. Subscriptions must be turned in to the office of The Washington Post the same week as secured in order that the paper may be started the following Sunday.

Will Be Made of Washington Boys-Girls-Children-Adults by The Washington Post and The Fox Theater

The Washington Post is of the firm opinion that a city-wide search through the medium of screen testing will disclose a wealth of available, but unknown, talent in Washington. With this thought in mind The Washington Post offers all those who qualify—girls, boys, children, adults, regardless of age or sex—AN INDIVIDUAL MOTION PICTURE SCREEN TEST of themselves. Read the details of this bona fide and unusual offer—the only one of its kind ever made in the National Capital.

Register Today.

As a bonus to the early workers, The Post has arranged a sliding scale of subscriptions necessary for the Screen Test.

Week—June 16 to 23..... 6 subscriptions
Week—June 24 to 30..... 8 subscriptions
Week—July 1 to July 6.....10 subscriptions

Qualify the first week. All subscriptions must be in the hands of the Screen Test Manager by 6 p. m. Saturday to qualify for the week's scale.

For Further Information See SCREEN TEST MANAGER, ROOM 33,

The Fox Theater will show all screen tests made on all their regular programs for a period of one week. If you aspire to a screen career, here is a chance to determine your eligibility. Ten winners will be selected as outstanding picture types by a competent and impartial board of judges. Each of these ten winners will receive a six-month complimentary ticket to the Fox Theater, with the added honor of having their film tests submitted for review by the producers and directors of the FOX FILM CORPORATION in New York City.

The Screen Needs All Types.

A child part must be played by a child—sweet sixteen must be sweet sixteen, not only in years but in appearance "off stage" as well as on—the stage mother, aunt, old maid, &c., must be played by those possessing the appearance in private life—the handsome hero—the gallant old gentleman—each must look the part. Character actors are in great demand. You need not have beauty or youth if you possess character that screens.

U. S. EXPERTS' WORK LAUDED BY POINCARE

Says France Can Meet Debts if Germany Executes Her Payments.

CAILLAUX FAVORS PACT

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Raymond Poincare, prime minister of France, in the July issue of the magazine Foreign Affairs, warmly praises Owen D. Young and J. P. Morgan for the part they played in the recent reparations conference, and calls on all governments concerned to "not delay an hour" in acting upon the experts' reports.

"The happy end after such a weary time of waiting," M. Poincare writes, is due in large measures to the patience, competence, and good temper shown by Mr. Young and Mr. Morgan, the American experts.

"• • • The American experts, who had the highly ungrateful task of serving as arbitrators between debtor and creditors, were able to keep alive the general good will and to inspire every one with a strong desire not to let the conference fail."

Claims Sacrifices Made.

In his article, which marks the tenth anniversary of the signing of the treaty of Versailles, to be celebrated June 28, M. Poincare says that "the French experts agreed that their country should assume a very large part of the common sacrifice, in order to demonstrate their conciliatory attitude and make possible the general arrangement which was finally reached."

"The program laid down will not indemnify France for even one-half the sums she had to spend during these past ten years to restore the devastated regions," he writes, "she will get nothing to indemnify her war victims—mutiles, widows, orphans. A great load will continue to weigh down the French budget.

"None the less, if Germany executes her payments to us regularly, we shall be in a position at least to pay our foreign debts punctually."

Caillaux Urges Ratification.

Paris (Monday), June 17 (A.P.).—Writing in the periodical Capital, which appears today, Joseph Caillaux, former premier and former minister of finance takes the position that it is impossible for France to refuse to ratify the war debt accords.

He reports, however, that ears have been tingling for days with remarks "don't pay." He holds that refusal to ratify would not only be a stain on the national escutcheon but would be to risk economic reprisals and financial isolation in the future.

As for a safeguard transfer clause, the former minister observes that it would be difficult for America to accord to France that which she has already refused England. He accepted British figures estimating that the United States in settlement has forgiven 51 per cent of the French debt and that the British had forgiven 53 per cent.

both of whom, police said, have criminal records. Police also were seeking Philip "Blackie" Traynor, 29-year-old gangster, in connection with the shooting. Traynor is under indictment for the killing of Patrolman Masterson, who attempted to block a holdup January 31, 1927, and a bench warrant has been issued for his arrest in that case.

T. B. WALSH RITES TOMORROW

Service Will Be Held at Home, Followed by Solemn Mass.

Funeral services for Thomas B. Walsh, 43 years old, 1529 Monroe street northwest, a World War veteran, who died of heart disease Saturday night, will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock at the home and at 9 o'clock at Sacred Heart Church, Sixteenth street and Park Road northwest, where solemn mass will be celebrated. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Walsh is survived by his mother, Mrs. James Francis Walsh, the widow of Dr. James F. Walsh, who was a practicing physician for many years at 801 New Jersey avenue. The victim of the heart attack had been under treatment at Walter Reed Hospital during the last four years.

Pan-American Road Delegates Chosen

Detroit Man Heads Group Named by Hoover to Attend Parley.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department last night announced the appointment by President Hoover of eight American delegates to the second Pan-American highway conference meeting at Rio de Janeiro August 16.

J. Walter Drake, of Detroit, is named chairman, and other members of the delegation are: H. H. Rice, of Detroit; Senator Tasker L. Oddie, Nevada, and Representative Cyrenus Cole, Republican, Iowa, representing the legislative branch of the Government; Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, who will serve as technical member and economic adviser of the commission; Frank Sheets, of Illinois, and C. M. Babcock, of Minnesota, representing the State highway departments, and Frederick A. Reimer, president of the American Road Builders Association.

The commission will serve as official representatives of the American Government, Congress having authorized its appointment by the President.

St. Peter's Sees Jesuit Beatified

Many Americans Take Part in Colorful Ceremonies for Order's Founder.

Vatican City, June 16 (A.P.).—Father Caludio de la Colombiere, Jesuit founder of the world-wide devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus, gained the rank of the blessed today at the third beatification in St. Peter's this month.

Many Americans, including a special pilgrimage of 150 members of the League of the Sacred Heart, led by Father Charles J. Mullaly, participated in the ceremonies. St. Peter's was elaborately decorated, especially in the niche containing the statue of St. Ignatius, founder of the Jesuits, and the altars of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and St. Margarerita Alacque.

In the afternoon, Pope Pius, accompanied by cardinals, venerated the beatified and remained for benediction at which the pontifical blessing was imparted.

St. Peter's was partly illuminated tonight and a statue dedicated to the Sacred Heart of Jesus, erected on Janiculum Hill near the general headquarters of the Jesuits, was unveiled.

Hoover Fish Camp Big Virginia Asset

Dr. Showalter Declares That Advertisement Is Worth $25,000,000.

Richmond, Va., June 16.—Dr. William J. Showalter, assistant editor of the National Geographic Magazine, himself a Virginian and intensely interested in Virginia, has been greatly impressed by the recent rapid progress of the State.

In a letter just received at Richmond, Dr. Showalter, referring to the fact that President Hoover has established a fishing and recreation camp on the Rapidan River in Madison County, is high in praise of the enterprise and activity of William E. Carson, chairman of the State commission on conservation and development, in bringing this to pass. As regards the value of the President's recreation encampment on the Rapidan, Dr. Showalter writes:

"It is my sincere belief that, measured over the term of years that probably lie ahead for Mr. Hoover in the White House, the worth of this identification with Virginia may be appraised conservatively at $25,000,000. The things that William E. Carson will bring to pass in connection therewith will make it a Nation-wide appreciation of the Shenandoah National Park area as a vacation land. The President's example in finding a playground there will certainly in eight years, lead people to Virginia who otherwise might not have come."

schooner and brought to Astoria. The crew stayed with the ship and it was not believed she was in danger.

The Laurel was owned by the Williams Dimond Co., of this city, and was bound from Portland to Los Angeles and East Coast ports. She was in charge of Capt. L. Johnson.

Lifeboat Is Overturned.

North Head, Wash., June 16 (U.P.).—One of the two lifeboats loaded with 21 of the 30 members of the stricken freighter Laurel's crew, from the wreck, overturned tonight in the surf near here.

The fate of the men in the boat was uncertain. Perry Hill, United States Weather Bureau meteorological observer at the North Head Station, said he believed there was a possibility that they could reach shore safely, as the water is shallow where the mishap occurred.

The after end of the vessel, which was broken in two by the force of the waves, now rests on the sand a half mile offshore. The forward part of the vessel, held by the anchor chain, is circling and rolling over and over. Thundering seas, a thick haze and a driving rain have made it impossible for Coast Guardsmen to reach the disabled craft. Efforts were made to shoot a lifeline aboard the after part of the ship, but proved futile because of her distance from shore.

First distress signals were heard at 2:40 a. m. today. The first S O S said, "Need help immediately. Drifting on beach near North Head."

Three more radio appeals were broadcast. The last came at 3:35 a. m., at which time the apparatus evidently was put out of commission as the vessel broke in two.

Tugs Are Sent to Assist.

Tugs were dispatched to aid in the attempted rescue but the height of the seas made any close approach to the vessel impossible.

The big steel ship, thumping her beam ends against the sand and rocks of the beach, was shattered.

The Laurel, a turbine freighter of 4,296 net tons register, is commanded by Capt. Lew Johnson. She is 393 feet long and of 49 foot beam. The ship was built at Baltimore, Md., in 1919 for the United States Shipping Board.

Outbound from Columbia River ports with a cargo of lumber for delivery to Atlantic coast points via the Panama Canal, the freighter was caught by the heavy gale and thick weather and her turbines were disabled just as the greatest demand on them was being made.

Drifting in the darkness the vessel began sending out frantic radio appeals for aid.

Our regular annual dividend of 20% has been voted and will be returned to Washington policyholders on policies expiring July 1st.

You could have shared in these savings. They are made by—

Selling direct—eliminating high sales costs.

Servicing business direct—which saves overhead expense, delays and misunderstandings.

Insuring responsible, well-managed concerns.

Reducing accidents, thus lowering the rates for Compensation insurance.

Prompt, fair, courteous settlement of claims.

The profits so earned are paid back to policyholders, who own and manage the company. These profits amounted to $2,924,866 in 1928 alone—more than $22,000,000 since organization in 1912.

Investigate this sound, economical plan before you renew your present policy.

THE BORAH RESOLUTION.

Senator Borah supported the Kansas City platform and worked for the election of Herbert Hoover. Even now, after the lapse of six whole months, Mr. Borah still claims to be a Republican. He supported that plank of the Republican platform which reads:

> We realize that there are certain industries which can not now successfully compete with foreign producers because of lower foreign wages and a lower cost of living abroad, and we pledge the next Republican Congress to an examination and, where necessary, a revision of these schedules to the end that American labor in these industries may again command the home market, may maintain its standard of living, and may count upon steady employment in its accustomed field.

Both Herbert Hoover and William E. Borah took this pledge. Mr. Hoover was faithful to it when he issued the call for an extra session at the urgent suggestion of Senator Borah. The President's call read:

> Whereas legislation to effect further agricultural relief and legislation for limited changes of the tariff can not in justice to our farmers, our labor, and our manufacturers be postponed.

In his message to Congress he remained faithful to the pledge given to American labor and industry as well as to the farmers. He said:

> In considering the tariff for other industries than agriculture, we find that there have been economic shifts necessitating a readjustment of some of the tariff schedules.

Now, having been defeated in an attempt to impose the debenture plan upon the country, a plan which Mr. Hoover declared would enrich speculators and defraud the farmers, Senator Borah proposes to violate the Republican party's pledge to American labor and industry. He offers a resolution proposing to confine tariff revision to agricultural and directly related schedules.

If the Republican party should adopt that resolution and act accordingly it would be a traitor to American labor and to the industries that employ labor. By denying protection to labor and industry, which President Hoover proclaimed "can not in justice be postponed," the party would also rob agriculture of its greatest market—the market created by millions of highly-paid American workers engaged in industry.

There is no excuse for the party perfidy which Senator Borah now advocates. There is no necessity for robbing one element of the population in order to relieve another. Mr. Borah bases his resolution upon the assumption that the farmer is about to be robbed for the benefit of labor, and industry. His remedy is to rob labor and industry. Assuming a wrong, he would make it right by committing another wrong. Two wrongs make a right, according to his logic.

The Senate possesses full power to amend the House tariff bill or to strike out all after the enacting clause and substitute a bill of its own. If the House bill favors labor and industry at the expense of agriculture, the Republicans of the Senate are in duty bound to amend the bill, and President Hoover is in duty bound to stand by the Senate revision. So is Senator Borah, who was particeps criminis in inducing the country to place the Republican party in power.

No Republican senator can vote for the Borah resolution without betraying the labor and industry of his State. He can not justify a wrong to one element by insisting that he has given the spoils to another element. That would be bandit justice:

> What he robbed from the rich he gave unto the poor.

Senate Democrats are supporting the Borah resolution for political purposes. That is good sense. They are not responsible for revision of the tariff. It is not up to them to see that labor shall not be robbed for the benefit of the farmer, or the farmer robbed for the benefit of labor. If they can induce the Republican party to support Senator Borah's naive plan to save an ailing patient by murdering the doctor they ought to do so. Then they can do the doctoring themselves.

For the time being the interests of the country are in the hands of the Republican doctor. The agricultural patient is not the only one he must look after. Others are very sick. The lives of all are dependent upon his impartial administration of good medicine. He would not save one by giving poison to another, as Dr. Borah proposes to do.

THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY.

Ever since the manufacture of automobiles became a major industry in America economists have been anticipating the saturation point. It is now reported that there is a feeling among financiers that the industry will soon have to slow down. Estimates for the first half of 1929 indicate that 3,335,000 cars will have been turned out from American factories by the end of June. Approximately 1,000,000 more cars will be produced during the first half of this year than in the corresponding period of 1928. Even though production should decline considerably in the next six months a new high record will be set for the entire year.

Most of the increased production has been in the field of low-priced cars. In April production of low-priced cars ran 58 per cent above last year. But the gain in medium-priced cars was only 3 per cent, and in the more expensive makes 16 per cent. It is remarkable that gains in retail sales are keeping pace with the increased production and in some cases running ahead. For the first four months of 1929 the production gain was 47 per cent and the sales gain 49 per cent. Demands for automobiles increased throughout the country, indicating general healthy, economic conditions. A recent statement from the Department of Commerce showed an increase of 5 per cent in motor factory employes and a wage increase amounting to 9 per cent for the year.

One phase of the industry that is constantly coming to public attention is the rapid growth of automobile exports. While the United States has nearly 77 per cent of the automobiles in the world, foreign countries are beginning to draw heavily on the American factories and to establish factories of their own. Several huge American concerns are building or acquiring factories abroad. No one can pretend to foresee the destiny of the automobile industry, but since there is only one car to every 70 persons in the world, it appears that the peak of production is still far in the future. As long as prosperity continues the American people will invest tremendous sums in automobiles and highways, and as economic conditions in Europe improve its people may be expected to do likewise.

MENTAL DISEASES.

In an address before the Washington Society for Mental Hygiene, Dr. D. Percy Hickling urged the inauguration of a campaign against mental diseases. Achievements in dealing with such diseases as tuberculosis and diphtheria were pointed out. It is not improbable that similar results could be obtained in an organized movement against maladies of the brain.

The same subject was considered at the meeting of the Medical Society of New Jersey at Atlantic City. At the conclusion of an address by Dr. James S. Plant the society passed a resolution calling for appointment of a committee to make arrangements for the campaign. These two, and many other meetings of a similar nature, indicate that more attention is being given mental ailments by the medical profession and public health officials. The close relationship between mental disorders and crime gives the movement special significance.

Too little attention has been given in the past to diseases of the brain. Until modern times a mental ailment was considered incurable, and even today there is a tendency to deny the afflicted the full benefit of scientific treatment. Still more pronounced is the tendency to neglect those who are mentally backward and those whose nervous systems break down under the strain of disappointment, poor health or overwork. Yet the need for intelligent treatment in such cases is much greater than ever before.

The steady increase in the suicide rate indicates greater mental instability. Dr. Hickling reported that hospitals throughout the country maintain more beds for mental patients than for any other class. Life is infinitely more complex than it was a few decades ago. Physical toil has largely given way to mental strain. Considering the changes in environment that have come about in this century, it is not surprising that neurotic disorders are much more frequent. Humanity is not yet fully adjusted to the stresses and strains of the machine age. Psychology, neurology and psychiatry have not developed as rapidly as the new problems that call for solution.

Organization of this campaign is based on the belief that a large portion of mental afflictions are preventable. If the organizers can throw light upon the causes of mental diseases and suggest practical methods by which they can be counteracted their contribution to human welfare will be inestimable. Wonderful results have been achieved in preventing and curing the ills of the body. It is timely to concentrate attention on the afflictions of the mind.

"TEACHING THEM TO THINK."

The recent appointment of Dr. Robert M. Hutchins to be president of the University of Chicago attracted attention throughout the country because of his youth. There seems to be a general feeling that a university president should be a matured, well-seasoned educator with many years of experience to his credit. The choice of a man 30 years of age to preside over one of the largest American universities is novel enough to make him a notable public figure. Every one interested in the modern trends of education has wanted to know more about him and his views. Dr. Hutchins has gratified the public by going to the heart of educational theory in his convocation address.

The conception of education as "a process of settling, or hardening, of the fixation of sound principles and righteous dogma in the youth of America" has no place in his belief. On the other hand he conceives that the purpose of higher education is to "unsettle the minds of young men, to widen their horizon, to influence their intellects." "Education is not to teach men facts, theories or laws," he said. "It is not to reform them or to amuse them or make them technicians in any field. It is to teach them to think, to think straight if possible, but always to think for themselves."

The notion still persists that young men and women have only to spend four years in college to make their success assured. Many people who have never been to college (and that includes the great majority in any country) have not yet overcome the illusion that the universities have something to give their students which will transform them into intelligent men and women with lofty motives. But all who have entered the higher institutions seeking a formula for achievement have been disappointed. If a young man hasn't character, if he hasn't the germs of intellectual interest, if he doesn't care to amount to anything, says Dr. Hutchins, the colleges can't give him a character or intellectual interest or make him amount to anything.

Young Dr. Hutchins can not be given credit for originating this view. His expression of it is nevertheless significant in this day when the university is so widely regarded as a place of business or professional apprenticeship. The address indicates that the dream of the university as a place where the mind is liberated of illusions and dogma and the intellectual faculty is given every assistance for development is still cherished by modern educators. If Dr. Hutchins' views can be taken as representative of the new influence in education, a reaction against the bread-and-butter type of edutation is in the offing.

Mr. NORRIS. Yes.

Mr. CARAWAY. Is it the senator's idea that no one, simply because he is a member of Congress, can be honest and can be trusted?

Mr. NORRIS. No; I have not said anything of that kind, and I have not said anything from which any reasonable man can draw such a conclusion as that.

Mr. CARAWAY. Well, what does the senator mean when he says——

Mr. NORRIS. That is the argument which has been made from the beginning of the civil service.

Mr. CARAWAY. Oh, it is not.

Mr. NORRIS. The argument which the senator from Arkansas is making now is the one which has always been made against the civil service.

Mr. CARAWAY. Well, I know that happens not to be true; it is not an argument against civil service. I am just asking the senator a question.

Mr. NORRIS. That question is an argument against civil service.

Mr. CARAWAY. It is no argument against civil service.

Mr. NORRIS. Then the senator ought not to make it.

Mr. CARAWAY. I am not making it. I am only asking a question.

Mr. NORRIS. If the senator is not making an argument against civil service, then do not ask it.

Mr. CARAWAY. Let me ask the senator——

Mr. NORRIS. Can not the senator wait until I answer one question before he propounds another?

Mr. CARAWAY. I do not think I will live long enough for that.

Mr. NORRIS. Perhaps the senator will not; he need not wait that long.

Mr. CARAWAY. I do not have to wait.

Mr. NORRIS. It does not make any difference to me. If the senator does not want to wait, that is his business.

Mr. CARAWAY. The senator thinks he owns the Senate——

Mr. NORRIS. No; I do not think I own the Senate. That is another statement the senator is absolutely unjustified in making. Have I not a right here to oppose a provision in the bill because I think it is wrong?

Mr. CARAWAY. May I ask the senator a question?

Mr. NORRIS. Yes.

Mr. CARAWAY. What is there about it that the senator should become so angry, when I was merely trying to ask him a question?

Mr. NORRIS. The senator from Arkansas——

Mr. CARAWAY. Now——

Mr. NORRIS. Will the senator allow me to answer that question?

Mr. CARAWAY. I suppose I will stop for the rest of the afternoon.

Mr. NORRIS. Perhaps the senator will; it might be well if he would stop here and wait and listen a little while. It might be well for him. He might get some information perhaps that would be valuable for him.

Mr. CARAWAY. I have listened for a good while, and have not obtained any information as yet.

Mr. NORRIS. The trouble is the senator does not listen.

Mr. CARAWAY. Oh, yes; I do.

Mr. NORRIS. He gets into the debate when there is no call for it.

Mr. CARAWAY. I have been listening for eight years.

Mr. NORRIS. Now, let us get to the senator's question. He has interrupted me so many time since the question was asked that I have forgotten what it was.

Mr. CARAWAY. I knew the senator had, and I tried to set him right.

Mr. NORRIS. Why does the senator say I got so angry about it?

Mr. CARAWAY. Because——

Mr. NORRIS. Now, I remember what the question was. Let the senator keep still while I answer it. Let me answer it. The senator has asked it of me.

Mr. CARAWAY. I know, but I do not expect any candid answer.

Mr. NORRIS. If the senator will keep still, I will answer it; I am going to answer it. The truth is that the senator is entirely wrong when he assumes that I am angry.

Mr. CARAWAY. The senator does not make that kind of a face when he is in a good humor, does he? (Laughter.)

Mr. NORRIS. The senator has looked at so many bad faces that he does not know a good one when he sees it. (Laughter.)

Mr. CARAWAY. I will not admit that.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President, if there is one thing I can not do after my long association here, it is to get angry with the senator from Arkansas.

Mr. CARAWAY. Then, do not look at me in that tone of voice.

Mr. NORRIS. I have, however, seen him go wrong occasionally——

Mr. CARAWAY. Yes; when following the senator from Nebraska.

Mr. NORRIS. And I can not follow him when he goes wrong.

Mr. CARAWAY. That is where I differ with the senator. I follow him when he goes wrong; I could not follow him otherwise.

Mr. NORRIS. The senator would do better if he would follow me when I am right.

Mr. CARAWAY. I have never found the senator to be that way.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Dale in the chair). The senator from Nebraska has the floor. Senators desiring to interrupt must address the chair,

The Slow Horse Wins the Race if Luck Is the Rider

By ROBERT QUILLEN

DOES opportunity make the man or man make the opportunity? The answer, perhaps, is that man makes the opportunity—for the other man.

When the horses pranced at the barrier for the great Kentucky Derby, 21 thoroughbreds in their prime began a contest to determine which of them had the greatest capacity for speed.

Was it in truth a race in which the swiftest was certain of victory? By no means.

Each horse carried a handicap—a burden—a rider. And the rider astride the favorite was heavier than others. Thus the chances of the fittest were lessened at the start.

The horses could not use their own judgment and pick their own footing, for the riders that burdened them were their masters. Thus the hazards were increased again, for the masters of the fleetest horses may have possessed the dullest wits.

The track was not a straight one, providing an equal distance for each horse to run. It curved, and thus no two horses faced a task of equal magnitude. The favorite, ill-favored by chance, drew the outside place and faced the greatest task of all.

Surely fate had done her utmost to make the contest unfair! But, no; disaster came. There are horses that do their best under normal conditions—on a smooth, hard track built for honest speed trials. But there are others that thrive in adversity, when a slippery track gives the reward to recklessness rather than good, sound judgment. When chance sent a storm to make the track heavy, the favorite lost the last of his advantages.

But he had not seen the last of ill fortune. At the first turn he found himself in a pocket—hemmed in and held back by other horses—other horses that could not win a victory but could and did take from the favorite his last chance to win it.

Before that tangled mass at the turn could right itself, precious fractions of a second had been lost and victory had been awarded to an outsider who thrived on adversity.

Do you ask for a better picture of life?

No two boys begin life with burdens of the same weight or have guides of equal skill. No two face tasks and problems of identical magnitude. Frequently there are minor disasters that spoil the chances of the favorites and bring opportunity to the unknown. And though each may do his utmost, his place at the finish will depend on the relative worth of others, for a slow man can win if none but slower men race against him.

The bisa paid of magazine writers does not enjoy that distinction because he competed with other scribes and surpassed them in craftsmanship, but because a country newspaper man died in office.

"Generals prepare for battle," said Foch, "and chance gives victory."

TURN ON THE SUN.

Press a button and turn on the sun!

Many varieties of "health lamps" are now being made to supply artificially the healthful rays of sunshine. Anyone can have a private sun hitched by a few feet of lamp cord to the nearest convenience outlet!

According to authorities, the so-called ductless glands of the body, whose secretions are important in shaping our emotions, are now believed to be affected by the sun—which may account for the cheering psychological effect of a bright sunny day. Certain types of tuberculosis are treated by sunshine, natural and artificial. New curative powers are being found in the rays generated by the sun.

Two types of "artificial suns" are being produced, writes Robert E. Martin in the April Popular Science Monthly. One of these is known as the "mercury vapor" lamp. Its peculiar greenish light is familiar in the studio of any commercial photographer. The other type, the "carbon arc," produces its rays from a pair of white-hot carbons, across which plays an electric arc.

In the development of carbons for the arc type of lamp an important improvement was recently introduced. Behind it lies the romantic story of a young man with a leaning toward photography and an insatiable curiosity. Looking for a suitable light for night picture taking, Roy Mott, a young research engineer, of Cleveland, Ohio, tried hollowing out the carbons of arc lamps and filling them with various substances. When he found the light he sought, he continued experimenting. One of his chance discoveries was a light that duplicated sunshine even more closely than the old type of all-carbon arc. Its source was a carbon filled with the rare earth metal, cerium, ground into a paste and forced into the black sticks with hydraulic presses.

Other types of carbons have been developed for special medical uses. One is filled with an iron core, which gives a bluish light rich in rays that have been used to treat surgical tuberculosis. Another, used especially for rickets, is filled with several metals. A carbon cored with the metal strontium gives a red light containing heat rays that relieve internal congestion. It should be emphasized that the sole justification of a health lamp in nonprofessional hands is to keep a well person well. It should never be used to treat sickness without a doctor's advice.

CHINA'S STONE ROADS.

When I think of traveling in China I always think of the old stone roads, writes Stella Benson in World's Within Worlds. As a matter of fact they can hardly be called roads in the crude Western sense. They are really obstacle race tracks, only to be trodden on foot, in sedan chairs, on buffaloes, bullocks or very sure-footed ponies.

The roads are made of great squared blocks of stone laid on dikes above the rice fields. Many of the laborously laid stones have long since disappeared. Once the road used to cross canals on handsome humpy stone bridges, but now the last straw has broken nearly every bridge's hump and travelers must roll up their trousers and paddle.

But, decayed as they be, these stone roads are brave old roads and fear neither mountain range nor swamp. Their pride still shines forth in the shape of upstanding marble or granite tablets at corners, bridges, crossways or entries to towns—tablets crowned with interknotted dragons and beautifully patterned with the names of the public spirited men who built the roads. Sometimes an arch (commemorating a victory, a hero or a widow who was so virtuous that she never married again) jumps in a curly twist of dragons, elephants or phenixes across the road.

I wish I could remember the days when silk clad mandarins were borne along in palanquins of the various shades that denoted their ranks. When two palanquins met the servants of the mandarins would hold their fans before their masters' faces in order to create a fiction of not having met, since a barefaced meeting would entail an endless polite delay.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Cost of Processing Accounts for Part of the High Cost to Consumers, But It Enhances Values.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of June 11, Mr. H. A. Cruse comments on the difference between the price received by the farmer for corn and that paid by the ultimate consumer for certain corn products, and expresses the hope that Congress, or some other branch of the Government will do something to give the farmer a larger share of the increments.

Mr. Cruse says that while on a dining car he was charged 35 cents for a package of corn flakes, plus a small quantity of sugar and cream, "the package containing exactly three-fourths of an ounce." When we consider the fact that a retail grocer will sell an 8-ounce package of corn flakes for 8 cents, it is very easy to see who is doing some of the profiteering.

In endeavoring to compute the number of ounces of corn flakes in a bushel of corn, Mr. Cruse says he allowed for a loss of 10 per cent in the processing. I have no authoritative figures on the subject, but I was formerly in the milling business, and I think that he should allow at least 30 per cent for loss in the processes of milling and cooking. If this be the case, a bushel of corn, worked up into corn flakes, and sold at the grocer's retail price of 1 cent per ounce, would cost the ultimate consumer about $6.40.

The dining car price for corn flakes, quoted by Mr. Cruse, is about 46 2-3 cents per ounce. Or we might do as he suggests and allow half the cost for the cream and sugar. That would make the corn flakes cost 23 1-3 cents per ounce. Who's the profiteer?

Corn is not the only material which is enhanced in value by process of manufacture. Consider iron. A pound of iron sells for only a few cents, but that same pound of iron, worked up into safety razor blades, will cost the ultimate consumer about $16. And so it goes through the whole realm of industry. HUGH. B. ROSSELL.

Plans for Beautiful Fireworks on Fourth of July—Safety Regulations Observed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Last Tuesday Maj. Pratt issued the annual warning against violation of the fireworks regulations, and a citizens' committee met to lay preliminary plans for the city's Independence Day celebration. It is against the law either to sell or to possess explosive firecrackers, roman candles, skyrockets, pinwheel and other explosives. Only sparklers, colored lights and similar harmless fireworks are permitted.

The citizens' committee plans a drive for $5,000 with which to defray the cost of the community celebration. This sum will cover the expenses of civic center pageants, a parade, the massing of colors in the sylvan theater and a display of pyrotechnics on the Monument grounds. The sum is so small that it should be raised without difficulty. If citizens of Washington will contribute only a small part of the sum they customarily expended for fireworks before the advent of the safe and sane celebration, there will be funds sufficient for a most lavish display of pyrotechnics at the Monument. Those who are interested in furthering the safe and sane idea should contribute gladly in the knowledge that a striking community display will do much to counteract a tendency to violate the fireworks regulations.

Information Soon to Be Available for Philanthropists, Who Can Make Endowments More Effectively.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos the letter of Charles Hooper in today's Post relative to great donations being made to colleges, hospitals and other institutions already heavily endowed.

For many years the lack of knowledge of the financial status of educational and public institutions has been a much-felt need, and as a result some institutions have more funds at their disposal than they can possibly use, while others, equally worthy, have a crying need. Every year millions of dollars are being donated to institutions which are not only surfeited, but also to many that are no longer in existence. Endowments are often made in so vague a manner that the courts must apply the doctrine of Cypres in order to make disposition of the endowment.

To supply this much-needed information there is at present being formed a very complete research library of reference for the benefit of these generous public benfactors, that they may be guided in order to "moderate the flow of their wealth into the coffers of institutions already plethoric with money." It is hoped that this work dealing with benefactions and benefactors throughout the country will soon be at the disposal not only of the members of the legal profession but of the public at large.

JENNIE O. BERLINER.

Wants All-Day Parking Around the Ellipse.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Considering the fact that construction work on the new Government buildings around Fifteenth and B streets has closed up much parking space that has been available to motorists heretofore for all-day parking, it seems that the roadway around the Ellipse should be changed from the two-hour allotment, the present arrangement, to all-day parking, as an emergency measure. It is almost impossible to park one's car in this area since the building has begun and to see those two-hour signs stuck up all along the Ellipse, where perfectly good parking space could be had without any obstruction of that wide thoroughfare, is certainly provoking.

In writing this I am not discounting the fact that numerous tourists use this space while seeing that section; but those tourists can use the space a little farther down, around the Monument, without great inconvenience.

Won't the Traffic Bureau look into this? I am sure that many employes in the Treasury Building would like the change. CHARLES L. MORRIS, Jr.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Capital Belles' Army and Navy Escorts Leave

Transfer of White House Aids, Especially, Has Depleted Ranks.

By JEAN ELIOT.

WASHINGTON girls, who depend greatly upon the Army and Navy for their escorts, "view with alarm" the shakeup of assignments which seems to be in progress. Of course, new bachelors come in as the old ones go out, but it is hard to lose the old dependables.

The approaching departure of Maj. Alvin Sandeford, White House aid, who has been on duty here for six years, is causing no little regret. Not only is he popular with the girls, but he stands high with fashionable young matrons and is in great demand at their parties. Happily, however, he has been ordered to Governor's Island, which is nearly within commuting distance of the Capital, and may be expected back frequently as a visitor.

The ranks of White House aids are being sadly depleted. Maj. Louis O'Donnell, familiarly known as "Mike," who ranked next to Col. Campbell Hodges in the Army group, left Saturday and will sail July 4 for Europe. A distinguished cavalry officer, he has been given a coveted detail at the Ecole de Guerre in Paris. Then there is "Cub" Carey — Lieut. Comdr. Charles Baltimore Calvert Carey, U. S. N., to give him his full name and title, who started last week for Victoria, B. C., whence he will sail on June 29 for the Orient. He is bound for a China station and sea duty, probably to have command of a destroyer.

And, of course, when the Mayflower set sail for Philadelphia to be decommissioned, she took with her a whole grist of young officers, who had been aids at the White House and first aids to Washington girls in the matter of dancing partners, among them Lieut. Tighlman Howard Bunch, jr., Lieut. Bayard Livingston Bell, U. S. M. C., Lieut. William O. Grisworld, and Lieut. John Frank Rees.

Lieut. Bell was married on March 21 to Miss Annette Alger Bailey, of Harrisburg, Pa., and consequently had been detached from duty at the White House, for it is an unwritten law that all the aids must be bachelors, excepting the President's own military and naval aids. He had expected to come back here, bringing his bride with him. But, while he was on his honeymoon, orders came for the Mayflower to be scrapped and since then Lieut. Bell has been in Philadelphia with the ship.

Lieut. Rees was detached after the Mayflower left Washington and sent to the U. S. S. Warden, now at Charleston, S. C. But Lieut. Griswold and Lieut. Bunch have been with the ship. The latter, however, has made frequent trips to Washington to serve as usher at one or another of the early summer weddings.

One wonders, moreover, if Capt. Eugene Regnier, attractive aid to the Secretary of State, will not be leaving soon. He was in Washington three years ago as aid to Gen. Fox Connor and went with him to the Philippines. Later he became aid to the Governor General, Mr. Stimson, and returned with the latter when he came to the Cabinet as Secretary of State.

Ambassador of Mexico Returns to Native Land

The Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Tellez, with their children, have returned to Mexico. The ambassador has announced his candidacy for President of Mexico. During his absence, the First Secretary of the Embassy, Senor Dr. Don Pablo Campos Ortiz, will be charge d'affaires.

The Minister of Uruguay, Mr. Jacobe Varela, and his daughter, Mlle. Adele Varela, are in Boston, where the minister will receive a degree from Boston University.

The Hungarian Minister, Count Laszlo Szechenyi, has joined Countess Szechenyi and their daughters at the Whitney estate in Newport, where they are passing the summer.

The Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Arthur M. Hyde, is in Ann Arbor, Mich., to attend the graduation exercises of the University of Michigan.

Representative and Mrs. Adam Wyant plan to close their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel at the end of the month and go to their home in Greensburg, Pa., for the remainder of the summer.

Representative and Mrs. Hamilton Fish, jr., with their children will leave today for Murray Bay, Canada, where they have taken a cottage. Mrs. Fish will remain through the summer and Mr. Fish as long as the House is in recess.

Representative and Mrs. Fred A. Britten entertained informally at dinner last evening.

The Second Secretary of the Polish Legation, Mr. Jan Stalinski, went to New York yesterday to pass several days.

Sir John Joyce Broderick Sails for England

Sir John Joyce Broderick, commercial councilor of the British Embassy, sailed for England Saturday on the S. S. Scythia. He was accompanied by Lady Broderick, their two sons and their daughter, Miss Sheila.

Mrs. William M. Jardine, wife of the former Secretary of Agriculture, and her daughters will start West July 1 and will spend two months in the Rocky Mountains and the national parks.

Mme. Ekengren and her daughter, Miss Elsa Ekengren, have returned to their apartment at 2139 Wyoming avenue after an absence of a year.

Mrs. Benjamin R. Holcombe will go to Newport at the end of the week accompanied by her children, and will be the guest of her mother, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, for a short time. Mrs. Holcombe later will join Mr. Holcombe at Miami, Fla., where they will make their home in the future.

The former Director of the Mint and Mrs. F. Edward Scobey, who have been visiting in Washington for several weeks from their home in San Antonio, Tex., will leave tomorrow by motor for New York, from where they will sail June 26 on the Berengaria for Europe to remain several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Jackson have been joined at the Savoy Plaza in New York by their son and daughter, Peter Jackson and Miss Audrey Jackson, who have been in Asheville, N. C. Mrs. Jackson, accompanied by her son and daughter, will sail on the Paris June 26 to pass the summer in St. Moritz, Switzerland.

Mrs. Frederic A. Delano is passing several days in New York at the Gladstone Hotel.

Mr. William E. Huntington left Washington Saturday to pass two weeks in Charlotteville, Va.

Miss Dorothea Lane went yesterday to Cloverfield, Keswick, Va., accompanied by Miss Barbara Boss. Miss Lane will remain about a month. Miss Boss will return to Washington July 1.

Mrs. McClure Kelley Will Visit Mrs. Dimock

Mrs. McClure Kelley will leave today for Bar Harbor, Me., where she will be the guest of Mrs. Henry F. Dimock at her summer home, Elsinore.

Mrs. George Mesta arrived yesterday at Fair Oak, the Drayton estate on Beacon Hill in Newport, which she has leased for the season.

Mrs. George L. Walter, jr., has closed her apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel for the summer and has motored to Pittsburgh with her sister, Miss Dorothy Fagan, who passed the week-end with her at the hotel.

Miss Julia Mattis has closed her house here and gone to her summer home at Champaign, Ill.

Dr. and Mrs. William O. Hankins and their son, of Danville, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. James, of Richmond, are week-end guests of Maj. and Mrs. Hampden Wilson at a family reunion in Kilbourne place northwest.

Chevy Chase Girl Married Saturday

Harris & Ewing.

MRS. PERCIVAL HALL, JR., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Black, who was married Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Hall will make their home at Kendall Green, D. C.

Society to See Drama Guild's Play Thursday

"Sherwood" Will Be Given in Beautiful Setting of Sylvan Theater.

A June night, a full moon, the cool loveliness of the Sylvan Theater, nestled in the grassy slopes of the Monument Grounds, and the poetic presentation of the story of "Robin Hood and the Three Kings" which England's poet laureate has called "Sherwood." This alluring prospect will attract many spectators next Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock, when the Community Drama Guild will offer its final play of the season, under the joint auspices of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks and the Community Center Department.

Outstanding Washingtonians are included in the guarantors and subscribers list of the Drama Guild, and equally outstanding Washingtonians have become sponsors for this al fresco production, on the stage which, twelve years ago, was formally dedicated to the drama of America and its development in the Capital. More than half of the boxes, which have been placed advantageously in front of the grassy stage, have already been reserved. Reservations are being made through Mrs. Carey H. Brown, Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith and Mrs. Harvey Wiley.

Among the sponsors for the performance of "Sherwood" are Mrs. William D. Mitchell, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Senator Hiram Bingham, Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, Mrs. Edgar Jadwin, Mrs. Cuno H. Rudolph, Mrs. Richard Wilmer Bolling, Mrs. Harry K. Boss, Miss Lida Earhart, Mrs. David DuB. Gaillard, Mrs. Henry Gilligan, Mrs. Edwin C. Graham, Mrs. David Meade Lea, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt, Mrs. Ada G. Merriam, Mr. Charles Moore, Mr. Milson B. Medary, Mrs. Duncan Phillips and Mrs. F. M. Savage.

A group of young girls, daughters of ambassadors and ministers stationed in Washington, are patronesses for the recital of Cuban songs and piano music to be given by Senor Gonzalo de Arango, of Cuba, tenor, and Miss Mary Alexander, pianist, at the Washington Club tomorrow evening at 8:45 o'clock.

The patronesses include Senorita Rosa Padilla, daughter of the Spanish Ambassador; Princess Antoinette de Ligne, daughter of the Belgian Ambassador; Senorita Adele Varela and Senorita Mirielle Varela, daughters of the Minister of Uruguay; Senorita Maria Luisa Grisanti and Senorita Ana Teresa Grisanti, daughters of the Minister of Venezuela; Mlle. Jeanne Cretziano, daughter of the Minister of Roumania; Senorita Maria Diez de Medina, daughter of the Minister of Bolivia, and Senorita Elodia Martin-Rivero, daughter of the former Minister of Cuba.

The feature of the evening at the Arts Club tomorrow will be the reading of "original stories ground out by the mill," work of the short-story writers of the club, under direction of Mr. James True. Capt. and Mrs. Henry Hayes will be the hosts.

The wedding of Miss Crystal Eva Pool and Mr. Jack I. Turner took place Friday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Homer Councilor, of Calvary Baptist Church, at the church, with only close relatives present.

The bride wore a navy blue georgette ensemble, with blouse of eggshell georgette, and a navy blue straw hat and accessories to match. She carried a bouquet of pink rose buds. Mr. and Mrs. Turner left for a short wedding trip by motor. On their return they will take an apartment in the Capital.

Mr. F. W. Davis to Wed Miss Katharine Norman

The marriage of Miss Katharine Smithdeal Norman, daughter of Mrs. Charles Jefferson Norman, to Mr. Frank Willard Davis, will take place tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Alban's Church, the Rev. Charles Warner officiating.

In College Theatricals

Underwood & Underwood.

MISS MARGARET RICE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rice, of Hyattsville, who had the role of Romy Duane in Philip Barry's play, "You and I," at the commencement at Hiram College, from which she was graduated last week.

Miss James "Class Bride" Of Wellesley

Chevy Chase Girl to Wed Following Graduation, This Afternoon.

From cap and gown to bridal costume is the quick change that Miss Bethea James, of Chevy Chase, Md., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. James, will make this afternoon, when she will be married to Mr. Frederick Shillitto, of the Harvard Medical School, class of '31.

Miss James is to be graduated from Wellesley College today and will be married at 3 o'clock in the Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel in Boston. The bride is to be the "class bride" of 1929, receiving the title from the tradition that the first graduate to be married receives that title.

Col. and Mrs. William P. Wooten left yesterday for a ten-day stay at Hampton, Va.

Miss Margaret Bryant, of London, England, is at the Grace Dodge Hotel for an extended visit in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Fisher entertained at a dinner yesterday at the Wardman Park Hotel for their son, the Rev. Henry Fisher. The other guests were Father Walsh, Father Skinner, Father Cartwright, Father Peterson, Father Mitchell, Father Liufrio, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sheriden, Mr. George Johnson, Mr. James Cunningham, Mr. John Brown, Miss Grace Murvin, Miss Norine Fisher, Miss Elizabeth Fisher, Miss Kathleen Fisher, Miss Doris Fisher, Miss Tessie Fisher and Mr. Isaac Fisher.

The dinner followed the Rev. Fisher's first solemn high mass, which was held at St. Thomas Catholic Church yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Evans, of Bainbridge, Ga., are at the Grace Dodge Hotel for a week.

The wedding of Miss Adele Yantis Dyott to Mr. Roy M. Hart was solemnized Saturday in the Methodist Church at Harpers Ferry, W. Va., the Rev. Dr. A. S. Yantis, uncle of the bride, from Vermont, officiating. After a tour abroad the couple will reside in Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Rev. Edward Gabler and his mother, Mrs. Julianna Gabler, and Mrs. Frederick K. Sparrow have left on a motor trip to Annandale-on-the-Hudson to attend the graduation exercises at St. Stephen's College, Columbia University. Dr. Gabler will preside at corporate communion and also will be one of the speakers at the banquet of the alumni, of which he is president.

KIDNAP STORY TOLD BY MAN IN MURDER

Realty Dealer, Held in Mexico, Was With Widow Who Was Shot Dead.

HIS ACCOUNT IS CHECKED

Laguna Beach, Calif., June 16 (A.P.).—Police in this artists' colony, where the body of Mrs. Myrtle Wood, 40, Long Beach, Calif., widow, was found hidden behind a signboard, today were checking the story told by John A. McClure, 56, Long Beach real estate dealer, that he was shot and kidnaped by robbers while riding with the woman Thursday night.

McClure was found wandering below the Mexican border a few hours after Mrs. Wood's body was discovered here yesterday. He told Tia Juana, Lower California, officers he was shot by two robbers near Laguna Beach, but could not remember what happened to Mrs. Wood or how his kidnapers took him to Mexico. His hat was riddled with bullets and he had a wound in the head.

Mexican officers held McClure for questioning before turning him over to United States authorities. Orange County officials said they expected McClure would be placed in their custody tomorrow.

Mrs. Ina Lowell, Mrs. Wood's daughter, said her mother left home Thursday night to go to McClure's house and tell him she would have nothing more to do with him. Mrs. Lowell said McClure had been courting her mother, but they had quarreled.

McClure explained he had taken Mrs. Wood to see some property near where she later was found dead with a bullet hole in her head, and they had been accosted by robbers. He did not know what became of his car. Officers were searching for the automobile.

Two sets of man's footprints and tracks of an automobile similar to McClure's were found near Mrs. Wood's body.

TEACHER VISITS SPOT OF COED'S MURDER

Ohio State Professor Remains Adamant in Declaration of Innocence.

OFFICERS PLAN PARLEY

Columbus, Ohio, June 16 (A.P.).—Dr. James R. Snook, Ohio State University professor, held for investigation in connection with the killing last Thursday night of Miss Theora K. Hix, university medical student, today, in company with police detectives, visited the spot where her body was found and the room which he admits he shared with the girl, and then returned to the county jail, still adamant in his declaration that he knows nothing of her death.

W. G. Shellenbarger, chief of detectives, said after the trip that a conference would be held tomorrow between police officials and John J. Chester, jr., county prosecutor, at which it will be decided whether any more serious charge will be placed against the university instructor.

John Seidel and E. G. Ricketts, attorneys for Dr. Snook, will be invited to the conference.

The attorneys issued a statement today that Dr. Snook's release on a habeas corpus writ will be sought tomorrow if a definite charge is not filed.

At the same time Shellenbarger said that unless more evidence is uncovered against Marion T. Myers, also held in connection with the case, he would be released tomorrow.

Dr. Snook maintained throughout the trip with the detectives today and a short questioning that followed at the city jail, the cool attitude that has marked his appearance since he was arrested yesterday morning.

In contrast, Myers, a graduate student at the university and a research worker for the State Department of Agriculture, sat slumped in his cell throughtout the day, the picture of dejection.

Shellenbarger, accompanied by Detectives Robert McCall and Otto Phillips, took Dr. Snook first to the New York Central rifle range, in the western edge of the city, where the girl's slashed and battered body was found Friday by two boys. From there they went to the Scioto Valley Country Club, where Dr. Snook had said he spent a few minutes on the night of the killing. The tour ended in the room in a downtown apartment building which Dr. Snook shared at intervals with Miss Hix.

The detectives said that Dr. Snook was questioned throughout the trip, but that he never wavered in his insistence that he had no knowledge of how the girl met death or who it was that slashed her with a knife and beat her almost beyond recognition.

Prof. Melvin Hix, of Bradenton, Fla., father of the murdered girl, reached Columbus today and went to the home of a friend.

Detectives went to the friend's residence to question him late today.

Police tonight were awaiting the reports from a chemical analysis of stains on several objects found yesterday in a search of Dr. Snook's residence and his automobile. They included a pair of driving gloves, a shirt, a man's felt hat and a jacknife.

The declaration that Dr. Snook had maintained a place for trysts with the dead girl came last night in a meeting at the county jail between the professor and the landlady at the apartment house.

POST-FOX CONTEST OFFERS OPPORTUNITY

ton Post, the conditions under which screen tests may be obtained are easy. Securing one subscription for a year to The Sunday Post entitles you to enter and six such subscriptions in the first week of the contest, which opened yesterday, will assure you of a screen test. If you delay entering until the second week, eight subscriptions are required while ten is the number set for the third week.

Any one is eligible to compete and each of the screen tests made will be exhibited on the screen of the Fox Washington Theater for the theater management and the Fox Film Corporation are cooperating with The Post in offering this opportunity to those who would like to enter the movies.

Fox film executives will view the ten best screen tests made in the contest, with the aim of discovering in the ten one or more who are suited for the pictures and who may be developed into stardom, a character actor or actress, or one of the child favorites of the silver sheet.

In addition to the chance of having movie producers review their acting for the screen the ten winners will receive six-month passes to the Fox Washington Theater.

Nearly all the stars and famous figures of the films were discovered in some contest of similar nature as that which the Washington Post is now conducting. Much talent, which might never have come to light but for these contests, has been brought before the public and the possessors of the talent are drawing magnificent salaries each week.

You do not have to be beautiful to enter. Pretty girls and handsome men may register well and again they may not. Some who are not considered so attractive may have much better screen presence and win over other rivals. Children's cute expressions may turn the tide in their favor. Adults, beyond the youthful stage, may earn recognition through some mannerism which makes a hit with the reviewers.

John E. Campbell, director, of the Post-Fox Screen Test Contest, will be glad to answer all queries regarding the contest. He will aid applicants in their efforts to secure a screen test. He may be reached on the fourth floor of the Post building or by calling Main 4205.

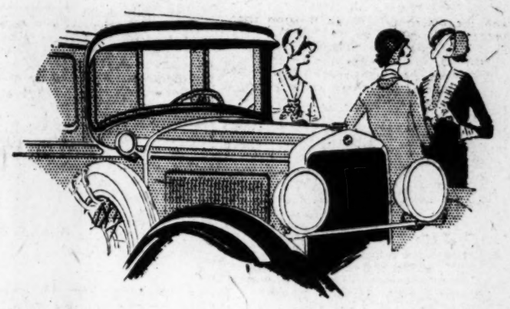
STUDEBAKER'S NEW

Dictator Eight

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN (115) INCH WHEELBASE



$1185 at the factory

HERE is an eight—a worthy companion car to the World Champion President and the famous Commander Eights. The New Dictator Eight places abundant power at your command—adequate to every emergency—an engine which makes play of mile-a-minute speed, yet which is thrifty of oil and gas.

Studebaker engineers have enhanced quality and performance, beauty and economy. In The New Dictator these qualities fittingly complement that finest expression of modern motoring—the straight eight engine. Since the introduction of its line of straight eights, Studebaker has won every official stock car speed and endurance record.

Here is modern, low-swung grace, made possible by The Dictator's costlier double-drop frame and a wheelbase increased to 115 inches. Here is the riding ease for which all Studebaker cars are renowned.

And here is the economy which you have demanded—an economy which begins with low first cost and is carried through with remarkable thrift of fuel and oil and with traditional Studebaker sturdiness.

The New Dictator Straight Eight today awaits you. Come in—take the wheel—put it through its paces.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS AT CAPITAL THEATERS

PALACE

"THIS IS HEAVEN." Samuel Goldwyn sound picture with dialogue sequences, starring Vilma Banky in her first talking role, supported by James Hall. Directed by Alfred Santell and released through United Artists. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Perhaps the best way to catalogue Vilma Banky's screen voice is to say it is just a trifle deeper and more mellow than Baclanova's and about as heavily accented with Hungarian as hers is with Russian. The effect, so long as her pictures can be made to justify the foreign accent as well as this one does, will, I think, prove wholly charming to those who have admired Miss Banky in silent roles.

"This Is Heaven" is well calculated to introduce the Banky voice, although it will be difficult to devise a succession of pictures so skillfully fashioned for that purpose. The story of the immigrant girl who secured work as a griddle cake juggler in the window of a Fifth avenue lunchroom and from that point of vantage managed to marry a young multimillionaire who posed as chauffeur, begins at Ellis Island. Eva Petrie, just arriving in this country to make her home with an indigent uncle and a flip cousin, Mamie, has an English vocabulary of some three words or so. By the time she had presided over the charity griddle at the Scarsdale garden party, she can do well enough with the language to fascinate James Hall and entice him into a dingy side street where a rickety taxi is bought on time as a means of future income.

Not any too plausible a tale, to be sure, but, in addition to being her first talking vehicle, this is also Miss Banky's first comedy, and consistency has never been one of the major essentials of drama primarily designed to be flippant and amusing. This one is both.

Beside the enjoyable, if inconsequential, narrative unfolded, this adventure in benevolent assimilation boasts other virtues—conspicuously, a set of breezy subtitles for the inarticulate sequences done in the best style of that humorous and glib young man, George Marion, jr., and a particularly well assembled musical score arranged by Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld. Quite as much of the picture's effectiveness is to be attributed to these concomitants as to any inspired characterization on the part of Hope Loring, the author.

Miss Banky is not uniovely even when swaddled in a dozen petticoats, after the most approved Hungarian fashion, and later on is as beautiful as one is accustomed to find her. James Hall falls something short of Ronald Colman, but still offers a likable portrayal of the millionaire—cab driver. Fritzi Ridgeway, Lucien Littlefield and Richard Tucker, the supporting principals, do well the not too exacting tasks assigned them.

The stage portion of the bill, "The Theme of Love," concerns itself with the production of talking pictures. Don Barclay is the featured comedian and, barring a rendering of the lyrics of his "Horse" song that is not intelligible back of the sixth row, is as laughable a clown as he ever was in more pretentious vehicles. John Walsh displays a robust tenor voice; Nita Carol is an ingenue with a pleasing soprano; Lillian White, a stunning star of the screen, and Johnny Dale, an agile dancer. But it is Marietta, an acrobatic dancer of sinuous grace, who stops the show. Herbert Rawlinson, playing the part of a studio director, divorces himself from monologue and sings two songs, with ukulele, in a manner that causes wonder that he didn't begin that sort of thing long ago. The Gamby-Hale mixed ensemble and the Palace Syncopators round out a miniature revue that is in a class by itself.

RIALTO

"THE LONE WOLF'S DAUGHTER." Columbia sound picture with dialogue sequences, starring Bert Lytell, supported by Gertrude Olmstead, Lilyan Tashman and Charles Gerrard. From story by Louis Joseph Vance, directed by Al Rogell. Reviewed Saturday night.

Mr. Michael Lanyard, alias "The Lone Wolf," still the polished, debonair gentleman, but turned honest, here lends point to the ancient saw that it is the part of wisdom to "set a thief to catch a thief." Suspected by Inspector Crane, of the New York police department, mistaken by Count Polinac and his vivacious blonde consort for one still in the racket, Mr. Lanyard runs true to his determination to protect the fair name of his adopted daughter, about to be married to Bobby Cranshaw, and by a clever ruse prevents another of those fabulous Long Island gem robberies, wins the thanks of Crane and his flat-footed aids and smilingly watches Polinac and Velma ride away in the Black Maria.

This, so far as I am aware, is the first picture that has utilized television as an ingredient of interesting crook melodrama. Mr. Lytell, in the role of Lanyard, brings about the undoing of his old rival, Polinac, by having the pictures of a few Scotland Yard suspects transmitted by the headquarters experts in New York to the home of the Cranshaws on Long Island, where a smart house party is about to be denuded of its valuables by the two masquerading guests wanted by the police. It should not be necessary to know any more of the story than that.

Bert Lytell, not so young as once he was, still is a suave and believable Lanyard who falls desperately in love with a none-too-susceptible young art collector sufficiently well delineated by Gertrude Olmstead. Inspector Crane is portrayed by Robert Elliott, the best cop in pictures, although he does not participate in any of the talking sequences, as he should. Charles Gerrard and Lilyan Tashman are the crooks who were hoist by their own petard and Florence Allen, in the title role, and Donald Keith account for the juvenile love interest. The element of comedy, incidentally, is by no means lacking.

The supplementary attractions are numerous, being handsomely led by Jules Bledsoe in another Columbia subject, a plantation scene in which the noted negro bass sings "Ol' Man Trouble" and "Wadin' in the Water," two numbers perfectly within his splendid voice and particularly well recorded.

A new release in Universal's "Collegians" series of two-reel action plays with dialogue and songs permits George Lewis to win the annual school road race in a car that strips its gears but crosses the line first anyhow in reverse. An Oswald animated cartoon comedy, "Nuts and Jolts," is a little more suggestive and not quite so funy as some of its predecessors.

The International Newsreel and contributions by the house orchestra augment a diversified and ample program.

"THE MAN I LOVE." Paramount all-talking production with songs, costarring Richard Arlen and Mary Brian, supported by Baclanova, Harry Green, Jack Oakie and Leslie Fenton. Directed by William A. Wellman. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

In the first place, I should say that this extremely well done picture is about as near a 100 per cent entertainment as the early summer screen is apt to divulge. It unwinds a completely audible story that clicks every foot of the way and reveals Richard Arlen and Mary Brian as a pair of competent youngsters who gain considerably by being heard. Both have agreeable voices and neither any annoying affectation or mannerism. Singly or together, this subject should be the source of an appreciable impetus to their careers.

"The Man I Love" unfolds itself against a prize ring background, but the atmosphere of the fight racket is not permitted to obscure the keen human interest in which the tale abounds or so dominate the action as to confine its appeal to the narrow audience of boxing addicts.

A young fighter with his eye on the middleweight championship falls in love with and marries a pretty little song plugger in a music shop. Together they crash New York as added starters with a carload of polo ponies being shipped East. That's the kind of love it was. In New York the start was not so easy, but finally in attracting the attention of a shrewd promoter and manager, Dun Dum Brooks also succeeded in catching the eye of Sonia Baronoff, a blond menace with a penchant for unusual young men. The lure of the Russian, complicated with the two iron fists of Champ Mahoney, provides the conflict necessary to make this a particularly sane action-drama that happily stresses romance instead of rowdyism. And there are some corking good bouts in it, too, with a broadcasting sequence that is specially well handled.

Arlen plays the youthful battler, with the devastating right, in a manner that leaves no doubt that he knows what it is all about, and Mary Brian, both in the quality of her voice and its use, strengthens every agreeable impression created in the films that were wholly silent.

Jack Oakie is not allotted quite so much comedy as usual, but does well what he has, and Pat O'Malley, as the fight manager, gets over effectively. Baclanova repeats her familiar etching of the singing siren, and Harry Green is as laughable in the role of a Jewish trainer as he was as the theater manager in "Close Harmony." Leslie Fenton seems to me miscast as Countess Sonia's poetic satellite, but that is probably only because I saw him last as a tough egg in "Girls Gone Wild."

Vitaphone contributes two short subsidiary features in the "Varsity Three," two collegiate singers and a pianist, and Oklahoma Bob Albright, singer and story teller, assisted by two personable young women, one of whom leaves her piano to go into a syncopated dance to add a bit of pep to the finale of the act.

The Topical Review and orchestral overture, "The Chocolate Soldier," in which Esther Melick, soprano, sings the "My Hero" number, complete a bill that is worth any one's time in a theater that is delightfully cool.

Senator Barkley Speaks At Monticello Exercises

Charlottesville, Va., June 16.—Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, was the principal speaker at the Flag Day celebration of Charlottesville Lodge of Elks this afternoon at Monticello, home of Jefferson. The history of the flag was read by John W. Carter, jr., of Danville, deputy grand exalted ruler for the western district.

Senator Barkley paid a glowing tribute to the Nation's banner and the qualities which it signifies, and spoke of the growth of the country in power and importance since the flag's adoption. The example this country has set as a democracy has been followed by 90 per cent of the population of the earth, he said, until today "there is not a crowned head in the western world and only one-tenth of the world is governed by true monarchy."

METROPOLITAN

"NOAH'S ARK." Warner Bros. production with dialogue and sound effects, starring Dolores Costello, George O'Brien and Noah Beery. Written by Darryle Francis Zanuck; directed by Michael Curtiz. Reviewed Saturday afternoon (third week) by J. F. Brady.

Stupendously spectacular, "Noah's Ark," now in its third week, is still playing to capacity audiences.

Suspense, pathos, tragedy, the historical, the awful, combine with just one or two sparks of light comedy (among the early flickers of the film), to produce a picture of such magnitude and impressiveness as to remain long in one's mind. Such is "Noah's Ark," marking another success for Warner Bros. in the field of stupendous pageantry. It is a film which can not easily be done justice in type, so wonderful is the result of the camera's work in picturing the scenes of the "deluge," the destruction of the temples, the train wreck and other awe-inspiring events.

Much has already been said of the story of "Noahs' Ark," but for those who are still unaware of the nature of the continuity, it follows the scheme which was successful in "The Ten Commandments," a story of modern life—the World War—unfolded up to a climactic point with a flashback to a chaotic, whirling, heart-rending picture of Biblical times—the Deluge; each interwoven into a parallel of greed, selfishness and hatred of God, with their resultant effects.

There may be some doubt in the minds of many as to the correctness of detail concerning certain parts of the interpretation of the Biblical facts as shown in this picture, and also a question as to whether the effect of dropping back to "silent" lapses, temporarily breaks the spell, or if the frequent flashbacks from one period to another are correctly timed, but the success of the gigantic undertaking as a whole is unimpeachable.

From a dramatic viewpoint Dolores Costello as the handmaid of Noah and the Virgin to be sacrificed probably does some of the best work of her career; George O'Brien, as Travis and Japheth, is better as the son of Noah; Noah Berry, as the Russian general and the King of Akkad, gives an impressiveness to the brutal personalities; Paul McAllister, as Noah and the Minister, draws one to the sweet, kindly and charitable characters he interprets, and so on down the long list, including Louise Fazenda, Guinn Williams, Nigel de Brulier, Armand Kaliz, Anders Randolf, Myrna Loy and William V. Mong.

Pathe Sound-News is the only other item on the bill.

LITTLE THEATER

"OTHELLO." Emil Jannings in the play by William Shakespeare, with Werner Kraus and Lya DePutti. Directed by Dimitri Buchowetzki and produced in Germany under the supervision of Ernest Lubitsch. Reviewed Saturday night by W. A. Whitney.

To his already long list of characterizations of famous people in story and history, Emil Jannings adds that of Othello, the Moor of Venice. While it probably can not be said that this is his greatest role, it is another which is fully up to the high standard that he has set for himself both in German and American-made films.

Although the role of Othello, is the principal one, that of Iago, the diabolical wrecker of Othello's life and happiness, all but outshines it. Werner Kraus in this part is superbly cast, and creates so perfect an illusion that the lack of horns and a tail is but a minor deficiency in the impersonation of His Satanic Lowness incarnate.

The role of Desdemona, admirably carried by Ica Lenkeffy, gives to the American audience for the first time a new artiste of beauty, pleasing screen presence and histrionic ability. Emilia, Iago's wife and unwilling accomplice, is forcefully played by Lya DePutti. And for Theodore Loos is the part of Cassio, Othello's lieutenant, against whom Iago's infernal treachery is directed—a role intrusted to capable hands.

The screen subsidiaries include the Paramount News; a Visugraphic film on the manufacture of radiotrons, which, though interesting, suffers from an ill-advised use of the scissors, resulting in a jerky series of manufacturing processes, and a Stan Laurel-Oliver Hardy comedy, "We Faw Down" (and how they can "go boom!").

COLUMBIA

"THE STUDIO MURDER MYSTERY." A Paramount production based on the story by Mr. and Mrs. A. Channing Edington and featuring Neil Hamilton, Warner Oland and Doris Hill. Directed by Frank Tuttle. Reviewed Saturday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

Even if it had no other claim on the public's attention, "The Studio Murder Mystery" would be noteworthy as the first photoplay based on a studio theme in which the technicalities of manufacture do not obtrude upon the story.

But besides this, the film is of great interest to those who like their mysteries entirely devoid of the eerie and more in the manner of "The Donovan Affair," after which the present drama is largely patterned. Richard Hardell, a philandering would-be actor, is murdered within the confines of a large studio. Five people might have done it—Anton Borka, Hardell's director; Blanche Hardell, who discovered the clandestine trysts with the watchman's daughter; Helen MacDonald, the daughter; Ted MacDonald, brother, who sought to save his sister from such liaison, and MacDonald, also aware of the tete-a-tetes.

To give even more of the story would work injustice on future audiences, for this is one picture about which nothing should be known before attending, lest the entire unfolding of the plot lose its effectiveness. Even the first 10 feet carry a kick that is but slightly less powerful than the entirely unexpected denouement.

The cast is exceptionally well selected and offer characterization which could scarcely be improved upon. Neil Hamilton, as Tony White, studio gag-man, who finally solves the riddle; Warner Oland, as Anton Borka, the producer; Frederic March, as Richard Hardell, the murdered man; Florence Eldridge, as Blanche Hardell, his wife; Doris Hill, as Helen MacDonald, sentenced to death for the murder on circumstantial evidence; Gardner James and Guy Oliver, as the MacDonalds, son and father, respectively; E. H. Calvert, as Grant, studio manager; Chester Conklin, as the gateman; Lane Chandler, as Martin; Eugene Pallette, as Detective Dirk, and Donald Mackenzie, as Capt. Coffin, comprise the capable ensemble.

Special mention should be made of the excellence of the roles of the detectives. Pallette, usually portraying the superlatively dumb, wise-cracking insult to any detective staff, gives an unusually fine piece of acting. Mackenzie offers an interpretation of the detectives in charge which is a refreshing combination of Philo Vance and Sherlock Holmes rather than the usual stereotyped inquisitorial prober.

Due to the relative shortness of the feature, the subsidiaries are nothing if not diversified. First of all, there is Duci de Kerekjarto, violin virtuoso, who is followed by "Gus Edward's Colortone Revue," a well-done technicolor exhibition of songs and dances of different countries; M-G-M and Fox Movietone Newsreels, the latter showing only a camera interview with Ramsay MacDonald; a Tiffany-Stahl color reel showing "Sports in Many Lands," and a Hal Roach Comedy, "That's My Wife," featuring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in an amusing marital tangle.

If you don't like this program, you can't be satisfied.

FOX

"THE VALIANT." Fox Movietone talking picture, from a stage play by Robert Middlemass and Holworthy Hall. Cast headed by Paul Muni and Marguerite Churchill. Directed by William K. Howard. Reviewed Saturday night by C. Ransom.

Whatever else may be said about "The Valiant," it pushes in a new direction for the talkies, and it introduces, to most of us, a new film actor who is bound to be talked about. The direction of the push is not altogether a happy one, and Mr. Muni's adventures in some other material will be watched with eagerness.

Properly to enjoy this picture you should take along all your pent-up emotions and two good handkerchiefs and leave your sense of probabilities at the office or under the kitchen sink. There is a type of fiction, perhaps not so popular now as in the days of Bertha Clay and Laura Jean Libbey, that builds up heart-rending situations out of sheer sentimental fancy, for the pleasure of simple-folk who know little of life. "The Valiant" is the first of the dialogue films to make what seems to be a deliberate bid for that field of patronage.

Perhaps this does an injustice to the intention of the producers, for at least there is no sugary ending of the kind that is indispensable in the kitchen brand of fiction. But there is surely something wilful in the adoption of the extravagantly sentimental tone that pervades the picture. The modesty of life is deliberately discarded and the lines, the voices, the gestures, all join in the stress of false rhetorical feeling.

It concerns a sad young man who commits a murder and is sentenced to death. We are never told just what it was all about but pains are taken to assure us that it was a justifiable murder. The young slayer firmly refuses to reveal his true identity, and he becomes a "man of mystery," with his front-page portrait penetrating all the byways of the nation. His mother, out in Ohio, dimly suspects it is her long-missing Joey and sends his sister to see him and find out.

The great scene is the interview between the man about to die and his sister, whom he has not seen since he was a child. His valiancy consists in the steadfastness with which he conceals his identity from her. He tells her a story about having known Joey, who was killed in the war. Marguerite Churchill's features are so naturally intelligent-looking that for a moment it seemed sure that sister undersood. But no. She carries her tale home and mother is happy.

On the stage the 14 gorgeous Foxettes earn a wild hand with a new dancing stunt on roller skates, and the valiant master of ceremonies, John Irving Fisher, amuses as many customers as ever. Mabel Albertson contributes some character songs, including rather faraway imitation of Fannie Brice. Apparently the funny little dancer all alone must have been Margaret Green. Mario and Lazarin, Latin-looking but plain American in their singing, entertain tunefully for their third week at this theater. But Bemis and Brown are the best, if they are the pair of dancers of whom one, much the funnier one, has an important secret. Excellent news pictures.

Salvation Army Heads Move From Petersburg

Petersburg, Va., June 16.—Capt. and Mrs. R. E. Shaw, who have been in charge of the work of the Salvation Army here, have been transferred to the mountain section of Virginia, where they will have charge of a circle corps in Pulaski, Galax and Ivanhoe. Pulaski will be their headquarters.

A farewell meeting to Capt. and Mrs Shaw was held tonight at the Salvation Army headquarters. Capt. Shaw will be succeeded here by Capt. Carvell, of Portsmouth.

Glacier Park Radio Topic For Tonight

Vachel Lindsay Will Read Poem in Broadcast on Empire Building Over WRC; British Music Scheduled by WMAL.

Vachel Lindsay, ranked among the greatest modern American poets, is scheduled to read one of his own works as part of a special broadcast by the Empire Builders, concerning Glacier National Park, to be heard at 9:30 o'clock through WRC.

Coming two days after the official opening of the park for the 1929 season, the program will contain special features sketching the attractions of the Federal preserve, rather than the usual historical drama.

The Old Pioneer, heard weekly in Empire Builders broadcasts, will officiate as master of ceremonies in the Chicago studios of the National Broadcasting Co., presenting native Indian songs by Blackfeet Indians from Glacier Park, and an Indian story told by Chief Two Guns White Calf through his interpreter, Chief Heavy Breast. "Dad" Pickard, noted mountaineer, will be heard in a selection of typical old-time songs.

Under direction of Cesare Sodero, a tabloid version of Von Weber's "Der Freischutz" will be presented by the National Grand Opera Company at 10 o'clock from WRC. The cast will comprise Ottokar, Dark Bethmann, barytone; Cuno, Prince Alexis Obolensky, barytone; Kaspar, Frederic Baer, barytone; Max, Judson House, tenor; Ein Eremit, Prince Obolensky; Killian, Walter Preston, barytone; Agathe, Alma Peterson, soprano; Annchen, Rosali Wolfe, soprano.

A program of gypsy songs and old popular favorites will be offered by Harry Horlick and his A. & P. Gypsies at 7:30 o'clock, as follows: "Black Eyes" (Horlick); "Shaway, Awake, Beloved" (Coleridge-Taylor), tenor solo: medley of old songs; "A Dream" (Bartlett); "Kiss Me Again," gypsy string sextet; "Habanera," cello solo; "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," tenor solo; intermezzo, from "Whispering Willows" (Herbert); "Annie Laurie;" "The Dawn Brought Me Love and You," tenor solo; "Fleurette" (Herbert), and "Bolero" (Moszkowsky).

Harold Van Duzee, operatic and concert tenor, and a friend of S. L. Rothafel, will be featured in the broadcast by Roxy and His Gang at 6:30 o'clock.

England will be the subject of the program that Musical Vignettes will present over WMAL at 7 o'clock this evening. The hour will be opened with a group of English folk songs by Vaughn Williams, followed by the slow air and minuet from a suite by Purcell and Elgar's "Salut d'Amour."

Next come three dances from German's "Henry VIII Suite" and, as an extra number, Handel's "Gigue" will be given.

"Willie the Weeper" will be a feature of the program that Daguerreotypes is presenting at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Other old-timers in this program include two songs by Paul Dresser, "On the Banks of the Wabash" and "In Good Old New York Town," a medley of Civil War songs, specially arranged, and "Auld Lang Syne."

Mathilde Harding and Serge Kotlarsky will play several pieces together in a piano and violin recital at 9 o'clock from WMAL. The numbers selected are Wienawski's "Russian Airs," Auer's arrangement of a Hebrew melody by Achron and arrangements by Kreisler of two number by Francour entitled "Sicilliene" and "Rigaudon." Kotlarsky, alone, will play an arrangement by Kreisler of Martini's "Andante."

John Clagett Proctor will be the speaker in a "Songs of the American Revolution" program from WJSV at 9 o'clock. Estaban Gordon, tenor of the Washington Drama Guild, will be heard in a fifteen-minute recital.

The Musical Clock, a variety hour, and a household chat and helpful hints to parents period by Peggy Clarke will make up WOL'S morning program. David Martin, barytone, will be heard in a recital.

Smart Things For Races

© VOGUE

THE race tracks during the summer months, from the Belmont opening in May to the Saratoga closing on Labor Day, are the setting for the smart world in its smartest attire. While a certain amount of formality typical of the French races at Auteuil and Longchamps, is creeping into the mode in America, the genuine devotees of the sport—those who follow it round the globe and the calendar—are still inclined to the more tailored type of costume.

Uncle Ray's Corner

WHAT kind of nuts do you like best? It would be interesting to take a vote on that question from a group of, say, a hundred persons.

I am sure that English walnuts would rank high, for they are good-tasting and "easy to eat." Brazil nuts would also have their champions, as would butternuts, hickory nuts, hazel nuts and peanuts. Perhaps someone would know the goodness of pistachio nuts, and, of course, there would be some votes for almonds and pecans.

Trees and bushes which produce nuts have been important to mankind ever since the earliest times. Even before the Stone Age, people must have depended for food on nuts growing "wild," along with berries and roots.

Of all nuts the peanut is the most widely eaten. Millions of pounds are raised each year and sent to market. You may obtain a bag of "fresh roasted peanuts" for a nickel—not such a large bag as I used to buy for a nickel when I was a boy, but enough to keep your teeth busy for awhile.

Peanuts are also called by other names—ground nuts, ground peas, earth nuts and "goobers."

Peanuts grow best in sandy soil in regions with plenty of hot summer weather. The native home of the peanut is not certainly known. Very likely it was Brazil. Very large crops are now grown in North Carolina and Virginia.

Peanut plants reach a height of from one or two feet and have spreading branches. Flowers appear and wither away, drooping to the ground. Then the ends take hold in the soil. Peanuts grow from the places where the flowers were, and must be dug up when ripe.

Not only are these nuts used for peanut butter, but they are also pressed for oil. Sometimes they are fed to pigs. "Put the pig in the peanut patch" is what farmers might sing instead of the old song about "putting the pig in the parlor."

WORK ON BRIDGE

Mr. Work has prepared a booklet giving detailed information concerning the correct way to play Progressive Auction Bridge. This booklet will be sent to all readers without charge. Mr. Work will also answer without charge any Bridge questions. Requests must be accompanied by an addressed, stamped, return envelope, and addressed to Mr. Milton C. Work, care of this newspaper.

(This article is intended for the Bridge novice.)

Auction Bridge novices—and indeed frequently players of experience—often are embarrassed when it is their turn to cut, not knowing whether they should complete the cut or leave that act for the dealer. The official laws of the game are perfectly plain upon this point, but for some inexplicable reason a rumor that they have been altered has been widely circulated.

Here is the proper procedure: Immediately before the deal, the dealer places the pack before his right-hand opponent, who lifts off the top portion and places it beside the bottom portion toward the dealer; then the dealer completes the cut by placing the bottom portion on top, and proceeds to deal. The only further provision is that at least four cards must be left in each portion.

Here are some of the vagaries which have crept into the simple and definite legal process of cutting: that it is courteous to decline to cut (omitting the cut isn't courteous, it is merely illegal), that the younger of two ladies should complete the cut (used only when the discrepancy in age is plainly apparent, and proposed then only by the most venturesome); that the cutter should cut toward herself, instead of toward the dealer, or should complete the cut (either procedure is illegal, and either is really discourteous to the dealer).

Another topic that creates many heated discussions in social games is where dummy's trumps should be placed. There is no law on this point, and if dummy's arrangement of the hand does not suit the Declarer, that player may rearrange in any way that fancy dictates. The custom, however, is for dummy to place trumps on dummy's right. The important thing is to put them down so that all indices are showing.

Dummy is not required to expose his trumps, or his Aces, or any of his cards, until after the initial lead. As a matter of fact, the original lead is called the "blind" lead because it is made without seeing dummy. There is no penalty for exposing part or all of the hand before the lead, but a dummy who gives gratuitous information to the leader should wear a padded suit, white whiskers and drive a team of reindeer.

What Today Means to You

June 17.

By MARY BLAKE.

"GEMINI."

IF June 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 8 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12 noon, and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

Mental depression and inertia will spoil your chances for both happiness and success on this date, unless you have the will power to throw off these temporary influences. Those things which take you away from self will be your salvation, and forced activity will be to your benefit.

Children born on June 17 will be very easily influenced, and great care should be taken in choosing their associates. They will have kind and sympathetic dispositions, and will give themselves rather too freely to others, who may be willing to impose upon them.

You have rather a peculiar nature and a very silent one—you expect your deeds to do all the talking. Your actions can not be criticized, as you usually do that which is fair and right, but you are very bashful about disclosing the motives for your deeds. It is seldom that you divulge the secrets of your mind, and it is a mystery to many why one with such good thoughts should choose to keep them to themselves. In all your affairs of friendship or love, your devotion loses much of its graciousness and its appeal without your verbal accompaniment. You are often misunderstood, and your intentions are doubted, for the want of a word. There is no one who appreciates a kind word, or the pretty little speeches which make us happy, more than you do.

You have a very practical mind, and you do not waste your time building air castles. You usually know what you want to do, and proceed to do it to the best of your ability. You do not seek a royal road to success, but you are willing to perspire for the goal to which you aspire. Your spirit is a courageous one, and you are not often deterred by the obstacles with which you meet. Your home and your immediate family fill your heart and you desire few outside friends.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN.

June 17.

MARY ELIZABETH BAIRD BRYAN, wife of the late William Jennings Bryan, was born this day, 1861. She married the "Great Commoner" in 1884. After their marriage she studied law in order to enter more fully into her husband's work, and was admitted to practice in Nebraska. She was the valedictorian of her class in college.

Their marriage took place just one year after Bryan's admittance to the Illinois bar. It was just twelve years later, in 1896, that Bryan made his famous "cross of gold and crown of thorns speech" at the Democratic convention and was nominated for the presidency. He was defeated by McKinley. He was again nominated in 1900, when he was again defeated by McKinley. He was nominated for the third time in 1908, when he was defeated by Taft. He was appointed Secretary of State by Woodrow Wilson, but resigned when the Nation veered toward war. Bryan died in 1925.

Here in the world of fruit and flowers
A 10-cent piece won all his powers.

His fingers grabbed to take it in,
He worried lest it should grow thin.
Here in a world where joys abound,
Dimes were the loveliest things he found.

Beyond that coin he could not see
The beauty of a blossoming tree,
Nor was there anything on earth
Surpassing silver's sterling worth.

And on his deathbed, all they heard
Who asked him for a final word
Was this: "I leave my dime to you,
Take care of it whate'er you do."

Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

An unusual tailleur of dark blue heavy cire lace trimmed in matching grosgrain ribbon. (Courtesy of Lucille Paray—Paris.)

CERTAIN women look their best in the evening when they are wearing very artificial coiffeurs or head-dresses. Le Secretire Gallant raved in his last report from Paris about a gorgeous creature who was wearing a delightful perruque, which parted in the middle, with the hair falling to below the ears and ending in tight little curls, which were held in place with a shell pin.

But its true loveliness was in the color, which shaded from silvery white at the top through gray to coal black at the curled ends!

Another very flattering hair-dress, which could be worn only by a woman with very graceful carriage, is achieved with the help of a large semi-circular silver comb. The hair is parted low at one side and is combed back flat from the forehead and ears. The comb, exactly fitting the shape of the head curve, is fitted over the crown from one side of the nape of the neck to the hair-line of the opposite side of the forehead.

You Can Make It!

The detailed sketch and directions for making two smart beach robes—that's what we have for you in this week's illustrated leaflet, for which you may send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dah-ray department of The Washington Post. You might want a beach robe some day, you know!

And there, what do you think of a tailored suit fashioned of heavy Cire lace? 'Twas dark blue, and trimmed in dark blue grosgrain ribbon—and just for fun there was a sprig of blue and white flowers at the lapel!

A folding umbrella-cane is a novelty you should really try to pick up when you go to Paris this year. Incidentally, and before I go any further, I am reminded to tell you that there is an American newspaper there that maintains a complete shopping department and will tell you where all such things can be bought.

In fair weather this umbrella-cane is just an ordinary cane of bamboo with a malacca handle. But at the first sprinkle one unscrews it at the end and pulls out a tightly rolled silk umbrella with the same malacca handle. The bamboo stick telescopes and slips into the overcoat pocket.

Mme. Dare's weekly fashion letter appears in Washington exclusively in The Post. You should read it.

THIRSTY HONG KONG FORMS WATER LINES

AID ASKED OF MAINLAND

Hongkong, June 19 (A.P.).—Thousands of thirsty persons lined up at the water stations today in the bright sun and heat awaiting doles of the precious liquid. The rain of yesterday totaled only half an inch, hardly a trickle in the yawning reservoirs.

The government views the situation now as "increasingly serious" and is therefore extending its emergency plans and providing for increased storage and tankage. It is considering converting the naval drydock into a huge reservoir for the water supplies brought by steamships.

Investigation today revealed that five out of the six reservoirs on this island virtually were empty. It was estimated that there now is in storage about 200,000,000 gallons, compared with the normal amount of 2,000,000,000 gallons. Kowloon, on the mainland, is in the same predicament, having only 90,000,000 gallons instead of 500,000,000 needed.

Official circles emphasized that this summer there will be "a certain quantity for all," but explained that the most serious time may be expected in the coming winter unless there are heavy rains prior to October, when the winter dry season begins.

The government has telegraphed Singapore and Saigon asking what supplies are available in the Straits Settlements and French Indo-China. It is making every attempt to increase sources of water imports.

Science Bears Out Talmud Doctrines

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Some commandments of the ancient Jewish Talmud in line with modern eugenic principles are reported by William Grossman, Hebraic scholar of Passaic, N. J., to the American Eugenics Society.

One says that two very tall or very short persons should not marry, lest their children be abnormally tall or short. For a similar reason marriage was discouraged between blonds or between dark persons. Marriage was forbidden into an epileptic family. Marriage for persons of families manifesting continuous antagonism to each other was advised against.

Architects Neeeded To Aid City Plans

Los Angeles, June 16 (A.P.).—More than 500 American cities have city planning commissions, says Charles H. Cheney, yet on only a few of the commissions are there any architects.

Mr. Cheney is chairman of the committee on city, community and regional planning of the American Institute of Architects.

He says that architects must act to stop "enormous economic losses resulting from lack of constructive city planning."

Suit Delays U. S. Work on Levees

Hearing on Unconstitutional Seizure Charge Ordered in Louisiana.

Shreveport, La., June 16 (A.P.).—The application of a landowner for an injunction to prevent the United States Government from awarding contracts and proceeding with construction of guide levees in the Bouef Basin of Louisiana was heard by Judge Ben C. Dawkins, in Federal Court yesterday and a temporary restraining order was issued.

The direct result of Judge Dawkins' decision was to deny the complainant an order restraining Government engineers from receiving bids for contract work on Monday at Vicksburg, Miss. However, the judge issued a rule directing the Government and other defendants in the action to show cause at Monroe, La., on July 15, why the injunction should not be issued.

The action, brought by R. Foster Kincaid, a holder of $9,000 worth of property in Franklin Parish, contended that the Jadwin flood control plan would deprive him of property without due process of law and in violation of the Constitution, in that condemnation proceedings had not been started.

Pike's Peak Fliers Told They Should Go Higher

Colorado Springs, June 16 (A.P.).—An altitude of 14,200 feet above sea level is too low for airplanes hereabouts.

Fred G. Matthews, traffic manager of the Pikes Peak automobile highway, yesterday filed a complaint with the Department of Commerce by telegrapn to the effect that a monoplane of the Pikes Peak Air Commerce, Inc., with four passengers barely missed the observation tower at the summit of the peak. The mountain named by Zebulon Pike is 14,109 feet above sea level.

WOMAN'S INSURANCE PLOT TRIAL IS STAYED

Youth Faces Jury in Murder Case Tomorrow as Landlady Wins Week's Delay.

DEATH PENALTY IS ASKED

Macon, Ga., June 16 (A.P.).—Mrs. J. C. Powers, Macon's 71-year-old landlady, has been given another week to answer charges that she lured James Parks, an orphan youth, into an insurance trap with "motherly endearments" and then hired an assassin to kill him.

Solicitor General Charles Garrett today announced he had agreed to a postponement of the trial, which was scheduled for early this week, in order to permit Mrs. Powers' attorneys to complete preparations.

Meanwhile the self-confessed slayer, Earl Manchester, 21-year-old roommate of Parks, will go on trial as scheduled tomorrow, with the State asking the death penalty.

The solicitor general will press for death on the basis of a signed confession from Manchester that he killed Parks on a promise from the aged landlady to give him $1,000 of the $14,000 insurance she held on Parks' life. Mrs. Powers had insured Parks a few weeks before his body was found May 28 with a bullet wound in the back of the head.

Manchester's confession said he killed Parks on the night of May 27, after luring the youth to the bank of the Ocmulgee River on the pretext of hijacking a liquor car.

Mrs. Powers is charged with accessory before the fact of murder, and under Georgia law, the actual slayer must be tried first.

The solicitor said he understood the defense would ask for an indefinite continuance on the ground that Mrs. Powers was physically unable to face a trial at this time, but that he would oppose this move because State physicians had told him the landlady was in unusually good health for her age.

Odd Names Describe Landslides Over World

Philadelphia, June 16 (A.P.).—The New England name of "slide" for a landslip of loose rock has cousins all over the world. "Scree," "clitters," "clatters," "schutt" and "talus" all describe the same condition. Talus is the scientific name.

The words are defined in a report to the American Philosophical Society by John W. Harshberger, professor of botany, University of Pennsylvania. He tells what kind of vegetation grows in talus slopes.

Carewes, of Films, Rewed in Chicago

Mary Aiken Again Bride of Director After Year of Separation.

Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—Edwin Carewe, motion picture director, and Mary Aiken, film star, were remarried today at the home of the bride's sister in suburban Highland Park. The couple was first married in 1926. They were divorced in Mexico in July, 1928.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Carrie A. Aiken; her sister, Mrs. W. A. Gibson; Mr. Carewe's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Finis Fox, together with half a dozen family friends, witnessed the ceremony.

Mrs. Carewe, a former Chicago high school girl, entered motion pictures as a Sennett bathing girl and rose to stardom under Carewe's direction. They have two children.

Fire at Danville Causes $30,000 Estimated Loss

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., June 16.—Loss estimated at $30,000 was caused here late last night when fire destroyed the negro industrial high school, a Presbyterian Church institution, damaged the Holbrook Street Negro Presbyterian Church and the parsonage occupied by the Rev T. B. Hargrove. Firemen were hampered by the lack of water. It was the first time in five years a fire had occurred in that quarter and firemen were of the opinion that mud and scaling had accumulated in the hydrants, choking the flow. The cause of the fire was unknown.

Firemen Keep Infant Alive 4 Days By Supplying Oxygen

Breath of Life Given to 16-month-old Boy Through Rubber Tube as Child Struggles With Bronchitis. Men Work in Squads of Two.

Chicago, June 16 (U.P.).—Given the breath of life through a small rubber tube atached to an inhalator, Raymond Di Chiara, 16 months old, was still alive today, the fourth day since he was stricken with acute bronchial pneumonia.

Firemen working in shifts of two, are administering oxygen to the infant under the direction of Dr. John Pishotta, who has remained at the little white crib almost ceaselessly since lung congestion became acute.

A nurse is in constant attendance in the room. Raymond takes the oxygen through the tube as he does milk from a nursing bottle.

Dr. Pishotta ordered the anxious mother, Mrs. Joseph Di Chiara, to go to bed when the baby slept naturally for several hours. It was her first sleep since Raymond was stricken.

The doctor today praised the untiring efforts of the firemen, working under Capt. John Scanlan, of an inhalator squad. He said that if Raymond lives it would be due to their willingness to administer the oxygen.

More than 30 small tanks and 14 large tanks of oxygen had been used today. Each shift of firemen is kept on duty only a few hours.

Traveler Asks Police Escort Through Chicago

Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—Mayor Thompson today received a letter from Lloyd Kreutzweiser, who explained that he was "traveling with a minister," asking police protection when he passes through here en route to Anderson, Ind., from Saskatoon, Sask.

"We wish to pass through the great city of Chicago," he wrote, "but we desire to get out alive." Kreutzweiser gave the make of his automobile, the license number and route of travel. He expected a police escort to meet him at the city limits.

Ait Taksub Rebels Routed Says Minister of France

Paris, June 16 (U.P.).—The war ministry announced yesterday that the vicinity of Ait Taksub has been wholly cleared of rebels and the situation greatly ameliorated.

The commander of the little post signaled that the troops' morale is excellent and that they have plenty of food and ammunition. Airplanes, however, continue to patrol the region for protection of the fort, chasing the rebels down the Dran Valley and into the mountains.

Virginia Gale Rips Up Crops and Trees

Barn Collapses on Four Horses in Northwest Frederick County.

Winchester, Va., June 16.—A freakish hailstorm of cyclonic proportions that came up suddenly late yesterday in the Hunting Ridge, mountainous section of northwestern Frederick County, leveled growing crops, tore up trees by the roots, overturned barns and did other damage, according to Edgar Marple, who was here today.

Large commercial apple orchards on Apple Pie Ridge escaped injury, the hail having stopped a mile or two from the orchards. Marple's large barn was demolished, and four horses were buried under the debris and four tons of hay. He had put the horses in the barn only a short time before as he and his employes took refuge from the hail in a nearby corncrib. One of the horses escaped during the storm, and the others were dug out later. Two were injured.

Marple said that at the height of the storm he could not see 3 feet ahead, and that the roar of the wind drowned out the sound of the crashing barn.

Assault-to-Kill Charge Placed Against Suspect

Shreve was reported convalescing last night at Sibley hospital. He was struck on the head with an automobile crank as he walked to his home from his work early Saturday night.

Properties Behind Smith Offerings—No. 10, The New Amsterdam.

For the information of the public at large and particularly those who may be interested in The New Amsterdam Apartment Building, we invite attention to the following statement relative to this property and to certain securities offered by this House.

A Fine Property . . . A Sound Investment

Well Located Property

The New Amsterdam Apartment Building, at the Northeast corner of 14th and Fairmont Streets, N. W., occupies a dominant location in a convenient and desirable residential section of Washington, D. C. It is in successful operation and is typical of the many fine income-producing properties that have secured bond issues offered by The F. H. Smith Company.

A Smith First and Refunding Mortgage Bond Offering

In September, 1928, we offered an issue of $770,000 6½% First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds on this property—land and modern 8-story apartment building—with serial maturities from four to fifteen years. At that time there was an underlying lien consisting of a first mortgage, securing $600,000 7% Bonds, dated September 1, 1926, and maturing September 1, 1931. $575,000 principal amount of said bonds were then outstanding.

Valuation of Property
By Two Members of the Washington Real Estate Board

WARDMAN CONSTRUCTION COMPANY, INC. $1,100,000
HARRY R. LOVELESS 1,114,538

The New Amsterdam Apartment Building was appraised, prior to the refunding operation, by Wardman Construction Company, Inc., and Harry R. Loveless, both prominent members of the Washington Real Estate Board.

"July 12, 1928.

"Pursuant to your request we have carefully inspected the premises, 2701 Fourteenth Street N. W., Washington, D. C., being the northeast corner of Fourteenth and Fairmont Streets, improved by an apartment building of eight stories and basement.

"We consider the location exceptionally good, being in the thickly populated residential section of upper Fourteenth Street, one of the principal thoroughfares of the National Capital. The Fourteenth Street business section is within a few blocks and in the vicinity are many fine apartment buildings, churches and schools. Transportation facilities are excellent, the Fourteenth Street car line affording 15-minute service to the downtown section. The Sixteenth Street bus line is two squares and the Eleventh Street car line three squares away.

"The apartments are well planned and the fixtures and equipment are modern in every particular. No depreciation was apparent at the time of our examination.

"Taking into consideration all the elements of cost, the excellent location (with two street frontages) and based on a going concern, we value the property at $1,100,000.

"Yours very truly,
(Signed) "JAMES D. HOBBS, Treasurer."

"August 24, 1928.

"Pursuant to your request, I have carefully inspected the newly completed apartment building known as 'The New Amsterdam' located at the northeast corner of Fourteenth and Fairmont Streets N. W., Washington, D. C.

"The building is fireproof, well constructed and designed, eight stories and basement, and the lot has a frontage of 140 feet on Fourteenth Street and 132 feet on Fairmont Street.

"After examination of physical property and review of the architectural plans, I estimate the value of the building, together with the land, to be $1,114,538.

"The building has a very desirable location, with two street frontages, giving ample light and air. The immediate neighborhood enjoys the convenience of every facility, having a high grade shopping district, excellent markets, motion picture theatres, churches and schools. Two street car lines and bus service afford excellent transportation to all parts of the city.

"Very truly yours,
(Signed) "HARRY R. LOVELESS."

Completion of Refunding—
Underlying Bonds Retired at a Premium

On March 1, 1929, the outstanding bonds of the underlying issue were redeemed at par and accrued interest, plus a premium of 2%. The refunding operation on this property was completed six months from the date of the first and refunding mortgage, through said redemption of the outstanding bonds of the underlying issue, and the deed of trust securing said underlying bonds was released.

A Satisfactory Investment

The New Amsterdam bonds are an example of the satisfactory investments offered by The F. H. Smith Company. The holders of the bonds of the $600,000 First Mortgage issue received their interest regularly when due, and had their principal returned before maturity with a profit. The property constitutes sound security for the bonds of the existing $770,000 issue which are, since the completion of the refunding, closed first mortgage bonds. The operator's report, dated June 12, 1929, states that of the 140 apartments and 6 stores in this building, 136 apartments are rented with four reserved and four stores are rented with one reserved.

Smith offerings of real estate mortgage bonds are fundamentally sound because they are based upon well located real estate—land chosen with a view to future as well as present values—buildings that are adapted to a known rental demand

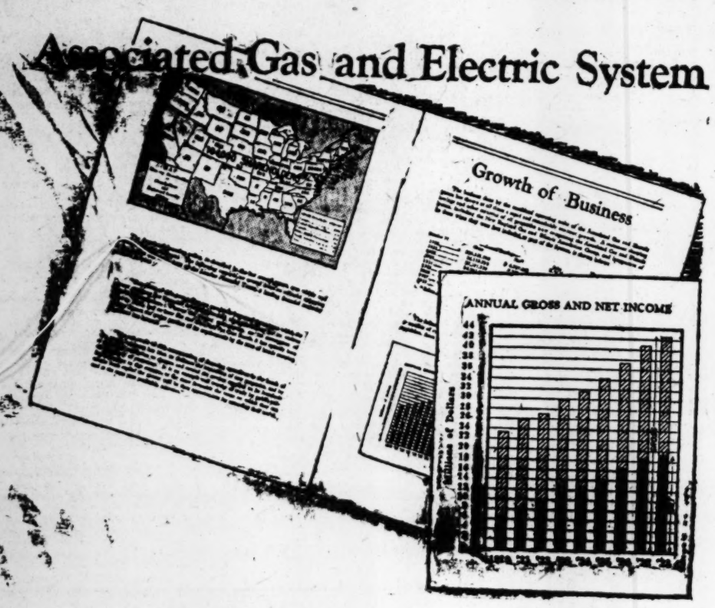
Associated Gas and Electric System



Annual Report
Shows 18% Increase In Earnings

COMPLETING the most successful year in the history of the Associated Gas and Electric Company, the 1928 Annual Report, just issued, shows substantial progress in practically all phases of the business.

For the twelve months ending February 28, 1928, gross earnings were $47,437,778, an increase of 18% over the preceding twelve months.

During the year 33,262 new customers were added. The New Business Department was actively engaged in developing more business from old customers through the sale of household gas and electric appliances.

Sales of these appliances were nearly four times as great in 1928 as in 1927.

To stimulate further the residential use of electricity, New Low Energy Rates were adopted throughout nearly all parts of the Associated System. Ultimately these rates should lead to a wider use of appliances and to an increased sale of electricity.

An investment in Associated Securities affords an opportunity to share in the increasing earnings of the Company and in the future growth of the electric light and power industry.

Summary of Progress

K. W. H. Sales to residential customers increased	9.5%
Customers increased	33,262
Appliance sales increased	275%
Total securities sold to customers	$36,000,000
Total sold to customers during 1928	$13,183,715
Total assets (June, 1929)	$650,000,000

"Rights" to subscribe at $42 per share to additional Class A Stock of Associated Gas and Electric Company will be given to June 14th holders of record

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

YOUR HOUSE OBSTRUCTING TRAFFIC.

An airplane crashed through the roof and into the bedroom of Gov. Larson of New Jersey at his summer home at Seagirt, N. J., the other day. Accidents of this type are becoming more and more frequent. The complaint of the aviators seems to be that our homes do not carry rear lights or bumpers.

* * * *

"I had a plane crash through the roof of my house a few nights ago," said Elmer Twitchell today. "I was in bed at the time and the aviator didn't even signal for me to move over."

* * * *

"There is a landing field near my home, and me and the family have become pretty accustomed to having the house sideswiped by aviators. They are breaking in a lot of new airmen over my way and they must be using my house to practice on. We've got so we can tell by the sound of the motor whether a plane is going to put a new hole in the roof or not, but it keeps are nerves pretty ragged.

* * * *

"Now and then we get fooled, though. We calculate by the sound that the birdman is going to miss us and hit the house next door, but he suddenly smacks right through the building, grazing the children's room, taking a yard or two of hide off the dog and settling down at the foot of my bed.

* * * *

"I am for long strides in aviation, but when these birdmen take to flying into bed with you it is carying a stride too far.

* * * *

"What gets me is that they are so bold about it. A passenger plane with three people in it crashed right into my bedroom last week with no warning of any kind. Had the pilot given any signal I could have moved the bed over to the extreme right and let him pass.

* * * *

"But the first thing I know is when he telescopes the bed. The pilot lands on my wife's pillow, and the two passengers, a Mrs. Bean and her daughter, from Detroit, land on my chest. It was all pretty embarrassing.

* * * *

"But was that pilot sorry? Was he willing to accept the responsibility for the collision? Was he even polite about it? He was not. Do you know what he did?

"He got up, glared at me and yelled, 'Why didn't you hold out your hand?'"

THE ROYAL MARRIAGE MARKET.

Prince Louis of Bourbon has deferred his marriage to Mrs. Maybelle Gilman Corey on the ground her offer of $12,000 per year is inadequate. He feels he is underpriced at that quotation.

Today, according to the best market advices, the prince was up 10 points more. There is said to be a pool working in him.

"Mrs. Corey should buy Prince Louis at once, even if she has to do it on margin," said Elmer Twitchell today. "His technical position is excellent and he is due to jump 50 or 60 points by the first of July. I hear he is to be split two for one."

Transfer Agents: MANUFACTURERS TRUST COMPANY, NEW YORK; UNION TRUST COMPANY, DETROIT

Registrars: THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK; BANKERS TRUST COMPANY OF DETROIT

Mr. E. S. Evans, President of the Company, has summarized his letter to us as follows:

Organization: Detroit Aircraft Corporation will presently acquire all of the properties and assets of MAHONEY-RYAN AIRCRAFT CORPORATION, a successor to Ryan Airlines Inc., builders of Colonel Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis." These properties and assets will be held by a wholly owned subsidiary to be organized under the name of Ryan Aircraft Corporation. Detroit Aircraft Corporation plans a division of certain of its activities by transferring to wholly owned subsidiaries certain branches or parts of its business and activities. These wholly owned subsidiaries (in addition to RYAN AIRCRAFT CORPORATION) are:

AIRCRAFT DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION
AVIATION TOOL COMPANY
GROSSE ILE AIRPORT, INC.
MARINE AIRCRAFT CORPORATION

Detroit Aircraft Corporation has entered into contracts for further acquisitions which call for consummation, subject to their terms and conditions, subsequent to the date of delivery of the stock hereby offered. Pursuant to these contracts, Detroit Aircraft Corporation plans the acquisition of all of the capital stock of EASTMAN AIRCRAFT CORPORATION and a substantial portion of the capital stock of LOCKHEED AIRCRAFT COMPANY, THE WINTON AVIATION ENGINE COMPANY and BLACKBURN AIRCRAFT CORPORATION.

Business: Detroit Aircraft Corporation will own all of the capital stock of companies whose activities will include the manufacture and sale of airplanes and airships and the operation of an airport with landing and hangar facilities. The completion of its contracts for further acquisitions will bring substantial interests in companies whose activities will include the manufacture and sale of a diversified line of planes and flying boats under internationally known trade names.

Management: The Board of Directors and executive staff include men of extensive manufacturing experience in "Detroit" methods of production, the application of which to aircraft manufacture should effect continual improvement of design and refinement of detail with minimum interruption and expense.

Board of Directors is constituted as follows:

P. De C. BALL, Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation, Director.
HAROLD M. BIXBY, Lambert Pharmacal Company, Director.
FRANK W. BLAIR, Union Trust Company, Detroit, President.
THOMAS N. DYSART, National Aviation Corporation, Director.
JOHN SPEED ELLIOTT, August Belmont & Co.
HAROLD H. EMMONS, Chairman of the Board, Northwest Airways, Inc., President and Director.
EDWARD S. EVANS, President, Evans Auto Loading Company, Inc., President and General Manager.
CARL B. FRITSCHE, Vice-President, Aircraft Development Corporation, President.
EDWARD T. GUSHEE, Treasurer, Detroit Edison Company, Purchasing Agent.
C. W. HARRAH, C. W. Harrah Company, President.
HARRY H. KNIGHT, Knight, Dysart & Gamble.
EUGENE W. LEWIS, Northwest Airways, Inc., Treasurer and Director.
WILLIAM B. MAYO, Ford Motor Company, Chief Engineer.
CHARLES S. MOTT, General Motors Corporation, Vice-President and Director.
SHELDON R. NOBLE, H. W. Noble & Co.
R. E. OLDS, Reo Motor Car Company, Chairman.
ARTHUR H. SCHWARTZ, Capitalist.
RALPH H. UPSON, Aeronautical Engineer.

Purpose: 300,000 shares of Capital Stock included in this offering represent new financing on the part of the Company and proceeds thereof will be used to retire funded and floating indebtedness, for investment in subsidiary and affiliated companies, and to provide additional working capital. The balance of the offering has been purchased from certain individuals.

Price $15 per share

This stock is offered as a speculation.

We offer this stock when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to approval of counsel. All legal matters in connection with this issue will be passed upon for us by Messrs. MARBERRY HURLS NATS TO 5-3 WIN OVER WHITE SOX

Simendinger Quits Post at Gonzaga

Duplin, G. U. Star, Is Sought as Successor by Local School.

KENNETH SIMENDINGER, who since 1925 has been athletic director and coach in all sports at Gonzaga High School, has been appointed athletic director and football coach at St. Mary's College, of St. Marys, Kans., it was announced by Gonzaga authorities last night.

At the same time it also was revealed that Gonzaga now is seeking the services of Ralph Duplin, Georgetown University football and baseball star, who was graduated this month, to replace Simendinger. As yet, nothing has been heard from Duplin, whose home is near Boston, Mass.

Simendinger, who will assume the St. Mary's post in September, is a graduate of Holy Cross College, of Worcester, Mass. During his career with the Crusader football and baseball teams, he was classed among the best athletes of Eastern colleges. He was particularly outstanding in baseball as an outfielder, and was said to be headed for the major leagues before incapacitated by a football injury.

Duplin Would Make Capable Successor.

Under Simendinger's guidance, Gonzaga teams have been more successful than those of any other period in the Purple's history. In 1925 the Eye Street Eleven was one of the most powerful in the South Atlantic, scoring among other achievements a victory over Central, the public high title holder.

In 1926 and 1928, Gonzaga annexed the prep school football title but did not engage in contests with the public high champion. Simendinger also developed winning basket ball and baseball teams, the Purple court combinations especially ranking high.

If successful in seeking Duplin, Gonzaga will gain one of the brainiest stuable athletes that has attended Georgedents as well as one of the most valutown in many years.

Ground for Athletic Field Purchased.

Besides playing a bang-up game at quarter back in football and showing all-around ability as an outfielder on the diamond, Duplin taught mathematics at the Hilltop during the past academic year. If signed, he will teach in the same subject at Gonzaga, the authorities said.

An athletic field has been bought by Gonzaga on Benning road northeast. It is hoped that the grounds and seating accommodations will be ready for use in the fall.

Benge Strikes Out 13 Cubs; Phillies Win, 7-2

Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—Ray Benge fanned thirteen of the Chicago Cubs before a crowd of 40,000 and Philadelphia took the final game of the series by a 7-to-2 score.

Salo Wrests Lead in Bunion Derby From Foe on Last Lap

WRIGLEY PARK, Los Angeles, June 16 (A.P.).—Johnny Salo, the "flying cop" of Passaic, N. J., went into the lead of the transcontinental bunion derby here tonight. At the end of the 6 miles of the 26 miles 385 yards Marathon finish of the long run, he was exactly 4-5 of a second ahead of Pete Gavuzzi, the British-born Italian, in the total running time from New York.

Salo ran the 6 miles in 40 minutes 30 2-5 seconds, while Gavuzzi required 46 minutes, 24 4-5 seconds. The 5 minutes 54 2-5 seconds Salo gained in the 6 miles, added to 4 minutes 2 2-5 seconds he had gained previously during the run from Huntington Park wiped out the lead of Gavuzzi, amounting to 9 minutes 56 seconds.

A large crowd gathered to watch the finish of the long, gruelling pace from the Atlantic Seaboard, gave the Passaic policeman a tremendous cheer, when it was announced he had pulled ahead of the English Italian.

Passing the 12-mile mark of the finishing marathon, Salo had stretched his lead over Gavuzzi to 4 minutes 12 seconds. The Passaic policeman was running at an average of 10 2-5 miles an hour. His time for the 12 miles was 1 hour 21 minutes 11 seconds. Gavuzzi was several laps behind.

Sam Richman, of New York, led the rest of the pack at the end of the first 10 miles of the marathon. His time was 1 hour 8 minutes 9 3-5 seconds.

Yanks Take Slugging Game From Tigers, 11-7

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—The Yankees made it three out of four by beating Detroit in a slugging match, 11 to 7. This gave the Yankees eleven victories to four defeats in their home stand against the West.

Seven pitchers were hit freely.

Ken Strong Is Signed By New Haven Club

New Haven, Conn., June 16.—Ken Strong, one of the Nation's outstanding football stars of last season and brilliant center fielder for the New York University baseball team this spring, today signed with New Haven, of the Eastern League, and will join the squad tomorrow, in Allentown. He will play the midfield position.

Although it was supposed that Strong was under agreement to play with the Yankees, the New Haven management today gave out the statement that it had signed him unreservedly.

Reigh Count Held at 7-1 In Ascot Cup Thursday

London, June 16 (U.P.).—Reigh Count, the only American horse in the running, was one of the favorites today in the prerace odds for the Gold Cup Stakes at Ascot, next Thursday.

Reigh Count, winner of the 1928 Kentucky Derby, is quoted at 7 to 1 today, together with Lord Derby's Cri de Guerre.

The favorites are R. Walker's Invershin and M. J. Kittouck's Paisis Royal, both quoted at 4½ to 1. Baron Rothschild's Cacao is a 5½ to 1 choice.

Myer Benched With Bluege At Third

Nats' 1928 Infield Is Installed by Johnson to Bolster Defense.

Open Date Today to Be Followed by Macks' Invasion.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE Sabbath day crowd was given quite a surprise yesterday when Manager Walter Johnson's starting Washington line-up showed Ossie Bluege playing third, his old position, and Buddy Myer, who cost approximately $75,000 in trading material, adorning the bench.

This change showed the Nationals with the same infield which finished the 1928 season, when the team traveled at the fastest pace of any in the league. Just how long it will remain effective depends, of course, upon how it works out. Myer has held up his end at the bat, hitting at a .316 clip to date, but he is not a first-class fielder, his main weakness being his inability to go toward the third-base side for hot grounders or to come in fast for slow ones or bunts.

Along with this player-shift Manager Johnson also rearranged his batting order, giving Joe Judge the lead-off position, putting Bluege in fifth place, and moving Tate up to sixth.

Hadley Groomed to Face Athletics Tomorrow.

No game is scheduled for this afternoon, and, as the Nats have had plenty of work of late, Manager Johnson has announced that there will be no regular practice session this morning, although several of the rookies will be on hand to get some of the stick practice which they have been unable to get with contests having been played practically every day for the past three weeks.

The Athletics will be here tomorrow, however, which assures the Nats of enough action to make up for any lacking today on the basis of past performances, for all the Mackmen have done to the Johnson team so far this season is to take 12 of 13—and the Nats had to travel overtime to land this lone victory. Irving Hadley is being groomed to do the Nats' flinging against the A.'s.

Today Deadline for Spiller To Gain League's Approval.

Nothing new has developed in the controversy between owners Clark Griffith and Rel Spiller over the called-off deal whereby the Washington Club proposed to purchase the Atlanta Southern Association franchise.

The last word received here was Spiller's threat to come to the Capital City this week and file suit, either for damages or to force the Nats to buy the club despite the fact that the Southern directorate has not sanctioned the deal, as provided for in the association's rules. It is possible, however, that Spiller is trying to get the association's approval and, if he can do so by today, the Washington Club is still willing and prepared to close for the Crackers' purchase.

Pitcher Myles Thomas, obtained from the Yankees via the waiver route, failed to show up yesterday but is expected here today.

Sam Jones, Improved, to Rejoin Club Wednesday.

"Sad Sam" Jones, veteran Nat pitcher, who is home nursing a back injury, has wired that improvement has been steady due to the rest treatment prescribed and that he hopes to rejoin the team Wednesday or Thursday. It probably will be a week later before he will be available for regular duty.

Catcher Moe Berg has been hitting like a fiend since having been elevated to the rank of No. 1 receiver by Manager Blackburne. He has hit safely at least once in every game, bringing his record to ten in a row yesterday, while his average during this period is around the .440 mark.

Besides idling today, the Nats also draw a blank date on Wednesday Thursday, too, originally was open but it will be used in playing off a postponed game with the Red Sox, who also will play a double-header here Saturday.

A's Bow to Tribe, 10-9, On Jamieson's Catch

Cleveland, June 16 (A.P.).—A sensational diving catch by Charley Jamieson, Cleveland outfielder, of Bishop's liner with the bases full and two out in the ninth inning, enabled the Indians to nose out the Athletics in a sluggers' battle here today, 10 to 9.

The defeat was only the fourth for the Athletics in their last 29 games.

THE victim of one of the most startling upsets of the current Capital City League unlimited section race, the Auth Nine, undefeated until stopped yesterday by the Brown's Corner Team, 2 to 1, dropped into fourth place, as the Brentwood Hawk and Miller Aztec teams were holding their undefeated record and the National Press Building Cardinals were adding another victory.

A single by Ellsworth Taylor in the ninth inning drove over Lafsky with the winning Brown's Corner run. The Hawks had a 13-to-3 romp at the expense of the Tremonts and the Aztecs handed the Edmonds Art Stone Co. tossers a 9-to-4 reverse at College Park. The Cards earned a 2-to-0 shutout over the Dixie Pigs at Bladensburg. The St. Joe-Capitol A. C. fray, carded for the Plaza diamond, was postponed.

As a result of yesterday's games the Hawks and Aztecs hold the lead, with the Cards in third place, a half game in front of the Authmen.

Young Halts Dixie Pigs Aided By 3 Double Plays.

While Ralph Young was checking the Dixie Pig swatsmen his mates did some clever base runing and timely hitting. In the second, A. Duryea singled, stole second and scored on Cotton's double. Jewett walked in the third, stole second and counted on Hodges' double. Three double plays aided the Card hurler, who held the Barbecue sluggers in check throughout.

Four Tremont hurlers failed to stop the Hawks' batting barrage. Ensor also gave way to Kopp for the winners in the sixth. Wanley, Baker and Garnett each collected a double and triple, the latter pair having perfect records at bat.

Taylor was too effective for the Aztecs and the Edmonds Nine never seriously threatened the winners' lead.

Strange as It Seems— By John Hix

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BENT P. COLLYER.

PRINCESS EDITH.

All sails are set and the old "Ank" is to be hoisted out at Washington Park with this good filly, which has been turning in sensational morning trials. Just rush over to your favorite corner store and lay it on the line. Any old price is a good one. All this takes place in the fourth spasm.

LADRONE ran poorly last time, but that was in the mud. ROSCOE GOOSE is going to shoot from taw and one can look for something of a form reversal in the opening heat of the afternoon. ALTAVAR won rather handily last time and may repeat in the second. In this third we have a real hotsy totsy. It is none other than OTILLO. BLACKWOOD is in such grand form at present he is entitled to first consideration in the feature. THISTLE COOT and MACHETE appear best in the other events.

Down at Latonia several juicy morsels are to be dragged from the old pickle vat. Chief of them is FOREIGN RELATIONS, owned by Romeo Respass. This old maverick goes in the opener and the result is not even going to be close. You have the answer in your lily white mitt.

VERMICULITE is best of a bad lot in the second, while CREEK INDIAN gets the call for the third. BUD CHARLTON and KEITH are two sleepers which are to be awakened. Wise kale has been planted away from the track. Ye'wekkum.

AN 8 to 7 victory over the Roamers yesterday which kept the Try-Me Aces record clean, was closely rivaled by an unexpected 9 to 3 victory by the Miller Furniture Co. Nine over the highly-touted Kaufman Budget Boys as the feature contest of the senior section of the Capital City League.

The Hartfords' 13 to 6 win over the Bostonian Shoe Nine and the 15 to 0 decision gained by the Montrose A. C. over Brooklyn Boys Club further aided in a general shakeup of the standing of the teams. The Ace and Montrose Nines are now leading the parade with three wins in as many starts.

A four-run rally in the seventh by the Roamers, came within an ace of tying the score and threw a severe scare into the Try-Me Ace ranks. Wood and Adair were hammered freely by the victors and Spigel weakened seriously in that hectic seventh. Turner, Shapiro, Fisher, Raeder, McCullough, Roof and Spigel fattened their batting figures.

WOMEN QUALIFY TODAY FOR D. C. TITLE GOLF EVENT

Shannon Cup Goes With Crown

Nonqualifiers for Title Flight Continue in Event.

8 Players Remain in Henry-Williams Cup Play.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE annual women's District golf championship tournament will begin this morning on the course of the Columbia Country Club with an eighteen-hole qualifying round. The sixteen low scores will qualify for the championship flight, with daily rounds of match play, eighteen holes, until the final round next Friday. As there are already 47 entries, the players who do not qualify in the first sixteen will be paired for match play, in flights of eight, with prizes for the winners and runners-up in each flight, thus allowing all contestants to continue in the event.

The principal trophy is the handsome silver cup presented by Herbert T. Shannon, president of the Columbia Club, upon which the name of the champion will be inscribed. Although the donor of the cup will be absent from the city next Friday, in attendance upon the convention of the Washington bankers at Montauk, Long Island, it is expected that the presentation of the prizes will be made a formal event.

The pairings and times of play this morning are as follows:

9:30—Mrs. William S. Corby, Columbia, and Mrs. H. King Cornwell, Columbia. 9:35—Mrs. Perry B. Hoover, Indian Spring, and Mrs. H. A. Knox, Congressional. 9:40—Mrs. J. M. Haynes, Columbia, and Mrs. B. F. Meckley, Mohawk Country Club, Schenectady, N. Y. 9:45—Mrs. L. O. Cameron, Chevy Chase, and Mrs. Dorothy White Nicholson, Washington. 9:50—Mrs. H. B. Hird, Manor, and Mrs. George H. Parker, Columbia. 9:55—Mrs. E. R. Tilley, Indian Spring, and Mrs. J. M. Hodges, Congressional. 10:00—Miss Susan Hacker, Chevy Chase, and Mrs. James W. Beller, Columbia. 10:05—Mrs. Hiatson Harper, Congressional, and Mrs. George T. Bell, Washington. 10:10—Mrs. J. F. Gross, Indian Spring, and Mrs. Norman B. Frost, Columbia. 10:15—Miss Dorothy Hunter, Indian Spring, and Mrs. S. F. Colladay, Columbia. 10:20—Miss Mollie Hodges, Congressional, and Miss Elizabeth Brawner, Columbia. 10:25—Mrs. Hugh S. MacKenzie, Columbia, and Mrs. L. E. Booker, Washington.

10:30—Mrs. Herman Stabler, Columbia, and Miss Florence Scott, Indian Spring. 10:35—Mrs. L. B. Chapman, Congressional, and Mrs. Warren L. Heap, Manor. 10:40—Mrs. J. R. DeFarges, Columbia, and Mrs. C. I. Putnam, Columbia. 10:45—Mrs. J. L. Fieser, Washington, and Mrs. S. C. Watkins, Columbia. 10:50—Mrs. M. E. Miller, Congressional, and Mrs. H. R. Quintner, Columbia. 10:55—Miss Helen Fay, Manor, and Mrs. J. C. Matson. 11:00—Miss Elizabeth C. Harris, Bannockburn, and Miss Ora Emige, Beaver Dam. 11:05—Miss Sue Elizabeth Gantt, Bannockburn, and Mrs. J. A. Marr, Columbia. 11:10—Mrs. E. L. Cowell and Mrs. Philip Israel, Bannockburn. 11:15—Mrs. Alma von Steinner, Beaver Dam, and Mrs. G. M. McClelland, Manor. 11:20—Mrs. L. L. Steele, Indian Spring, and Mrs. B. C. Hartle, Manor. 11:30—Mrs. C. B. Des Jardins, Bannockburn, and Mrs. E. F. Burchard, Bannockburn.

The contest for the Henry-Williams Cup at the Bannockburn Club has progressed to the point where only 8 players survive out of the 64 who were originally paired in the competition. The results of the rounds played yesterday were as follows:

W. E. Mehary defeated Dr. J. R. Mood, 2 and 1. B. L. Burdorf defeated G. W. Scott, 4 and 3. Russell N. Low defeated Leo F. Pass, 1 up. John Thacker defeated J. T. McCarthy, 3 and 2. Dr. L. L. Weer defeated E. F. Welch, 8 and 6. Eugene Paravano defeated L. W. Moore, 3 and 2. R. G. Lamb vs. E. D. Crammond, not played. J. H. Arndt defeated W. F. Byrne, 2 and 1.

Pairings for third round—Mehary vs. Bursdorf; Low vs. Thacker; Weer vs. Paravano; Lamb or Crammond vs. Arndt.

Arrangements were completed yesterday at the Town and Country Club for a team match next Saturday and Sunday between players of the Lakeside Club, Richmond, Va., and the Town and Country Club. Eighteen holes will be played each day, with ten contestants on each side. There will also be a women's team match with four players on each side, and a professional match with A. L. Thorn, Town and Country, paired against Allen Brodie, Lakeside.

In the medal play handicap allowance event at the Bannockburn Club yesterday the winners were as follows: Class A, W. L. Pendergast, 76—7—69; class B, Clinton Dowling, 82—16—66; class C, W. L. King, 85—22—63. In the women's competition the winners were: Low net, first nine, Miss Elizabeth C. Harris, 53—17—35; low net, second nine, Mrs. Frank J. Pickett, 55—10—45.

The second round of match play in the two-man team competition, now in progress at the Manor Club, resulted yesterday as follows:

Robert C. Hird and H. A. Brooks defeated J. R. Pattison and B. C. Hartle, 4 and 3. J. E. Voll and C. H. Gerner defeated F. W. Rade and Ed T. Hawkins, jr., 1 up. William E. Richardson and G. M. McClelland defeated G. L. Greensborough and W. J. Warthen, 4 and 3. C. R. Graham and E. F. Wesley defeated George D. See and A. F. Landvoist, 2 and 1. Ray Farrell and L. G. Taylor defeated R. E. Jones and H. Offutt, 6 and 5. C. Working and H. L. Lucy defeated W. G. Comfort and W. W. Alcott, 3 and 2.

Robert L. Finkenstaedt, who won the Columbia Club invitation tournament last Saturday, will leave today for Youngstown, Ohio, where he has accepted a position with the Republic Steel & Iron Co. He won the District amateur championship in 1920, when M. B Stevinson, his fellow club member at Columbia, was a runner-up, and the pair played together yesterday on the Columbia course.

The Kenilworth Midgets won their first game in the midget section of the Capital City League yesterday. The Meridians were the victims, 12 to 8, while the Corinthians were scoring their third straight at the expense of the Iroquois, 9 to 4.

Lynch's pitching in close quarters and the hitting of Kerwin, Benson, Winchester, Now and Scafidi featured the Kenilworth-Meridian battle. MacPherson and Raifford hurled steadily for the Corinthians, yielding but five hits. Kenney and Himmelfort led their respective teams at bat.

The Georgetown Insects maintained their undefeated record in the Capital City League yesterday by handing the Clyde Milans their third defeat in as many starts, 10 to 5. Shore was on the mound for the victors and was never in danger after the second inning, when his mates took the lead.

The Milans started well, counting twice in the opening stanza, but Thorn was unable to hold the victors in check. Castelli, who relieved him, halted the Georgetown sluggers, but too late. The hitting of Osiel, of the losers, and T. Corcoran, H. Williams, Dunnigan and A. Oddone, of the winners, featured.

Delano Post in Tie With Victory Team, 8-8

New faces were seen in the lineups of the American Legion nines yesterday when the Delano and Victory teams battled in an 8-all deadlock and the Eight and Forty defeated Lincoln, 7 to 3. The results have no bearing on the championship race which will be started anew next Sunday. Spengler won over George Washington, 15 to 13.

Siegel, former Lincoln catcher, aided the Delano Team, and Carl Mills, regular shortstop, went well on the mound. Victory used much the same line-up that won three straight games in the series.

Quigley, a newcomer, and Sumstein pitched well for the Eight and Forty. Lynch, of the Lincoln Team, was given poor support.

The Return Of OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY.

(Copyright Protected. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.)

In the first chapter Old King Brady is engaged by Van Gordon, a millionaire, to locate his daughter, Inez, who has married an adventurer posing as a Chinese prince. Harry and Old King Brady go to San Francisco to the address furnished them by the chief of police, and find the gambling den, which had been run by the prince, had been gutted by fire and the prince and his wife missing. Old King Brady meets a Chinese detective whom he knows.

THE TRAIL OF THE FAKIR OF 'FRISCO

The Young Man With the Yellow Hair.

CHARLIE CHING looked at the photograph Old King Brady was holding. "That the woman!" he cried.

"So? Well, you saw one thing in there and I saw something else. That woman has been dead several days—she was not suffocated in the fire, Charlie."

The three men had been talking in low tones, standing at the corner of Jackson street and the alley. Crowds of Chinese men and women went surging past them. And there were many white people as well, for they go into that district as freely as any other part of town.

Old King Brady and Charlie Ching now fell to talking about another matter, in which they were mutually interested. Harry began watching the crowd trying to pick out the different nations represented. All at once there came up the hill a pair so ill-matched and so peculiar in appearance and action that Young King Brady's attention was attracted at once. One was a young man of powerful build, the other an East Indian with a black face. The white man had a head on his shoulders so small as to be remarkable, and an immense mass of yellow hair. His eyes were a watery blue. The Hindu had him by the arm, leading him. If the latter had been white he would have been extremely handsome.

As the coupled pased Harry the Hindu turned and looked at him and Harry shuddered. Old King Brady noted the look and said to his young partner, "Look out!" These Hindus are queer fellows. The stare of a Hindu sometimes means trouble."

Charlie Ching had quietly departed.

"Where are you going now?" asked Harry.

"To police headquarters. That woman's body must be held and I have to get an order for it. It looks to me as if the fire was a put-up job to cover the disappearance of Prince Hi-Ti-Li and his wife."

"Do you suppose they got wind of our coming?"

"I doubt it. Charlie says the man is a clever fakir and I have an idea he is putting up a job on somebody."

The Bradys had been walking toward the city hall and there they went direct to the office of the chief of police. Fortunately he was in.

"You should have let me arrest that man, Mr. Brady," he said "I could have got him then."

"I am told he was burned to death in the fire," replied Old King Brady.

"If you will believe it," answered the chief. "Three men were burned—but not the prince. I ascertained that immediately."

A shrewd-looking Chinaman came in and the chief explained the case to him. "We want to go there now, Ah Jack," he said. "We must know what this means."

"He tellee me allee light, boss," declared Ah Jack. "Come on."

The four men hurried to the undertaker's where Ah Jack banged on the door in an authoritative way. The undertaker opened it instantly. When he saw the Chinese detective and the chief of police he bent almost double. He showed the remains of the woman. Ah Jack took one look and went for the undertaker in Chinese.

"He says he got orders to bury this woman fiom de plince himself," announced Ah Jack, after a minute.

"So he admits that the prince is alive!" cried the chief. "When did he see him?"

"Last night. He come here disguised."

"Where is he now?"

"He say he no know. I know sat woman allee light; she mallied twice to Chinaman. She nobody at all."

Old King Brady took the chief aside. "There is evidently some plot here," he said. "What we want to know now is to get on the trail of the fakir. Tell Ah Jack to make the fellow tell where the prince is."

"Ah Jack has to do his work. If the undertaker holds anything back I'll lock him up and put him out of business."

But they could get no further information from the man.

This ended the Bradys' efforts for that day. The chief promised that every detective in Chinatown should be instructed to look into the matter. So the Bradys returned to the Lick House and retired.

Harry overslept the next morning and when he awoke found a note from Old King Brady asking him to meet him at dinner. So he ate breakfast alone, and read the Morning Call pretty thoroughly. He was interested to see a picture of the strange young man with the yellow hair, and the information that he was a young English nobleman, Viscount Dalwise. Harry later saw him talking to the clerk.

Old King Brady Locates the Princess Hi-Ti-Li.

Old King Brady had pased a restless night. He was trying to think of a plan of action which would land him on the trail of the fakir. He felt reasonably sure that the prince had some powerful reason for burning his place of business, so he decided he would have to find the reason first thing.

On leaving the hotel Old King Brady went direct to the tax office to find out the name of the owner of the house on Dupont street. A young man furnished him with the name and address of Mrs. Estelle Fairchild, No. —— California street. He handed the clerk a five-spot and withdrew. The old detective recognized the name as being that of a widow of a man who had suddenly grown rich in mining. Old King Brady made up his mind to interview her. He was ready to do this as soon as he had posted himself as to what sort of a person Mrs. Fairchild was. He went about this in a queer way. He went to the biggest intelligence office in San Francisco, Mrs. Wheeler's, on Montgomery street. He had met her before and he had only to send in his card to be admitted at once to her private office. He asked her directly about the history of Mrs. Fairchild. He was informed that she was the daughter of a washerwoman up in British Columbia, later a barmaid in a saloon at Victoria.

"I see. Mrs. Fairchild can hardly be called an aristocrat, it would seem," he remarked.

"Hardly. But everyone doesn't know this, remember. After her husband struck it rich she landed on Nob Hill, where she is now."

"Has she any hobby?"

"Yes. She is an inveterate bridge player and she dopes," she replied. "The worst of it is that she doesnt confine it to her home, but goes slumming in Chinatown. She owns a building on Dupont street which has been used as a gambling den and an opium joint. She has been shadowed going to this place. I got my information from a former servant of hers, and I believe her implicitly.'

A point had been gained.

"Mrs. Fairchild has a niece living with her now; a very beautiful woman, who arrived day before yesterday. They are leaving town very soon."

Old King Brady was pleased with the information he had secured. In case he needed her in the future he took down the name of the servant who had given Mrs. Wheeler all this information, Fanny Foncelle.

He walked the streets for an hour after leaving Mrs. Wheeler. He wound up on Nob Hill in front of the Fairchild house. While he was looking it over an express wagon stopped. A dozen or more big trunks were brought out of the house and loaded on the wagon, which then drove off. Before he could turn away he saw a handsome carriage come out of the gates and draw up before the door.

The door of the mansion swung open and a pompous butler appeared carrying bags and parcel. Behind him followed a woman of peculiar appearance, and following her was a younger woman, beautifully dressed. One glance was sufficient to show Old King Brady that at last he had struck the trail of his Frisco fakir. The young lady was the "Princess" Hi-Ti-Li.

THIS IS THE MAN UNDER A POSITIVE GUARANTEE

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, loss or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds, whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

INCREASED SPREAD OF CIGARETTE HABIT IS BLAMED ON WAR

Senator Frazier Proposes New Amendment to Outlaw Belligerency.

KELLOGG PACT CALLED SCRAP OF PAPER NOW

Campaign to Create Sentiment Against Tobacco Advocated at Adventists' Meet.

An amendment to outlaw war, termed the "twentieth amendment," was proposed by Senator Lynn J. Frazier, of North Dakota, during an address by him before an anticigarette demonstration at the anual camp meeting of the Potomac Conference of Seventh Day Adventists at the Washington Missionary College at Takoma Park, Md., yesterday afternoon.

Senator Frazier charged the increased smoking of cigarettes to the World War. He would use the appropriations for the upkeep of the Army and Navy to better health and educational conditions.

"The increase of cigarette smoking is due to the world war," Senator Frazier declared, and continued to name the other "evils accruing from that event": loss of life, financial cost and the general setback suffered.

Amendment Is Proposed

"I propose an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to outlaw war," he declared. "We must outlaw war. It pleases me to see the progress made by the Kellogg peace pact, but that is a mere scrap of paper without law to back it up. We should have an amendment to outlaw war in any form.

"We must create public sentiment against war and cigarettes," he added.

"I would use the hundreds of millions of dollars used for the upkeep of the Army and Navy to create better health and educational conditions," he concluded.

Anticigarette Law Opposed.

Representative John J. McSwain, of South Carolina, who immediately followed Senator Frazier, apparently misunderstanding the proposed amendment to apply to outlawing cigarettes instead of war, took slight exception to the senator's proposal of an amendment.

"We've got about all the Federal law now that we can live under," Representative McSwain said. "It has been proposed to put in an amendment against the cigarette. I'm sure that the cigarette sleuths couldn't track down all the culprits, so I should be compelled to vote against the twentieth amendment."

He urged that rather an educational campaign be carried out to instruct the young particularly against "the evils of tobacco."

Degeneracy Blamed on Nicotine.

Daniel H. Kress, president of the Anti-Cigarette Alliance, told of the "degeneracy caused by tobacco," and bemoaned the fact that women are smoking, and also "that they are poisoning their unborn babes."

Several impromptu speakers added their condemnation of "the little white devil" (meaning the cigarette) and then, "so the newspapers would have something," as Dr. B. G. Wilkinson, dean of the Washington Missionary College phrased it, he proposed a resolution that carried.

After many wherefores telling of the "perniciousness and evils of the cigarette and tobacco," it was resolved "to oppose by every legitimate means the further spread of the cigarette habit and traffic."

Law Violation Laid To Methodist Board

(Associated Press.)

A charge that the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals had violated the corrupt practices act of 1925 in failing to file a report of its expenditures in the last presidential campaign was made yesterday by Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts.

The allegation was embodied in a letter addressed to Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the organization, the second that Tinkham has addressed to him in a week. In the first he asked whether such a report had been filed.

Yesterday he declared he had received no answer and, asserting that the reason was "apparent," said that Wilson "could not deny" that the board "had violated the corrupt practices act of 1925." In addition, Tinkham said that Wilson had "told a gross falsehood" when he declared on April 30 "We have no lobby here; we have no lobbyists."

"The issue for the American people to settle," Tinkham said, "is whether any church as an organization in the United States is to be allowed to assume political authority and to usurp temporal power."

HOME PAYS TRIBUTE TO MRS. GOLDSMITH

MORE THAN 400 ATTEND

Dedication of a tablet and new dormitory in honor of Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith, of 3901 Connecticut avenue northwest, one of the chief founders and benefactors of the Jewish Foster Home, 3213 Q street northwest, was held at the home yesterday afternoon.

More than 400 friends and fellow-welfare workers attended the ceremonies, which included addresses by Rabbi William Franklin Rosenblum, who made the dedicatory speech; Rabbi Abram Simon, Oscar Leonard, executive director of the Jewish Welfare Federation; Mrs. Leonard B. Schloss, president of the Senior Council of Jewish Women; Isaac B. Nordlinger, president of the home; Morris Cafritz and E. I. Kaufmann, all of whom were active in arranging for the tribute.

The ceremonies were preceded by a drill by the 23 boys and 18 girls who are now cared for at the home, and Mrs. Goldsmith made a brief address in appreciation.

In addition to her efforts in behalf of the home, Mrs. Goldsmith for nearly twenty years has been actively engaged in much charitable work. She is a member of the Board of Public Welfare, president of the United Hebrew Relief Society, and a member of the budget committee of the Community Chest, of which the Jewish Foster Home is a constituent organization.

4 Injured, 1 Seriously, In Baltimore Pike Crash

Four persons were injured, one seriously, when an automobile in which they were passengers left the Washington-Baltimore boulevard near Savage, Md., and struck a tree on the lawn of a private home early yesterday morning.

Henry Carrington, Baltimore, the most seriously injured, was taken to Johns Hopkins Hospital with head lacerations after receiving treatment in Laurel. The three others injured are George Thomas Campbell, the driver of the car; his wife, Mrs. Isabel Carrington, and Ollie Campbell, all of Baltimore.

Water Main Break Floods D Street

Flooded Sewer and Cellars Threatened, but Water Is Turned Off in Time.

A stream of water that forced its way through the macadam roadway on D street, between First and Second streets southeast, and gushed up for a distance of three or four feet, when an underground main broke shortly before 10 o'clock last night, for a time threatened to flood sewers and cellars in the vicinity.

Residents of the neighborhood reported the break to the Fifth Precinct Station by telephone and the police notified the District Water Department, which dispatched an emergency crew to the scene.

In the meantime a large number of children gathered—some in bathing suits—and scrambled for opportunities to stand in the cooling spray. Workmen finally succeeded in turning off the water, and then started digging to locate the break. Early today it had not been found.

Doctor's Home Looted Of Watch and Brooch

Property valued at $60 was stolen early last night from the home of Dr. Daran Thorn, 1361 Hamilton street northwest, he told police of the Thirteenth Precinct last night.

The loot, obtained by raising a screen in a rear window, included a wrist watch, valued at $50; a sapphire and pearl brooch, valued at $10, and $1.50 in change, he said.

Dr. Hemelt Addresses Columbus U. Graduates

Dr. Francis J. Hemelt, dean of the Columbus University School of Accounting, delivered an address on accounting as principal speaker at a dinner dance of the Venetian Society of that institution for its graduating class Saturday night at the Restaurant Madrillon.

Others on the program included Robert Z. Findlay, who served as toastmaster, and James D. Cushman, an instructor at the school.

All-Day Celebration Will Be Held Under Auspices of Citizens Association.

DEVINY COMMITTEE HEAD

Independence Day will be observed by the residents of the Michigan Park section of Northeast Washington with an all-day program to be given under the auspices of the Michigan Park Citizens Association on the Turkey Thicket Playground, Michigan avenue and Perry street northeast, July 4.

The exercises will begin in the morning with a parade of the children of the neighborhood along Michigan avenue to the playground, where the remainder of the program will be held. Edmund R. Lafond, assistant to the director of athletics at the Catholic University of America, will conduct a series of games and athletic contests for children, men and women, in which prizes will be offered. There are also to be patriotic exercises, and a fireworks display in the evening.

William M. Deviny, chairman; John J. Callaghan, Lewis S. Truncle, Roger A. Hoyt, S. Henry Hoddinott, Thomas C. Barr, Robert V. Montgomery, Stanley F. Kederski, Joseph W. Connally and Emmet J. Brennan constitute the executive committee in charge.

The patriotic exercises are in charge of a committee composed of Thomas Gillespie Walsh, chairman; Leo A Rover, Carl H. Richmond, the Rev. Dr. George Johnson, Maj. Louis C. Hines, James F. Hughes, Frederick V. Murphy, Dr. Herbert F. Wright and Patrick A. Fealy.

The subcommittee chairmen are: Joseph A. Goetzinger, special committee; John Alden, finance; Dr. T. Roland Wilkerson, sanitation; William E Russell, decorations; Thomas J. Trodden, entertainment; Capt. C. L. Flemmon, police and fire protection; Charles J. [illegible]sler, souvenir program; Joseph De Bottencourt, prizes; Mrs. Joseph F. Diamond Ring Robbery Laid to Woman by Man

Phillip M. Hudson, 1706 A street southeast, reported to police yesterday that a chance acquaintance with a young woman cost a diamond ring valued at $150. Hudson said he went with the woman to a house in the 200 block of Fourteenth street, where he was robbed.

As a result of a description given by Hudson, police arrested Miss Anna Catherine Stephens, 32 years old, of 614 Sixth street northwest, in connection with the robbery. The arrest was made by Detective Sergts. Michael Dowd and James Springman.

Boy's Assailant Sought.

Police yesterday were searching for a white man, who is alleged to have taken an 11-year-old negro boy for an automobile ride late Saturday night and assaulted him in Maryland. The victim was Leo William James, of 131 Pierce street northwest. The youth was taken to Freedmen's Hospital, where he was reported to be in a serious condition.

CHINESE IS ARRESTED AS SUSPECTED KILLER OF NARCOTIC AGENT

RESEMBLANCE STRIKING TO MAN POLICE WANT

Effort to Be Made at Inquest Today to Learn Donors of Death Fund.

A close resemblance to the man wanted for the murder of Lee King, Chinese Federal narcotic informer, who was "taken for a ride" last week by three Chinese on Eleventh street near L street northwest, last night caused the arrest of Lee Sing, 22-year-old Chinese laundryman, of 126 Royal street Alexandria, Va., for investigation.

Sing was arrested at the Glen Echo amusement park, in Maryland, by Maryland State police after he had been seen there by William R. Enyart, 1718 Massachusetts avenue southeast, Washington fingerprint expert at detective headquarters.

Enyart, noticing the close resemblance to James Lee, wanted for the murder, whose description has been broadcast to police and immigration authorities throughout the country, notified Maryland police. The arrested man, strikingly similar to Lee, lacked a noticeable drawnface, which police said Lee acquired from use of narcotics.

Sing was brought to Washington and held for questioning by Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, of the homicide squad, who ordered his release after identifying him on sight. The man wanted for the murder is known variously as James Lee, under which name he operated a laundry at 1006 K street northwest, and the names of Lee Shuey and others, police said last night.

An effort to learn the donors of the death fund of $2,500, said by police to have been paid for the murder of Lee King, will be made this morning at the coroner's inquest at the District morgue at 11:30 o'clock. Wholesale murder indictments charging the backers with complicity in the slaying will result if the identity of the financiers is learned, police said last night.

Scots in Plaided Kilties at Picnic

Washington and Baltimore Clans Hold Combined Annual Outing.

Decked in their checkered kilties and feathered tams, more than 200 Scots and descendants of Scottish families from four clans in Washington and one in Baltimore held their annual outing Saturday afternoon at Idlewild, the estate of Dr. Ernest Hendry in Virginia.

The large party included members of the Caledonian Club, the Clan MacLennan of the Order of Scottish Clans, the St. Andrews Society, and the Lady MacLennan Lodge, all of Washington, and the St. Andrews Society of Baltimore, numbering about 40 representatives. The event was the second annual outing of the four Washington groups and the beginning of an annual custom of the Baltimore clan to join in the festivities.

The rally brought together two of the best known Scots in this section, both of Baltimore, George Mann, 78 years old, who was attending his fiftieth clan session, and William Fraser, whose 85 years gave him the honor of being the oldest in attendance. The youngest in the crowd was little 3-weeks-old David Bruce MacKay, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. William G. MacKay, of 1373 Emerson street northeast. After an outdoor lunch, the picknickers reveled in a highland fling to music rendered by the Washington Bagpipe Band.

City Crowds Flee Continued Warmth

Warm weather, topped by an 89-degree mark at 2 o'clock in the afternoon yesterday, sent thousands of Washington residents and visitors to nearby beaches and excursion points for relief from the continued heat.

Several degrees lower than the temperature peaks during the past week, the weather was moderated to an appreciable extent by coastal breezes during the morning and late afternoon.

The Weather Bureau forecast a continuation of the heat wave that is blanketing the country, with a prediction of "partly cloudy and slightly warmer" for Washington and this immediate vicinity.

New Map of District Announced by Survey

A new large map of the District of Columbia together with portions of adjacent territory of Virginia and Maryland covering an area of 464 square miles is announced by the Geological Survey of the Department of the Interior where copies may be obtained at a nominal cost.

The new map topographically designed to serve in the selection of an airport for Washington is printed in the Geological Survey's standard color scheme of blue water features, brown, contours, black lettering and red road classification. It measures 44 by 52 inches and is described by the Department of the Interior as ideal for the motorist, hiker and camper.

Speaking Generally

By JOHN J. DALY

WHEN the new Ambassador to the Court of St. James, Charles G. Dawes, arrived in the Old Country, he issued a statement. According to the press, it was "air-tight, saying nothing, but so felicitously worded that it won him many friends."

The Ambassador then called upon the king.

His majesty beamed a welcome. The Ambassador, opening the new school of diplomacy, said nothing, but so worded his statement that the king, to this day, is none the wiser.

After Windsor Castle, the new Ambassador went over to Scotland, the land of the fir and the burr. There he met Ramsay MacDonald, anxious to get the Ambassador's views on disarmament. Mr. Dawes said nothing, but so worded his statement that he and Ramsay are now close friends; or were, in Scotland.

Since some sort of reaction to the Ambassador's arrival in Merrie England is naturally awaited by the populace, reporters were dispatched to interview leading lights of Washington, known as the Nation's Capital. To a man, they said nothing, but so worded their statements that everybody parted friends—even the newspaper men.

This is a new form of diplomacy. It is an outgrowth, naturally, of the old admonition, "Say nothing, but saw wood." Wood sawing not being what it used to be, the statement that says nothing, but leaves a trail of friendship in its wake, has come to be the boon of diplomats.

* * * *

THE idea has possibilities.

Men of high social and business standing are soon to be brought before a New York grand jury investigating the rum-ring activities of Count Maxence de Polignac, so-called society bootlegger.

Scene: The courtroom. A man, whose name is a by-word in circles where wealth, business and social standing are discussed, is in the witness chair. He is quizzed, asked if he did or did not purchase liquor from the count? Flashes in the witnesses' mind the arrival of Ambassador Dawes in England. Immediately, the society scion decides upon the diplomatic course. He issues an air-tight, prepared statement, saying nothing, but so felicitously worded that it wins him the friendship of the judge, the jury, the prosecuting attorney, and his staff, the bailiffs, the ambulance chasers in the court, and even the janitor.

After a series of these statements from prominent men, the case is called on account of rain. The courtroom deserted, everybody goes home in a happy frame of mind, turns on the radio, and listens to the announcer making a statement, but saying nothing.

RESCUE SQUAD DONS GAS MASKS AT FIRE

28 Families Escorted to Safety in Blaze at Apartment on Eleventh Street.

DENSE SMOKE HINDRANCE

Gas masks, worn by members of the No. 1 Rescue Squad, were used in fighting a fire early yesterday afternoon at the Alabama Apartments, Eleventh and N streets northwest, after smoke became so dense that firemen were unable to approach the source of the blaze in the locker room in the basement of the building.

A call for the rescue squad was sent out by Engine Company No. 2. Members of the rescue squad were able to penetrate the smoke, and cut a helping path for the firemen who came up in the rear.

While the rescue squad was assisting in fighting the blaze in the basement, some of the firemen were detailed to upper floors to help residents to the street. Twenty-eight families were escorted from the place.

The exact damage of the fire was not estimated. It was checked before it had a chance to reach beyond the basement, and its cause was not learned.

Poisoned Rum Suspected As Man Goes to Hospital

A man believed to be Sergt. James Killigan attached to Bolling Field was treated at Emergency Hospital last night for what doctors described as alcoholism. Later in the night he was removed to Walter Reed Hospital, where surgeons planned to make an analysis of his stomach's contents to determine whether he had drunk poisoned whisky.

The man was taken to Emergency Hospital from the Houston Hotel, 910 E street northwest. Hotel attaches reported that he had been in an apparent stupor all day.

Woman's Legion Is Host To 75 Disabled Veterans

Seventy-five disabled war veterans from Mount Alto Hospital were entertained on an outing Saturday afternoon at Mount Vernon by the George Baldwin McCoy unit of the American Woman's Legion, after which they were guests of the Wardman Park Hotel at dinner.

Invited guests at dinner included Chief Justice Walter L. McCoy, Admiral Charles F. Hughes, Maj. Gen. Edgar Kreger and Mrs. Kreger, Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries and Mrs. Fries, Mrs. Otto Nimitz, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Gann, Clyde B. Stovell, Col. E. S. Estabrook, Mrs. E. E. Shields, Mrs. David Kinchloe, Mrs. P. N. Hazes and Robert M. Tolson, toastmaster. A section of the Marine Band played. The committee on arrangements included Mrs. Laura V. Dann, as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Charles Demonet, Mrs. Pauline Block, Mrs. M. N. Nock and Miss Lillian Dann.

Capital Woman Is Hurt In Automobile Crash

Miss Mary Zizzo, 29 years old, of 335 H street northeast, was badly cut last night in an automobile accident on the Baltimore pike, near Laurel, Md., when the automobile in which she was riding overturned.

The accident was said to have occurred when the automobile, operated by Paul Curto, left the road while passing another automobile. Miss Zizzo was brought in to Casualty Hospital and treated there for severe lacerations in her forehead and scalp.

Boy Hurls Toy Torpedo, Striking Man in Home

Thomas W. Mason, 28 years old, 512 Sheridan street northwest, was struck on his back by a toy torpedo, which exploded after being tossed in the front window of his home.

Police of the Thirteenth Precinct, who investigated, said that the explosive was thrown by a 14-year-old boy, George Bower, 511 Sheridan street northwest, who was visiting the Mason home at the time. Mason, apparently uninjured, refused hospital treatment.

KIN OF ENVOY, HURT IN CRASH, RESTING

AUTO PLUNGED OFF ROAD

Mrs. Edgar L. G. Prochnik, wife of the Austrian Minister, and their seven-year-old daughter, Patricia, yesterday were resting comfortably at their home, 1851 Wyoming avenue northwest, following injuries suffered Saturday night, when the automobile in which they were riding crashed off the highway near Falls Church, Va.

Mrs. Prochnik suffered minor injuries to her back and painful bruises about the body that will require her to remain at her home several days, while the little girl suffered painful lacerations about the body and a fractured ankle, which has been placed in a cast. Their maid, Marie Jamich, also sustained cuts and bruises.

The accident occurred while the Prochnik party, in an automobile driven by the Austrian Minister, was returning from Warrenton, Va., where they had visited David Batchelder, a relative. Proceeding along at a moderate rate of speed, the car blew out a front tire at the moment another machine approached. Mr. Prochnik declared he attempted to keep the car under control, but that to avoid hitting the oncoming car he chose the alternative of swinging into a ditch.

The wife of the envoy and the maid both were thrown clear. They and the small girl were given medical aid in Washington after a passing motorist had brought them in his automobile to this city in company of Mr. Prochnik and his son, Edgar, jr., neither of whom was injured.

Cranking an automobile while it was in gear, Caleb H. Snowden, colored, 22 years old, of the Point-to-Point Riding School, was run over by the car and dragged about 20 feet on the 4900 block of Wisconsin avenue yesterday afternoon, according to police.

He was taken to Georgetown Hospital in a passing automobile and treated for a possible fracture of the ribs and internal injuries.

New Aviation Line Will Serve Capital

Country-Wide Service Is Planned by Southern Sky Lines, Inc.

The National Capital will be given direct airplane air-rail connection with most of the principal cities of the country when air mail, express and passenger planes of Southern Sky-Lines, Inc., begin operations during the next twelve months over airways totaling 5,924 miles in length.

Detail of the proposed activities are contained in a report submitted today by James C. Edgerton, vice president and operations manager of Southern Sky-Lines, Inc., to William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury and head of the United States Railroad Administration, who is chairman of the board of the new aviation enterprise.

The company will develop five routes, the most important of which will be an air-rail service from New York to Los Angeles by way of Washington, Richmond, Va.; Raleigh, N. C.; Columbia, S. C.; Augusta and Atlanta, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala.; Jackson, Miss.; Shreveport, La.; Dallas, Fort Worth and El Paso, Tex.; Tucson and Phoenix, Ariz., and San Diego, Calif. Between New York and Los Angeles a 48-hour schedule will be maintained by train and air.

Police Search for Missing Man.

Police were asked last night to search for Harry Basil, 47 years old, who has been missing from his home at 847 Seventh street northeast since early yesterday morning. His wife, Mrs. Ida R. Basil, made the request.

Gets Little Credit Usually, But Dad Has His Day at Last

All the year around he's just the same old toiling, slaving, unsung breadwinner for the little woman and the kids. Verily, times have changed, if only for a day.

Yeah, you've guessed it. Dear old Dad was the guest of honor in the great American home yesterday, all because the calendar-maker's pencil marked June 16 to give him a big hand.

Pop was on the receiving end of some of those gifts that he's been handing out on birthdays galore, Christmas, wedding anniversaries or what have you.

Nothing was too good for the "old man." There were all those loud neckties for him that he'll never wear. Those fancy sox that he'd be ashamed to show. That big cake with "Father" scrawled across it. He's the best old Dad in the world.

And just for a day he's the monarch of all he surveys. So if the great American Dad shows up just a trifle late for work this morning it may be due to the hangover from "that grand and glorious feeling" of Father's Day.
